NOTES

As a young man of seventeen years Frederick Alderfer came to Pennsylvania. He apparently came in an attempt to better himself economically, for he came as an indentured servant to Hans Clemmer. It may be that he also came to escape persecution and military service. He lived in the Salford area of Montgomery County.

Isaac D. Alderfer, the father of Franklin Alderfer, Sr., and the fifth generation of the Frederick Alderfer line lived in the Towamencin area of Montgomery County.

At this writing it isn't clear how Franklin Alderfer, Sr., met Catharine Landis, who lived at Dublin. But as a result of their marriage they took up their residence near Dublin in Bucks County and farmed there. He also did custom hauling with horses to Philadelphia and east and west in Bucks and Montgomery counties. In this way he opened the business world to his children. This may have been a factor which led three of his sons to engage in occupations other than farming.

Now within the family there is a great variety of occupations, but interestingly, most of the descendants still live in Bucks and Montgomery counties.

One hundred and one years after the birth of Franklin L. Alderfer and 98 years after the birth of Catharine Landis Alderfer there are 163 living descendants--6 children, 30 grandchildren, 97 great-grandchildren, and 30 great-great-grandchildren. Forty-nine persons joined this family through marriage, so the clan now numbers 212 living members.

For the first four known ancestors, Frederick and Anna Alderfer and John and Ann Landis there are no namesakes for John or Frederick (the closest is Eric Alderfer). For Anna and Ann there are Anna Kathryn Alderfer Ziegler, Anna Keller Alderfer Meyers, Anna Mae Mack, Anna Ruth Burkhart, and Ann Wade Alderfer.

For Franklin Alderfer, Sr., the namesakes are Franklin L. Alderfer, Jr., Horace Franklin Alderfer, and Glen Franklin Hertzler (b. Apr. 25, 1960; d. Apr. 27, 1960). For Catharine Alderfer the namesakes are Katie Alderfer (b. and d. Sept. 3, 1896), Kathryn Alderfer Landis, and Cathy Doreen Alderfer.

Paul Quentin Meyers was born on the birthday of his great-grandfather, Franklin L. Alderfer, Sr., on Oct. 11. Connie Ann Derstine was born on the birthday of her great-great grandmother, Catharine Landis Alderfer, on June 16.
