PREFACE.

IT was nearly forty years ago that the late JOHN MERRILL BRADBURY, of Ipswich, Mass., began to collect materials for a Genealogy of the Bradbury Family. That his purpose was to make it one of the most complete and exhaustive family histories ever published, is abundantly shown by his correspondence, and had he lived there is little doubt that his intentions would have been fully carried into effect. But his health failed and death supervened before his self-imposed task was half accomplished. He died nearly fifteen years ago, and since that time until quite recently, his collections have remained undisturbed in the hands of his executor.

The venerable Hon. James W. Bradbury, of Augusta, had been for sometime intending to have compiled a limited sketch of his family, embracing only his own line, but after more mature deliberation and a correspondence with the executor of the late John M. Bradbury's will, who cheerfully offered to place the collections of his brother at his disposal, Mr. Bradbury concluded to modify his first intention so far as to utilize all the material attainable, with certain limitations as to the time of publishing the work. The expense of compiling and making additions within reasonable limits, is borne entirely by Mr. Bradbury, while it is hoped that the sale of books will be sufficient to meet the cost of publication.

The late Captain William F. Goodwin, of the United States army, who was connected with the Bradbury family, on the maternal side, was also interested in the history of his ancestors, and had collected more or less material bearing upon the subject, a portion of which—that relating to the York County families of this name—had been printed in Dawson's Historical Magazine. The extent of Capt. Goodwin's collections, and what disposition he intended to make of them had he lived, are entirely unknown to the compiler. The printed portion is all that has been accessible to him.

After the death of Capt. Goodwin, there was some correspondence between his family and the late John M. Bradbury, looking to a union of the two collections, and the only obstacle in the way appeared to be the unsettled condition of Mr. Goodwin's estate, but nothing was accomplished before Mr. Bradbury's death. In all probability the larger portion of the Goodwin material is duplicated in the collections of Mr. Bradbury, since the sources of information were equally open to each, while both were able and industrious investigators, and enthusiastic in the work they had taken in hand.

The compiler has been able to fill up many important omissions in the way of names and dates, and has added a considerable number of families, though none prior to the sixth generation. The personal sketches and notes on allied families, are all the work of the compiler, and also the arrangement of the entire materials. In its incomplete state, the collections of Mr. Bradbury are meager in personal history, being confined mostly to names and dates, while that portion of his correspondence which has come into the compiler's hands, throws but little additional light upon the personnel of the family. This defect has been remedied so far as has been possible in the brief time allowed; but very many of Mr. Bradbury's correspondents have gone to join him, while their families have grown up, are scattered abroad and are not easily accessible.

As a whole, the work as published is unfinished, and in some directions only fragmentary, but it contains valuable material representing no little labor and expense, and some future representative of the family may be induced to utilize it for the production of a more complete and comprehensive work. It is not claimed by the compiler that the work is free from errors. Accuracy in a work of this kind would be a novelty indeed, but it is hoped that not more than the usual number of mistakes will be found herein. Such as it is, the work is respectfully submitted to the charitable and discriminating consideration of those who are interested in its contents.

BRADBURY MEMORIAL.

THE BRADBURY FAMILY IN ENGLAND.

THE name BRADBURY is of Saxon origin, and of the class styled "local." Its components are Brad, meaning broad, and Bury, which is variously defined, as a house, a hill, a domain, and a town. It is found variously spelled in English records, as Bradberrie, Bradberrye, Bradberry and Bradbury. The latter is the orthography adopted by the emigrant Thomas, and followed by his descendants generally. Unlike most local names, it never had a wide diffusion in England, and tracing it back through two centuries previous to the settlement of this country, it seems to have narrowed its limits and finally to have confined itself to a single parish in Derbyshire. The radiating point seems to have been Ollerset in the parish of Glossop, in the northerly part of the county of Derby. No mention of the name has been found prior to 1433, when there were living among the gentry at Ollerset, Roger de Bradbury and Rodolphus de Bradbury. The connection between these two persons is not known, nor the length of the time they had resided at Ollerset. But the interest of the American Bradburys centers in the line of which Robert is the head, and of whom but little is known. We know that he must have been born as early as 1400, that he lived at Ollerset, and that he married a daughter of Robert Davenport (written also Damporte), and that he had a son William, who settled at Braughing, county of Hertfordshire, and married Margaret, daughter of Geoffry Rokell, spelled also Rockhill. From him are said and believed to have sprung the Bradburys of Littlebury and Wickham Bonhunt, generally written at the present day, Wicken Bonant. They were a landed family, and from the Herald's Visitations and Inquisitions post mortem, quite easily traced, though the pedigrees that have been constructed and in some cases printed, are strangely unlike. In the report of the Visitation in Essex in 1558, William Bradbury, said to have married Jane or Joan, daughter of Sir John Fitzwilliam and widow of Thomas Bendish or Bendyshe, is placed at the head of the line; while in that of 1612, and also the pedigree published in the East Anglian in 1862, the head of the family is given to Sir Thomas Bradbury who was Lord-Mayor of London in 1509, and died while in office. The fallacy of both these pedigrees is shown in the fact that William Bradbury of Braughing was only ten years of age when Joan, widow of Thomas Bendish died, while Sir Thomas Bradbury died without issue, and William Bradbury, son of his brother Robert, was his heir. It also states what is probably correct, that William Bradbury was afterward of Littlebury, and "descended from ye Bradburys of Ollerset in ye West Country," etc.

In the Visitation of Hertfordshire in 1634. Robert Bradbury of Ollerset, county of Derby, is made the head of the family and the father of Sir Thomas. Now while absolute reliance cannot be placed upon pedigrees based upon the reports of these Visitations, yet it is the best and only evidence that can be obtained without original research, and is probably in the main correct. Robert Bradbury must have flourished in the time of King Henry the Sixth, and is the earliest ancestor of the family that can be relied upon with any degree of certainty. The pedigree here given is based upon the reports of the several Herald's Visitations, upon probate records and other public documents, and must be taken for what it is worth. The late Captain William F. Goodwin, whose mother was a Bradbury, employed Miss Harriet Bainbridge, then considered a reliable English genealogist, to inquire into the Bradbury pedigree, and she furnished him with one which she claimed was the result of her own original investigation, but which is now known to be incorrect in several essential points. There are professional genealogists in England who will write up a pedigree and furnish a coat of arms for any one who is able and willing to pay for them, and their customers are, for the most part, Americans. There are doubtless those who do honest work, but a majority of them are cheats, and fill their orders without regard to facts.

The branch of the Bradbury family from which the New England family claim their descent, settled at Wicken Bonant in the county of Essex, about the year 1560, and a brief sketch of this parish is compiled largely from the number of the East Anglian, already referred to, and published in London in July, 1862. This number not only gives an account of the parish, but gives pedigrees of the Barlee and Bradbury families, the latter of which, so far as it appears to be correct, is made the basis of the pedigrees here given of the English families of Bradbury. The parish of Wicken Bonant is small, containing only eight hundred and forty-one acres, and less than two hundred persons. It lies in one of those long, winding valleys leading up to the backbone of the high ground which parts the tributaries of the Lea and the Cam. The subsoil is of chalk which, with occasional heads of gravel, crops up to the surface in the lower grounds. The uplands of this and the surrounding parishes are overlaid with a strong clay of considerable depth, which renders the air cold and damp, and considerably retards agricultural operations. A winter brook, which rapidly floods after rain, rises in the adjoining parish of Arkesden, to which it gives a name, and passing through the whole length of the parish it meets with some copious springs in the meadows adjoining Newport, and becomes a tributary of the Cam.

In ancient times the parish of Wicken was equally divided between wood and arable land. From Doomsday-book it appears that it then contained four carucate, and as much arable land as four ploughs would till in a year, beside wood for one hundred hogs. At the present time there is hardly any wood remaining, and but little pasture. The name has had various spellings. In Domesday-book it is called Wica. In the court rolls of the Hall in the time of Edward the Second, it is called Wykes, and half a century after it was called Wyken. These are doubtless variations of Wickham which are still retained in official documents. The addition of Bonhunt, from one of the manors of the parish, is to distinguish it from Wickham St. Paul and Wickham Bishops, both of which are in the same county of Essex. From the earliest times there appear to have been two manors, that of Wicken or Wickham, and that of Bonhunt or Bonant. Both of these are mentioned in Domesday-book. They were united in the sixteenth century, and since then have been reckoned as one. In Domesday-book, the Hall is given as in the possession of Gilbert, son of Thorold, and after him in that of Sexius, a freeman. In 1446, it was in the Barlee family and was sold by William Barlee to Robert Chatterton, Esq., who in turn sold it to the Bradbury family. Precisely when this transfer was made is not known, but Matthew Bradbury was Lord of Wicken at the time of his death in 1587, and probably bought it in 1557. It continued in the hands of the Bradburys through several generations and until the early part of the eighteenth century, when, in default of male issue, Dorinda, daughter of Matthew Bradbury, Esq., carried it in marriage to Joseph Sharpe, Esq. He sold, with the exception of what is now called the Brick House, with about a hundred acres of land to John Hetherington, Esq., who sold it to Thomas Coventry, Esq., who in the beginning of this century sold to Joseph Smith, Esq., of Shortgrove in Newport, and in 1862 it was in possession of his son William Charles Smith, Esq., of Shortgrove.

The Brick House, as it has always been called, was built by William Bradbury, who died in 1622, for his son Wymond Bradbury, and continued in occupation of the second-branch family till, at their extinction, it reverted with the Hall to Mr. Sharpe. When he sold the Hall, it was his intention to have kept and resided in the Brick House, but the mortgages upon the Hall proving to be beyond its value, Brick House together with its one hundred acres was mortgaged for twelve hundred pounds in order to carry out the sale of the remainder. In consequence of this arrangement Brick House was held under mortgage by John Martin, Esq., banker of Lombard street, and it continued to be so held by his son and grandson till Joseph Martin came into possession of it in the early part of the present century. Brick House is of a picturesque structure with ornamental gables, and was formerly adorned with statues of which some remain in a mutilated state. The arms of Bradbury are still over the door. The Hall, now a farm-house, adjoins the church. It is a timber structure of the early part of the sixteenth century, with picturesque chimneys. With the Hall was once another farm called the Wood, but now it is known as Howland's farm, from a tenant who occupied it.

The manor house of Bonhunt is situated half a mile eastward of the church. We first hear of it in Doomsday-book, when it was in possession of a freeman named Aluric, and afterward in the hands of a man named Saisseline. No farther mention is made of it until 1341, when John Flambarde of Bonhunt had a license to endow St. Leonard's Hospital at Newport, that the brethren might find him a chaplain to say mass for his soul within his manor of Bonhunt, in the chapel of St. Helen. After John Flambarde, the manor of Bonhunt came to the Greene family, and continued with them from 1437 till 1580, when it was purchased by the Bradburys. They soon after sold it to the Nightingales of Newport, from whom it passed to the Turners of Quendon. In 1717, John Turner, Esq., sold it with Quendon Hall, to John Maurice, Esq., of Walthamstow, whose widow sold it to Joseph Cranmer, Esq. From Cranmer it passed to his son Henry, and subsequently it came to Henry Webb, Esq., at whose death it reverted to the representative of the Cranmers.

The church at Wicken Bonant, called St. Margaret, originally dated from the middle of the eleventh century, but the only relic of this date now remaining is a plain and square, massive Norman font, standing on a central and four corner pillars, also square. Toward the close of the twelfth century, the church was in great part rebuilt. With the exception of a porch, partly rubble and partly wood of the sixteenth century, nothing more appears to have been done to the church till early in the eighteenth century, when the tower was removed, and a small wooden eot placed over the west gable of the nave to hold the bells. The church was restored and in part rebuilt in 1858-59, at the cost of John Sperling, Esq., of Kensington, the patron of the living. At present the church consists of the original English chancel restored, to which a new nave, south porch and tower have been added in the decorative style. The whole of the windows are of painted glass, and represent mostly Bible characters. The nave, which is filled with open seats, has a stone pulpit, while the Norman font occupies its ancient place, and has been raised two steps and supplied with a cover. Externally, the belfry stage of the tower is very beautiful, having eight large traceried windows. The whole is capped by a stone broach spire, rising to a height of over ninety feet. In the church are no monuments earlier than those of the Bradburys, which are as follows :—

I. A monument against the north wall of the chancel, surmounted by the arms of Bradbury, inscribed :—

“Beneath this stone lies interred the body of John Bradbury, of the Inner Temple, Gent, eldest son of Francis Bradbury, Esq., Gent, and Anne his wife, who departed this life June 11-1693, aged 25 years.”

“Beneath this stone lies interred the body of Francis Bradbury of Clifford’s Inn, Gent, second son of Francis Bradbury, Gent, and Anne his wife, who departed this life June 15, A. D. 1695, aged 24 years.”

“Beneath this stone lies interred the body of Anne Barrell, wife of John Barrell of Clifford’s Inn, Gent, and daughter of Francis Bradbury and Anne his wife, who departed this life January 21-1677, aged 26 years.”

II. On an elaborately sculptured monument by Scheemakers, against the south wall of the chancel, also with the arms of Bradbury:—

“Near this place lies buried the body of that hopeful youth, John James Bradbury, Gent, the son and heir apparent of Matthew Bradbury of this parish, Esquire, and Mary his wife, who departed this life Nov. 27, 1731, aged 10 years.”

III. On a monument within the tower, is the following:—

“Wentworthius Bradbury, Suffolciensis, Hujus Ecclesiæ Rector Necnon vicarius de Arkesden, et Anna uxor ejus precharissima obit, illa 1795 {		95.

ille 1764 {	{ æt. {	82

Utrosque ultimus de pulvere suo dies in gloriam simul evehet.”

IV. On a flat stone may be seen the following inscription:—

“Sub hoc lapide æpulchrum jacet corpus Johannis Bradbury filii natu secundi Wentworthi Bradbury hujus ecclesiæ Rectoris, qui cum morbo insanibili viz, epilepsia diu laborasset morti tandem quiete se resignavit obiit Sept. 7 anno salutis 1758, ætatis 31, mortis ab hasta nec juvenes tuti.”

V. The following inscription in Latin is found on another flat stone:—

“Quod mortale fuit Annæ filię charissimę Wentworthi Bradbury hujus ecclesiæ Rectoris et Annæ uxoris ejus sub hoc lapide depositum est anno ætatis 23 anima pia voluntati dei libenter submissa corpus reliquit viceessimo die Septembris, anno domini, 1749. Multis illa bonis flebilis occidit, nullis flebilis quam parentibus.”

There are other monuments within the church, all of more recent date than the above, and represent the families that succeeded the Bradburys at Wicken Bonant. A monument to James Pollitt, Esq., and Hannah his wife, who was a sister of Mrs. Joseph Martin, are among others.

The Registers of the church begin in 1598, and with the exception of a few years at the beginning of the present century, have been well kept. They contain nothing remarkable except the dates of the Bradbury family, which afford material aid in arranging their pedigree. Among other entries the following is of interest:—

Mr. William Bradbury, Lord of Wicken, died upon St. Andrews daie at night, about xij of the clock, November ye last, and was buried uppon ye seconde of December, 1622, and was laid under the high altar in ye chancel on ye southe side whose funerals was kept after uppon Thursdaie after the twelfthe, with the manie mourners to ye number of thirtie. Tho. Wadeson, Rector, preached.

The Rectory was originally on the north side of the churchyard, but having been burned down in 1590, it was not rebuilt on that side, but a house and two acres of freehold ground belonging to the Bradbury family, were granted to the Rectory by way of exchange. This parish was within the diocese of London, and distant therefrom about forty-five miles.

The following list embraces the Rectors and Patrons of Wicken Bonant parish from A. D. 1400 to the time of Wentworth Bradbury's Rectorship in 1720 :—

In 1868, Mr. John Merrill Bradbury of Ipswich, who with his wife was making the tour of Europe, visited Wicken Bonant where his emigrant ancestor is supposed to have been born. Concerning this visit Mr. Bradbury wrote to a friend: "My visit to Wicken Bonant was the pleasantest experience I have had in England. The rector was away on a vacation, and I did not therefore see the registers, which would have been a gratification, and I was indebted to the churchwarden's wife for admission to the church. It is a small church and the addition made to it by Mr. Sperling, the late rector, has not improved its proportions. Of course the surfaces, internal and external, are new, and there is nothing to remind the visitor of its age, except a mural tablet in the chancel, date of 1697, and the square font standing on five square supports which is a veritable piece of antiquity. Undoubtedly Thomas Bradbury, supposed to be the emigrant, was baptized at this font.

"From the church our conductress guided us to the Brick House, where we were most cordially received by its proprietor, Mr. John Pollitt. He took us through the old mansion, pointing out the alterations and additions which have been made, giving us its traditions and history. He also showed us over the grounds which are well laid out and nicely kept, and took us to points where we could get the best views of the house and its surroundings, as well as the village generally."

A letter written in London in 1870, says: "The Bradbury Brick House at Wicken Bonant is forty-five miles from London. It was built by William Bradbury who died in 1622, for his second son Wymond Bradbury, and it continued in that branch until it became extinct. Mr. Joseph Martin then owned it until the last two years. At his demise it went to his son-in-law, Mr. John Pollitt, who now resides there."

Mrs. C. W. Bradbury of Winchester, Mass., has visited the ancestral home of the Bradburys at Wicken Bonant and writes: "By the kind hospitality of the occupant of the mansion called the Brick House, I made my headquarters there for the day, while taking excursions to the parish church and to the church at Clavering. But my stay was limited to one day, and that day was in the month of November, 1877. Darkness filled every corner, and I had to trust to hearsay as to what was inscribed on the monumental slabs. I was able to obtain copies of the publication called the East Anglian, devoted to antiquities, folk-lore, etc., in which is an article written by the sometime rector, describing the church, and giving some account of the Bradbury family."

The parish of Wicken Bonant just briefly described, is supposed to have been the birth-place of that Thomas Bradbury who, while a young man, came to the District of Maine as early as 1634, as the agent of Sir Ferdinando Gorges, and is the common ancestor of the Bradburys of New England. It would be highly gratifying to be able to state positively that Thomas Bradbury who came to New England was the identical Thomas who was baptized in the ancient Norman font, in the church of St. Margaret, in the parish of Wicken Bonant, February 28, 1610-11. It is true, the evidence is such as to remove all reasonable doubt, and such as to give great interest in the little parish of Wicken in unusual name, and the only person found so named in the Bradbury pedigrees that have been collected. Now it is a fact that Thomas of York and Salisbury named his first-born son Wymond, and it is also a fact that it was the usual practice in those days to name the oldest son either for his father or grandfather. If he did not name the child for his father, for whom did he name him? Not for any of the mother's relatives, and so far as the compiler is aware this name at that time had been borne by no other person in New England. The mother of Thomas of Wicken was named Elisabeth, and she had children William, Thomas, Jane and Ann, names all of which reappear in the family of Thomas Bradbury of Agamenticus and Salisbury. While all this does not furnish positive evidence of the identity of the two persons, it approaches so nearly to it that the compiler fully believes it, and feels himself justified in assuming it to be so.

It has already been stated that in the pedigrees published in England, based upon the Herald's Visitations, there are several discrepancies, and of course some mistakes. The pedigree is certainly wrong which makes Sir Thomas Bradbury of London the head of the family, for in his will, a copy of which is herewith printed, no mention is made of any children, and the only relatives bearing his name in the entire document are Henry and William Bradbury, the latter of whom he calls "cosen," and who inherited a large portion of his estate. It is known that this Henry and William were the sons of his brother Robert. He also mentions his sister, Mrs. Jocelyn.

From the Herald's Visitations in Derbyshire in 1569, 1611 and 1631, the following Bradbury pedigree is drawn :—

EDWARD¹ BRADBURY, of Ollersett in the county of Derby, married Eleanor, daughter of Thomas Shakerly of Longson.

Children :

- i Ottiwell², of Ollersett, m. Agnes Beard.
- ii Robert², second son.

OTTIWELL² BRADBURY, son and heir of the preceding, married Agnes, daughter of Nicholas Beard of Beard.

Children :

- i Ralph³, d. without issue.
- ii Nicholas³, m. Katherine Warren.
- iii John³, d. without issue.
- iv Anne³, m. Robert Downes.

NICHOLAS³ BRADBURY, son and heir of the preceding, married Katherine, daughter of Lawrence Warren of Poynton, in Cheshire.

Children :

- i Robert⁴, m. Elizabeth Bradbury.
- ii John⁴.
- iii Ottiwell⁴.
- iv Lawrence⁴, m. daughter of Reynold Braye.
- v Nicholas⁴.
- vi Edmund⁴.
- vii Alice⁴.
- viii Anne⁴.

ROBERT⁴ BRADBURY, of Ollersett, son and heir of the preceding, married Elizabeth, daughter of Ralph Bradbury of Bankhead.

Children :

- i Nicholas⁵, m. Mary Tettowe.
- ii Francis⁵.
- iii Alice⁵.
- iv Katherine⁵.

NICHOLAS⁵ BRADBURY, of Ollersett, son and heir of the preceding, living in 1611, married Mary, daughter of Lawrence Tettowe in Lancashire.

Children :

- i Edmund⁶, m. Mary West.
- ii Katherine⁶, m. Robert Ridge of Highgate.
- iii Jane⁶.
- iv Anne⁶.
- v Elizabeth⁶.
- vi Mary⁶.
- vii Margaret⁶.

EDMUND⁶ BRADBURY, son and heir of the preceding, married Mary, daughter of William West of Firbeck in Yorkshire.

Children :

- i Edmund⁷, b. 1586, m. Dorothy Bowdon.
- ii John⁷.
- iii Mary⁷.
- iv Elizabeth⁷.

EDMUND⁷ BRADBURY, son and heir of the preceding, married Dorothy, widow of Thomas Bowdon of Derbyshire.

Children :

- i Edmand⁸, b. 1612.
- ii Nicholas⁸, b. 1614.
- iii William⁸, b. 1618.
- iv John⁸, b. 1624.
- v Jordaine⁸, b. 1630.

No dates are given in the foregoing, except in one instance in the seventh generation, and in case of the eighth, but eight generations must represent a period of about two hundred years, which would take us back to the last of the thirteenth century, or the first of the fourteenth, as the date of the birth of the first Edward. It is quite possible that the Robert² Bradbury, named as the second son of Edward, may have been the one placed at the head of the family in the pedigree which follows and which has been carefully compiled from Heralds' Visitations, Inquisitions post mortem, wills, parish registers, and every other available original document.

Absolute perfection is by no means claimed for it, but the compiler believes it to be as nearly so as it is possible to have it. It is made up from the minutes of the late John Merrill Bradbury of Ipswich, and is the result of personal research in the archives of various parts of England, covering a period of several years. He was a painstaking searcher and took nothing for granted until proved.

ROBERT¹ BRADBURY, of Ollersett in Derbyshire, married a daughter of Robert Davenport (copied also Dampont), of Branhall, county of Chester. She was buried at Stansted, Mount Fitchet, county of Essex.

Children:

- 1 i William², of Braughing, m. Margaret Rockbill.
- 2 ii Thomas², inducted Rector of Meesden*, county Essex, Feb. 6, 1486, d. 1513.

*The orthography of this word is somewhat in doubt. It is hardly ever found spelled twice alike, but generally so nearly so that it is easily recognized.

WILLIAM² BRADBURY (Robert¹), of Braughing, in Hertfordshire, Patron of the church of Westmill in Hertfordshire in 1462, married Margaret, daughter and co-heir of Geoffry Rockhill of Wormingford, county Essex.

Children :

- 3 i Robert³, m. Anne Wyant. (?)
- 4 ii Thomas³, Sir Thomas, Kt., Sheriff of London, 1498, Lord Mayor, 1509, Lord of several manors in Hertfordshire, Essex, and Kent, married Joan, daughter of Denis and Elisabeth Leach, whose first husband by whom she had issue, was Thomas Bodley of Devonshire. She died in 1530. Sir Thomas made his will Jan. 9, 1509-10, while Lord Mayor, and the same was proved Feb. 27 following. He and also his wife were buried in St. Stephen's church, Coleman street, London. He held the manor Stansted Mount Fitchet and mentions that his grandmother was there buried. He had no children, and his nephew William, son of his brother Robert Bradbury, whom he calls "cosen," succeeded to a portion of his estate.
- 5 iii George³, was a London merchant. His will is dated June 6, 1506, and proved June 28 following, by his brother Henry. Wills lauds and tenements in London, in Ware, county Herts, and Lamborne, county Essex. His sister, Phillippa Jocelyn, is made heir and after her, her daughter Johane Hannys (perhaps daughter by her former husband).
- 6 iv Henry³, executor of his brother George's will, and named in the will of his brother Sir Thomas. Will dated Feb. 13, 1532-33, and proved Jan. 23, 1533-34. His cousin Mary Woddam, wife of William Woddam, citizen and merchant tailor of London, is made executrix and residuary legatee.

- 7 v Phillippa³, named in the wills of her brothers Thomas and George, married and was the second wife of John Jocelyn of High Roding, county Essex. He died July 14, 1525. His will states that William Bradbury, cousin and heir of Sir Thomas, was the son of Robert Bradbury.

ROBERT³ BRADBURY (William², Robert¹), named in the inquisition of his brother, Sir Thomas, then dead (supposed Justice of the Assize, Isle of Ely, Feb. 4, 1486, witness to will of George Nicholl of Littlebury, Dec. 2, 1484, died 1489, and buried in church of Grey Friars, London), is said to have married Anne, daughter of Infans Wyant. (See note.)

Children :

- 8 i William⁴, b. 1480, m. Joan (Fitzwilliams) Bendish.*

*We have followed the Herald's Visitation here, but there is evidently a serious mistake in their reckoning. Thomas Bendish died about 1477, and his wife Joan or Jane had deceased prior to May 4, 1490, at which date her inquisition post mortem was held, when it was found that Richard Bendish, grandson of Thomas, aged five years, was heir to her estate. She evidently belonged to a generation back of William Bradbury, and if she married a Bradbury, as she is reported, it must have been his father, Robert. When Symonds made his collection of epitaphs in Essex in 1639, there was in the church at Clavering a stone bearing the inscription in Latin: "Pray for the souls of William Bradbury, Esq., and wife Elisabeth," which Elisabeth died August 13, 1536. William Bradbury died later, after his removal to Littlebury, and was buried there. This would show that his wife's name was Elisabeth. The Herald's Visitations do not give the name of the wife of Robert Bradbury, and unfortunately he left no will, and there was no inquisition post mortem to solve the mystery. In some of the pedigrees he is said to have married Anne Wyant, and we have followed it, but with this explanation. His son having been assigned a wife that belonged to the generation of the father, it is quite probable that the Visitation has made a mistake of one generation, and that Jane (Fitzwilliam) Bendish was the mother and not the wife of William Bradbury⁴.

This closes our brief and somewhat fragmentary account of the Bradbury family of England. Much of it is irrelevant to the line of Thomas, the emigrant, but it is not without interest as showing the standing of the family in England several centuries ago. The Bradburys, or many of them, were large land owners, and consequently men of influence and standing in both church and state. The lord mayor, who had been a distinguished London merchant and was possessed of great wealth, was a devoted Catholic, as were all the chief men and women of England at that date. Some of the provisions of his will, which appear ridiculous in the light of the nineteenth century, were in perfect keeping with the superstitions of the age in which he lived. The wording and provisions of the will of William Bradbury, father of Wymond, executed little more than a century later, are in strong contrast with those expressed in the will of Sir Thomas, and go to emphasize the great changes in religious sentiment which a hundred years had wrought. The wording in William Bradbury's will is quite similar to that in the will of his grandson Thomas, which was probated in Salem, Essex County, Mass., near the close of the same century.

The compiler desires not to be held responsible for errors in dates or for other discrepancies which may be found in the foregoing extracts from English archives. Doubtless there are errors in the original records, and others may have been made in copying. In the will of Sir Thomas Bradbury, and in other ancient documents, care has been taken to follow the original orthography, which somewhat obscures the meaning to the modern reader, unacquainted with ancient forms of expression and ancient modes of spelling. The compiler will only add that these documents are printed in the manner and form in which they came into his hands.

We are now ready to take up the lines of which Thomas Bradbury, the early settler in Salisbury, Mass., is the head, and in order that his English descent may be clearly understood, it is epitomized below as follows:—

- ROBERT¹, of Ollersett, county of Derby.
- WILLIAM², of Braughing, county of Hertfordshire.
- ROBERT³, of Littlebury, county of Essex.
- WILLIAM⁴, of Littlebury, county of Essex.
- MATTHEW⁵, of Wicken Bonant, county of Essex.
- WILLIAM⁶, of Wicken Bonant, county of Essex.
- WYMOND⁷, of the "Brick House," Wicken Bonant.
- THOMAS⁸, of Salisbury, Mass.

DECENDANTS OF THOMAS BRADBURY.

FIRST GENERATION.

THOMAS¹ BRADBURY, (THOMAS⁸ in the English pedigree), second son of Wymond and Elizabeth (Gill nee Whitgift) Bradbury, was baptized at Wicken-Bonant, Essex County, England, on the last day of February, 1610-11, as appears by the parish register. Early in 1634 he appeared at Agamenticus, now York, Me., as the agent or steward of Sir Ferdinando Gorges, the proprietor of the Province of Maine. He was one of the original proprietors of the ancient town of Salisbury, Mass., one of the earliest settlers there, and was one of the foremost citizens there for a period of more than half a century. He was made a freeman in 1640, held at various times the offices of schoolmaster of the town, town clerk, justice of the peace, deputy to the general court, county recorder, associate judge and captain of the military company, and always filled these important positions with credit to himself and satisfaction to the public. For a recording officer he was peculiarly fitted by his tastes and acquirements. He wrote an easy, graceful and legible hand, and had a clear and concise style of expression. His chirography may still be seen in numerous official documents on file in the archives of Essex County, Mass., and also at Exeter, N. H. In 1636, Mr. Bradbury became a grantee of Salisbury, and that year married Mary, daughter of John and Judith Perkins, of Ipswich.* In the days of the witchcraft delusion, she was tried as a witch and convicted, but escaped punishment. Mr. Bradbury died March 16, 1695, and his widow died Dec. 20, 1700.

THOMAS BRADBURY'S WILL.

In the name of God, amen. The fourteenth day of February, in the year of our Lord one thousand six hundred and ninety-four. I Thomas Bradbury of the town of Salisbury in the Province of the Massachusetts Bay in New England, aged, weak in body, but of good and perfect memory, thanks be to God Almighty for the same, do make, ordain, constitute and declare this my last will and testament in manner and form following: revoking and annulling by these presents, all and every testament or testaments, will or wills heretofore by me made and declared either by word or by writing, and this to be taken only for my last will and testament and none other: And being penitent for my sins, I

*Mary Perkins was the daughter of John Perkins, the elder, of Ipswich, who was born in Gloucestershire, England, in 1590, embarked with his family at Bristol, England, in the ship Lyon, Capt. Wm. Pearce, master, and after a very tempestuous voyage arrived in Boston, Feb. 5, 1631. Roger Williams was a fellow-passenger. Mr. Perkins was admitted freeman, May 18, 1631, remained in Boston two years, and then removed to Ipswich. He was representative to the General Court in 1636, held various town offices, and was a man of respectability. He owned a large island at the mouth of Ipswich river, which was known as Perkins' Island. He died previous to 1655, at the age of 64 years. By wife Judith he had six children, viz.: John² m. Elizabeth —, Thomas² m. Phebe Gould, Elizabeth² m. William Sargent, Mary² m. Thomas Bradbury, Lydia² m. — Bennet, and Jacob, b. 1624, m. Elizabeth, who died in Ipswich, Feb. 12, 1685. John Perkins has a numerous posterity.

give and commit my soul unto Almighty God my Saviour and my redeemer in whom by the merits of Jesus Christ I trust and believe it assuredly to be saved; and my body to be buried in such place where it shall please my executors to appoint: And for the settling of my temporal estate, such goods, chattels and debts as it hath pleased God far above my deserts to bestow upon me, I do order, give and dispose the same in manner and form following, that is to say: first, I will that all those debts and duties that I owe in right and conscience to any manner of person or persons in favor, shall be well and truly contented and paid or ordained to be paid within convenient time after my decease. So by my executor or executrixes hereafter named, Item. I give and bequeath unto my grandchildren, Thomas Bradbury and Jacob Bradbury, all my housing and lands which I have now situate, lying and being within the bounds of Salisbury aforenamed and which arable lands and meadow marsh, pasture and swamp lands, or of what sort soever they be, with all rights privileges and commonages thereunto belonging or any ways appertaining; unto them my said grandchildren and the heirs of their body lawfully begotten; the given and bequeathed and demised to be equally divided between my said grandchildren Thomas and Jacob, and not to be disposed by selling, letting or any other ways improved, but each to other, and my said grandchildren shall pay unto their Aunt True fourteen pounds, each of them in good pay within one year after they come to the age of one and twenty years. As also my said grandchildren shall acquit and discharge their brother, William Bradbury from all orders of court concerning the division of their father's estate; also my will is that my said grandchildren Thomas and Jacob shall pay unto their grandmother, twenty bushels of corn yearly, such as she shall have need of during her natural life and to find her sufficient wood, winter and summer cut and fit; as also winter and summer meat for two cows, all during her natural life or widowhood: and my will is that my wife what part of my house she thinks meet to require unto the half of it, shall have during her widowhood or natural life, unto her own particular use if she thinks good to require the same. Item. I give and bequeath unto my grandchild Thomas Bradbury all my implements of husbandry and also my young colt. Item. I give and bequeath unto my daughter Mary Stanyan twenty shillings she having had her portion upon her marriage. Item. I give and bequeath unto my daughter Jane True ten pounds to be made in good pay within one year after my decease. Item. I give to my grandchild Elizabeth Buss five pounds in good pay. Also my will is that five pounds be delivered to the selectmen in good pay, then in being of said town of Salisbury by them to be disposed to such of the poor as they judge to have most need of it. And lastly, I do ordain and appoint my dearly and well beloved wife, Mary Bradbury and my dearly and well beloved daughter Judith Moody my executors or executrixes to this my last will and testament.

In witness whereof I have hereunto set my hand and seal the day and year above named.

Tho: Bradbury Seal.

Signed sealed and declared to be the last will and testament of Mr. Thomas Bradbury in ye presence of
WILLIAM BUSWELL,
ISAAC BUSWELL,
WILLIAM BUSWELL, JR.

Mr. Bradbury was appointed first clerk of the writs in Salisbury in 1641. In 1651, he was chosen a deputy to the General Court, and again successively in 1652, 1656, 1657, 1660, 1661 and 1666. In 1654, 1656 and 1658, and 1659, he was appointed on various committees to settle differences concerning lands, to fix boundaries and locate grants. As agent for Gorges, he executed some of the earliest deeds recorded in the York County records. An indenture made the 5th day of

May, 1636, reads as follows: "Thomas Bradbury, Gent., now agent of Sir Ferdinando Gorges, Knight, confirmed unto Edward Johnson for the proper use of John Treworgy of Dartmouth, merchant, the use of five hundred acres of land, conditioned to pay annually one hundred of merchantable cod dried and well conditioned, as an acknowledgement of the royalty of Sir Ferdinando Gorges, Knight, to Sir Ferdinando Gorges or his assigns, at or upon the Feast of Saint Michaels, the Arch High Angel." This sufficiently establishes the fact that Mr. Bradbury was the recognized agent of the proprietor of the Province of Maine, granted together with New Hampshire, by royal patent in 1622, to Gorges and Mason, and taken as his portion by Gorges, in 1629.

During the trial of Mrs. Bradbury, July 28, 1692, upon the charge of being a witch, her aged and devoted husband bore testimony to her high character and the purity of her life in the following terms: "Concerning my beloved wife, Mary Bradbury, this is what I have to say: We have been married fifty-five years, and she hath been a loving and faithful wife unto me unto this day. She hath been wonderful laborious, diligent and industrious in her place and employment about the bringing up of our family which have been eleven children of our own, and four grandchildren. She was both prudent and provident, of a cheerful spirit, liberal and charitable. She being now very aged and weak, and grieved under afflictions, may not be able to speak much for herself, not being so free of speech as some others might be. I hope her life and conversation among her neighbors has been such as gives a better or more real testimony than can be expressed by words."

One hundred and eighteen of Mrs. Bradbury's acquaintances, consisting of both men and women, gave evidence as follows: "We the subscribers do testify that it (her life) was such as becomes the gospel. She was a lover of the ministry in all appearance, and a diligent attender upon God's holy ordinances, being of a courteous and peaceable disposition and carriage, neither did any of us (some of whom have lived in the town with her above fifty years), ever hear or know that she had any difference or falling out with any of her neighbors, man, woman or child, but was always ready and willing to do for them what lay in her power, night and day, though with hazard of her health and other danger. More might be spoken in her commendation, but this for the present."

To the charge of witchcraft, Mrs. Bradbury pleaded not guilty, and this is what she said in her own behalf: "I am wholly innocent of any such wickedness through the goodness of God who has kept me hitherto. I am the servant of Jesus Christ and have given myself up to him as my only Lord and Saviour, and to the diligent attendance upon him in all his holy ordinances, in utter contempt and defiance of the devil and all his works as horrid and detestable, and have accordingly endeavored to frame my life and conversation according to the rules of His holy word, and in that faith and practice, resolve by the help and assistance of God to continue to my life's end. For the truth of what I say, I humbly refer myself to my brethren and neighbors that know me, and unto the searcher of all hearts for the truth and uprightness of my heart therein (human frailties and unavoidable excepted), of which I bitterly complain every day."

Rev. James Allen testified as follows: "I, having lived nine years at Salisbury in the work of the ministry, and now four years in the office of pastor, to my best notice and observation of Mrs. Bradbury, she hath lived according to the rules of the gospel amongst us; was a constant attender upon the ministry of the word, and all the ordinances of the gospel; full of works of charity and mercy to the sick and poor; neither have I seen or heard anything of her unbecoming the profession of the gospel."

Upham, the historian of the Salem witchcraft, says of Mrs. Bradbury: "The position as well as character and age of Mary (Perkins) Bradbury, entitled her to the highest consideration in the structure of society at the time. This is recognized in the title 'Mrs.' uniformly given her. She had been noted through life for energy, business capacity, and influence; her husband Thomas Bradbury had been a prominent character in the colony for more than fifty years."

The character of the evidence used against Mrs. Bradbury may be judged by the following: "The deposition of William Carr, who testifieth and saith that, about thirteen years ago, presently after some difference that happened to be between my honored father, Mr. George Carr, and Mrs. Bradbury, the prisoner at the bar, upon a Sabbath at noon, as we were riding home by the house of Capt. Thomas Bradbury, I saw Mrs. Bradbury go into her gate, turn the corner of, and immediately there darted out of her gate a blue boar, and darted at my father's horse's legs which made him stumble; but I saw it no more. And my father said, 'Boys, what did you see?' And we both said, 'A blue boar.'"

This venerable woman was about eighty years of age when she was arrested for the crime of bewitching John Carr so that he became crazed and prematurely died. The testimony of William Carr at the trial, went to show that his brother fell in love with Jemima True, but the proposed match being opposed and broken off by the father of young Carr, on account of his youth, he became melancholy and at times insane. He further stated that he was with his brother and cared for him in his last sickness, and that his brother died peaceably and quietly, and never spoke anything to the harm of Mrs. Bradbury or anybody else. Mrs. Bradbury was defended by Major Robert Pike. She was convicted with four others who were executed September, 1692. Mrs. Bradbury escaped punishment, but by what means, does not appear.*

*The Salem witchcraft craze was one of the most remarkable delusions on record. It affected all classes of the community, and was a sad commentary on the intelligence of the period as well as a plague spot upon the ermine of the judiciary. It broke out in the year 1692, and within the space of about three months nineteen persons, including Rev. George Burroughs, formerly minister at Casco Bay, and later of Salem Village, were tried, convicted on the most ridiculous testimony, and executed on "Gallows Hill," in Salem. The principal charge against Mr. Burroughs was his great physical strength. The great Cotton Mather was present on horseback and consented to his death, and while he was suspended in mid-air, the great divine harrangued the people and congratulated them on the good work accomplished. It was pre-eminently a reign of terror. No one felt safe. The most eminent citizens of Essex County, noted for intelligence and lifelong piety, were arrested and dragged to prison, tried and condemned on the most unreliable evidence, and executed in the most brutal manner. Finally the imprisonments, torturings and executions rose to such a height as to be no longer endurable, and a sudden revulsion of feeling put a stop to the whole infamous business. There was no execution after September 22, and a general jail delivery of all the accused took place the May following. It seems strange that Gov. Phips should permit the persecution to proceed as far as it did. He alone had the power to nip the miserable business in the bud, but he showed no disposition to interfere to stay the judicial slaughter of innocents, until the bubble burst by its own tension.

*Caleb Moody, son of William, the emigrant who settled at Newbury, married first, Sara Pierce, and had issue. She died August 25, 1665, and he married Judith Bradbury, Nov. 9, 1665. The children by this marriage were Caleb, b. Sept. 9, 1668; Thomas, b. Oct. 20, 1668; Judith, b. Sept. 23, 1669, and died at Salisbury, January 28, 1679; Joshua, b. Nov. 3,

THIRD GENERATION.

WYMOND² BRADBURY (THOMAS¹) married Sarah, daughter of Robert and Sarah (Sanders) Pike†, May 7, 1661. He died April 7, 1669, on the Island of Nevis, in the West Indies. This is stated in a record made 1671; William, b. Dec. 15, 1673; Samuel, b. Jan. 4, 1676; he graduated at Harvard College, 1697, was ordained at York, Dec. 20, 1700, and died there Nov. 13, 1747; Mary, b. Oct. 23, 1678, and Judith, b. Feb. 12, 1683. Caleb Moody, senior, died Aug. 25, 1698, and his widow died January 24, 1700. Caleb Moody, junior, married Ruth Morse by whom he had eight children. His fifth child, Eleanor, b. October 17, 1700, married James Bridges of Andover, whose son Moody Bridges, married Naamah Frye, and was the father of Sarah Bridges, who married John Dean who was the father of Charles Dean who married Patience Tappan Kingsbury, and who was the father of John Ward Dean, A. M., the eminent historian and editor of the New England Genealogical Register. Moody Bridges also had a daughter Sarah Naamah Bridges, born Sept. 7, 1748, who married Jedediah Jewett of Exeter, N. H., and Pittston, Me., whose daughter, Martha Jewett, married James North, and was the mother of James William North, author of the History of Augusta.

*Rev. John Buss was the minister at Oyster River, now Durham, N. H. In 1694, his house was burned by the Indians and many valuable records destroyed. John Buss died in 1737 at a very advanced age. Elizabeth Buss, daughter of Rev. John and Elizabeth (Bradbury) Buss, married James Smith, who was the ancestor of Col. Thomas Westbrook Smith of Augusta, Me., whose daughter, Eliza Ann, became the wife of Hon. James W. Bradbury.

†Robert Pike was one of the most remarkable men of the period in which he lived. Born in England in 1616, he came to Salem, Mass., with his father's family when nineteen years of age. He was one of the founders of Salisbury, Mass., and resided there from 1639 to the time of by his father and now in Essex County archives, in Salem, Mass. Sarah, widow of Wymond Bradbury, married, second, John Stockman, who died December 10, 1686, and by him she had five children. The children of Wymond and Sarah Bradbury were:—

13 i Sarah^s, b. Feb. 26, 1662, m. Abraham Merrill.

14 ii Ann^s, b. Nov. 22, 1666, m. Jeremy Allen.

15 iii Wymond^s, b. May 13, 1669, m. Mariah Cotton.

his death in 1707, aged 91 years. He married Sarah Sanders and had a family of eight children, one of whom was Rev. John Pike, minister in Dover. His biographer says of Robert Pike that he was engaged in three conspicuous controversies during his life. The first was his arraignment by the General Court in 1653, for his hostility to the persecution of the Quakers. The second was his resistance to the dogmatic authority of the clergy, in the person of his pastor, Rev. John Wheelwright. The third was his bitter opposition to the witchcraft prosecutions in 1692. In all of these controversies, Mr. Pike stood practically alone. He was a century in advance of his time, and a century more than vindicated his advanced positions. The historian of the Salem witchcraft delusion says that "not a voice comes down to us of deliberate and effective hostility to the movement, except that of Robert Pike in his cool, close and powerful argumentative appeal to the judges who were trying the witchcraft cases. It stands out against the deep blackness of those proceedings like a pillar of light upon a starless midnight sky." Confronting the judges stood this sturdy old man, his head whitened with the frosts of seventy-six winters, and demonstrated that there was no legal way of convicting a witch, even according to the laws and beliefs of those times. It required no small amount of courage for him to take the stand he did against the opinions of the highest judicial tribunal in the province, when no one was considered safe from the charge of having dealings with the evil one, and he himself might be the next one arraigned. But having the courage of his convictions he rose to the demands of the situation and proclaimed his opposition by a formal and thorough exposition. The great merit of this position, so far as it has come down to us, belongs solely to him, and no man of his century is entitled to greater honor. He was a leading man in Salisbury, often associated with Thomas Bradbury on committees and commissions for the transaction of public business. At the age of thirty-two he was chosen a WILLIAM² BRADBURY (Thomas¹), married Rebecca, widow of Samuel Maverick, jr., and daughter of Rev. John Wheelwright. Her first husband died at Boston, March 10, 1664. Samuel Maverick, jr., was the son of the king's commissioner; Rev. John Wheelwright was the founder of Exeter, N. H., and his wife Mary was daughter of Edward Hutchinson, and granddaughter of John Hutchinson, mayor of London, England. William Bradbury died Dec. 4, 1678, and his widow died Dec. 20, 1678. Their children were brought up by their grandparents, and two of them are mentioned in his will.

- 18 iii Jacob³, b. Sept. 1, 1677; m. Elizabeth Stockman.

member of the General Court, and had a much longer service in that capacity and as councilor and assistant, than any of his contemporaries. He was well educated, wrote a fine, flowing hand, apparently with great facility, and was an eloquent and forcible speaker. He defended Mrs. Mary Bradbury on her trial for witchcraft, but all eloquence and argument were lost upon the infatuated judges and jury. It is a marvel how Mr. Pike breasted the storm, when any resistance to the popular demand was deemed evidence of complicity with witches, imps and all the powers of darkness, to overthrow the true church on earth. He also plead the cause of Susanna Martin, whose memory is perpetuated by the poet Whittier, and of several others of the accused, and his opposition to the infamous proceedings and rulings of the court, and the insane demands of the people, appear to have caused no charge to be made against him.

*She was the daughter of Henry², jr., and Jane (Bradbury) True, and cousin to her husband. Henry True¹, the ancestor of the New England family of this name, was of Salem, Mass., in 1644, and according to the record (though the name is an unusual one for a female), he married

FOURTH GENERATION.

WYMOND² BRADBURY (Wymond², Thomas¹), married Mariah, daughter of Rev. John, jr., and Joanna (Rosseter) Cotton,* who was born January 14, 1672. Her father was the son of Rev. John and Sarah (Story) Cotton, and her mother the daughter of Dr. Bryan Rosseter† of Guilford, Conn. Wymond Bradbury died

Israel, daughter of John Pike. He removed to Salisbury and was there made a freeman in 1673. Henry² True, jr., married Jane, daughter of Thomas Bradbury. He lived at Salisbury and had the following children: i Mary², b. May 30, 1668; ii William², b. June, 1670; iii Henry², b. Jan. 6, 1674; iv Jane², b. Dec. 5, 1676; v John², b. Feb. 23, 1679; vi Jemima², b. March 16, 1681, m. Thomas² Bradbury (17); vii Jabez², b. Feb. 19, 1683.

*John Cotton, jr., and Joanna Rosseter were married November 7, 1660. Mrs. Cotton was born in July, 1642. She was a very amiable woman and had uncommon intellectual endowments. Great pains were taken with her education. She had poetic talent, was well versed in the Latin and other languages, and had a "good insight into the medical arts." They had eleven children, as follows: John, b. August 3, 1661; Elizabeth, b. August 5, 1663; Sarah, b. June 17, 1665, d. Sept. 8, 1669; Roland, b. at Plymouth, Dec. 27, 1667; Sarah, b. Apr. 5, 1670, m. William Bradbury; Mariah, b. Jan. 14, 1671-72, m. Wymond Bradbury; Josiah, b. Sept. 10, 1675, d. Jan. 9, 1676-77; Samuel, b. Feb. 10, 1677-78, d. Dec. 23, 1682; Josiah, b. Jan. 8, 1679-80; Theophilus, b. May 5, 1682.

†Dr. Bryan Rosseter, son of Mr. Edward Rosseter, was a gentleman of liberal education, and early chose the medical profession as his life pursuit. He settled first at Windsor, Conn., but afterward moved to Guilford, when that township was under the government of the New Haven Colony. A letter written by him Sept. 24, 1669, mentions the death of his daughter Sarah, August 9, and her mother, overcome with grief, took no sustenance for ten days, and died August 29. Then the second day of the following week the grand-daughter Sarah died. Dr. Bryan Rosseter died Sept. 30, 1672. "He was a good man, and one that feared God, with his household." Beside Mrs. Cotton, his children were John, Josiah, Sarah, and Susanna who married Zachariah Walker.

in York, Me., April 17, 1734. His widow married John Heard of Kittery, and died in that town January 30, 1736.

- 26 viii Maria⁴, b. —, 1708; m. Samuel Service of Boston.
- 27 ix Jerusha⁴, b. July 5, 1711; m. John[†] Pulling of Salem.

*Jabez Bradbury was long in the military service of the Colony, and was an officer of ability and conspicuous bravery. He was appointed to command Fort Richmond, situated on the right bank of the Kennebec river at the head of Swan island, June 13, 1734, and in Sept., 1747, he was in command of George's Fort near Penobscot. "A party of the enemy (Indians) appeared at George's Fort in the eastward. Lieut. Kilpatrick, with twenty-five men, went from the blockhouse to scour the woods and haul wood to the landing-place. They were soon fired upon by the Indians. Captain Bradbury hearing the report of the guns, issued from the fort with a party of his men and engaged them; fought them about two hours, in which time four men were killed."—(Nile's Indian Wars.) "In September, 1749, Lieut.-Governor Phips communicated to the Council a letter from Captain Bradbury who commanded the fort near Penobscot, informing them that the Indians there were desirous to treat with the government and be at peace with it."—(Mass. Hist. Soc. Coll., vol. 9, p. 219.)

†John Pulling of Salem, who married Jerusha⁴ Bradbury for his second wife, had by this marriage one son, Edward Pulling, who graduated from Harvard College in 1775, and became a distinguished lawyer in Salem. Edward Pulling had daughter Mary Robinson Pulling, who became the wife of Dr. Daniel Oliver, and had Fitch Edward Oliver, M.D., of Boston, and Rev. Andrew Oliver, who graduated from Harvard College in 1842, and is a Protestant Episcopal clergyman in New York City, and a pro-

 47 v Dorothy⁴, b. May 27, 1708; m. Rev. Ammi Ruhamah Cutter, first pastor of the church in North Yarmouth.

*It is said that a likeness of the above Thomas³ Bradbury is in the family of John J. Chetwood of Elizabeth, New Jersey. William Chandler was son of the first Judge John of Worcester, Mass., and was born in 1698, died 1754. Their first child was Rev. Thomas Bradbury Chandler who was rector of St. John's Church, Elizabeth, N. J. He married Jane Emott and had William, who was a captain in the British army; Mary Ricketts; Elizabeth C., m. Gen. Elias B. Dayton; Jane, m. Major Wm. Dayton, one of whose daughters, Margaret, m. John Joseph Chetwood.

† William⁴ True, who married Anna⁴ Bradbury, was the father of Jonathan⁵ True who by wife Anne Stevens had Eleanor⁶ True, who married John Sargent, whose son William True⁷ Sargent married Hannah B. Mitchell, and had William Mitchell⁸ Sargent of Portland, the well-known historical writer. William True⁴ who married Anna⁴ Bradbury, was a grandson of Henry² True who married Jane², daughter of Thomas¹ Bradbury. Nathaniel Tuckerman³ True, A.M., M.D., late of Bethel, the veteran teacher, scientist and historical writer, was the son of John⁷ and Mary (Hatch) True, grandson of Jonathan⁶ and Mehitabel (Worthley) True, great-grandson of Jonathan⁵ and Anne (Stevens) True, and great-great-grandson of Capt. William⁴ True who married Anna Bradbury. Like Mr. Sargent he was doubly connected with the Bradbury family.

- 48 vi Jacob⁴, b. Oct. 6, 1710; m. 1733, Abigail Eaton.
 49 vii Sarah⁴, b. April 15, 1713; m. June 4, 1730, Elisha Allen.
 50 viii Moses⁴, b. Nov. 3, 1715; m. Abigail Fogg, r. North Yarmouth.
 51 ix Jane⁴, b. (posthumous), 1718; m. 1737, Barnabas Soule* of North Yarmouth.

FIFTH GENERATION.

WYMOND⁴ BRADBURY (Wymond³, Wymond², Thomas¹), married Phebe, daughter of Lieutenant Joseph and Abigail (Donnell) Young of York, who was born January 25, 1702. His wife died and he married second, Mary Donnell who died in Brunswick at the age of ninety-seven years. He moved from York to Brunswick Fort, and a part of his children were born there. He was a boat builder and his house stood near the fort.

*Barnabas⁴ Soule was the fourth in descent from George¹ Soule (Sole, Soul, Soal, Sow), who came to New England in the Mayflower, in the family of Edward Winslow. The descent is George¹, John², Moses³, Barnabas⁴. The latter, born in Duxbury in 1705, came to North Yarmouth about the year 1742. He had previously married Jane, daughter of Jacob and Elizabeth Bradbury. Barnabas Soule and wife were admitted to the church in North Yarmouth in 1742. He had a family of nine children. From his sons John, Cornelius and Barnabas, jr., sprang the famous ship-builders and ship-masters of Freeport, Enos, Henchman, Clement Soule and others. His daughter Mercy Soule was the maternal ancestor of Philip H. and General John Marshall Brown of Portland, and from this branch of the Soule family was Rev. Charles Soule the maternal grandfather of Dr. Charles E. Banks of the United States Navy, a prominent historical writer. Barnabas Soule died April 8, 1780, and his remains were buried in the old North Yarmouth burying-ground.

He taught the school here one year and then commenced the practice of law. Mr. William Willis says he was the first educated lawyer that settled between York and Pownalborough. In 1762, he married Sarah, daughter of Ephraim Jones, and two years later he purchased of Moses Parsons a lot of land on the corner of Middle and Willow streets, where he built a house which is still standing. While in Portland he had for a law student, among others, Theophilus Parsons, who became one of the most distinguished jurists in the country. In 1766, Mr. Bradbury and wife, with several other leading citizens of Falmouth, were indicted for the crime of dancing at Joshua Freeman's tavern. Mr. Bradbury brought himself and friends off by pleading that the room in which they danced was not to be regarded as a place of public resort, having been hired by private parties, and that the persons there assembled had a right to meet and dance in their own room. The plea was sustained by the court. While in Falmouth Mr. Bradbury was attorney for the state two years. He returned to Newbury in 1779, and was elected to congress from the Essex district. In 1797, he was appointed a judge of the supreme court of the commonwealth, and was regarded as an able jurist. While holding this position, Sept. 6, 1803, he died aged sixty-four years.

JAMES⁶ BRADBURY (Cotton⁵, John⁴, Wymond³, Wymond², Thomas¹), studied the medical profession, and after graduation practiced a year in Ossipee, N. H., and then, in 1798, settled in Parsonsfield, Me. He had obtained a good general education, and his medical education was the best that could be obtained at that day. He soon had an extensive practice in which he continued for nearly half a century. When old age came on he moved to Windham, that he might be near his only daughter, who had married and resided there. He died February 7, 1844. While in active practice at Parsonsfield he had a large number of medical students, among whom were Moses Sweat, Burleigh Smart, Eleazer Burbank, Jesse Mighil, Alvah Moulton, son of Mrs. Bradbury by her first marriage, Nathaniel Pease, Levi Hannaford, Gilman L. Bennett, Samuel M. Bradbury, Sumner Gilman, Tristram Redman, Charles G. Parsons, Levi Moore and Thomas Drown. Some of these became eminent physicians. Dr. Bradbury was a good physician, possessed excellent judgment, and had the respect and confidence of his large circuit of practice. He was upright and honest in his dealings with mankind, and courteous in his intercourse with members of his profession. He joined the Free Baptist church in 1816, and continued in communion with that body until the time of his death. Dr. Bradbury married in 1800, Mrs. Ann, daughter of Samuel Moulton. Mrs. Bradbury was born in Newbury, Mass., September 2, 1777, and for first husband married her cousin, Samuel, son of Cutting Moulton. By this marriage she had two children.* Her mother was Hannah

*Alvah Moulton⁷, son of Samuel⁶ and Ann (Moulton⁶) Moulton, whose father died in 1800, and whose mother married Dr. James Bradbury, born Oct. 11, 1798, married in 1821, Mary Dalton. He was the seventh in descent from William¹ Moulton, who came from Ormsby, England, in 1637, married Margaret, daughter of Robert Page, and settled in Hampton, Noyes of Newbury. The children of Dr. James and Ann (Moulton) Bradbury were :

JOSEPH⁶ BRADBURY* (Jacob⁵, Thomas⁴, Jacob³, William², Thomas¹), married at Andover, Mass., Elizabeth,

*Joseph Bradbury settled in Exeter, Me., and after a few years, in 1816, emigrated westward. Something over fifty years after he left Exor Betsey Stevens, who was born April 21, 1776, and died October 4, 1838. He was one of the early settlers of Exeter, Maine. He died in Cheshire, Ohio, September, in 1872, three of his sons. Caleb, Asa and Joseph, came from their distant homes to visit the place of their birth, on which occasion the late David Barker composed the following lines:—

THE BRADBURY BOYS.

I know how people talk and feel,
About this noise and fuss,
This meeting here today between
The Bradbury boys and us.

How time whirls on—in figuring up
We find the fact appears,
Since last we met these Bradbury boys
'Tis more than fifty years.

Perhaps you know these Bradbury boys,
If not, you ought to know
This tall, gray fellow here is Cale,
And then come Ase and Joe.

These other fellows lubbering round,
Are all our boys you see—
Here's Noah and Nat and Dan and Mark,
And also Lew and me.

These Bradbury boys, one left his law,
And one his grapes and corn,
And traveled near a thousand miles
To find where they were born.

Look:—here's where old Joe Bradbury lived—
The place that Bradbury tilled.
And there's the chopping father cleared
The year that he was killed.

And there's where Thomas Townsend dwelt,
Where on his leathern seat,
He took those measures year by year
Of our tired, pattering feet.

tember 1, 1828. His children were born in Limerick and Exeter, Maine, and in Cheshire, Ohio, and were :

- 681 i Caleb, b. Jan. 10, 1801 ; m. Almira Elizabeth Brown.
 682 ii Ammi R. C., b. — ; d. aged 16 months.

Those feet have trod some slippery paths
 Since death one day so grim,
 Took Townsend from his kit of tools
 And then his breath from him.

That broken clam-shell skimmer there,
 This moment found by Joe,
 His mother used for skimming milk
 Some sixty years ago.

Poor Joe—but then my muse can wait
 Until your cheeks are dry,
 Some think that nought but loss of fees,
 Can make a lawyer cry.

That wall—hold on—Nat's pigs are out—
 Good gracious what a fuss
 Mid pigs and tears to rhyme about,
 The Bradbury boys and us.

Don't ask—that thought has bothered me:—
 This how and where and when,
 We six shall meet and recognize
 These Bradbury boys again.

Friends of life's early youth accept
 This humble gift of mine,
 A wreath wrought with a hurried hand
 Around this pilgrim shrine.

However faint a fickle faith
 Some future bliss insures,
 Amid each agony of doubt
 One present bliss is yours.

If you will bear to western homes
 Old memories fraught with joy,
 As Æneas bore Anchises through
 The burning gates of Troy.

THOMAS⁶ BRADBURY (Benjamin⁵, Thomas⁴, Jacob³, William², Thomas¹), married Katherine Hunt, who was born April 17, 1788, and died October 7, 1843. He

"Jacob Bradbury and wife, who now reside a mile and a half south of Perry, in this county, were natives of Maine. Mr. Bradbury was born Nov. 7, 1783, and Mrs. Bradbury was born Nov. 1, 1782. They came to Ohio in 1800, and afterward emigrated to this state, landing at Naples twenty-one years ago. Their numerous descendants, numbering ninety-one, inclusive of those united to members of the family by marriage, now all reside within six miles of their parents. Eighty-five of these (one being absent in Mexico, and five hindered by sickness), assembled recently by appointment at the house of Lemuel Bradbury, the second son. They were marshalled into a beautiful grove where they listened to an address by the Rev. B. B. Carpenter, and then repaired to a richly spread table one hundred and ten feet long where they feasted. And after spending awhile in social chat, they separated, feeling that their attachment for each other was strengthened by their social interview."

*Nathan Goodwin was a descendant of Daniel Goodwin who had a grant of land in Kittery, in 1652, and several subsequent grants; married first, Margaret, daughter of Thomas Spencer, and second, Sarah, daughter of John Sanders and widow Peter Turbot. The descent is Daniel¹, William², m. Deliverance Taylor; John³, and wife Patience Willoughby; Joseph⁴, and Elizabeth Warren; Joseph⁵, and Mary Heseltine, and Nathan⁶, who married Joanna Bradbury. These last were the parents of William Frederic Goodwin, who was born in Buxton in 1823, graduated from Bowdoin College in 1848, taught academies a few years, studied law and received the degree of L.L. B. from Harvard College, and was about to enter into practice when the war broke out. He entered the service as first lieutenant in the regular army, was severely wounded and disabled at the battle of Chickamauga, was breveted captain and placed on recruiting service. He remained in the service to the close of the war, then settled in Concord, N. H., where he died from the effects of his wounds in 1872. He was an enthusiastic historical student, compiled the early records of Buxton, which were published; aided Dennett in restoring the old plan of Buxton, showing the location of the early settlers; and was a constant contributor to Dawson's Historical Magazine. He obtained through Miss Harriet Bainbridge much important information respecting his ancestry in England, both on the maternal and paternal side. His death was much lamented.

ELIJAH⁶ BRADBURY* (Elijah⁵, Jacob⁴, Jacob³, Wil-

*When Elijah Bradbury moved to Brownfield that entire region was comparatively newly settled and wild beasts, more especially bears, were very numerous. The following adventure which Mr. Bradbury had with a trio of these animals is still related by his descendants. One day as he was with his team in his wood-lot some fourth of a mile from his house, he noticed a hole under the roots of a decayed tree which curiosity prompted him to examine. Appearances indicated that it might be the lair of some wild beast. After knocking about the entrance for some time, and neither being invited in nor ordered off, he introduced the brad-end of his goad stick, which coming in contact with the hide of some animal, caused it to utter a deep and angry growl, and to spring out of the hole with evident hostile intent. Mr. Bradbury sprang one side and the bear, for such it proved to be, immediately returned to the back part of the den. It soon became evident that bruin was not the sole occupant of these snug quarters, but that her family, consisting of two half-grown cubs, shared the place with her. Waiting at the entrance until all became quiet, Mr. Bradbury went and picked up his ax and returned to the house. After spending nearly four hours in fruitless efforts to obtain help, he returned to the woods and again introduced his goad-stick for the purpose of stirring the animals up, which he had no sooner done than all three rushed out upon him. He gave the foremost one, which was one of the cubs, a blow with the ax which put him out of the contest. The second cub he stunned with a blow upon the head, and the next blow broke the jaw of the dam. She then retired into the den, and after dispatching the one he had stunned, he attempted to force the dam from her retreat, but without avail. He then stopped the entrance to the den by means of blocks of wood, and then proceeded with his ax to make a new opening just over her. As soon as this opening was made the enraged beast sprang out, when she received the blade of the ax upon her head which broke through the skull and entered the brain. This was twice repeated before she succumbed and fell to the ground. Mr. Bradbury loaded his three bears upon his sled and returned home, well pleased with his achievement.

HON. JAMES WARE⁷ BRADBURY, LL. D. (James⁶, Cotton⁵, John⁴, Wymond³, Wymond², Thomas¹), son of Dr. James and Ann (Moulton) Bradbury, born in Parsonsfield, June 10, 1802, attended the public schools of his native town, then a term or two at the academies at Saco, Limerick and Effingham, N. H., and completed his preparatory course at Gorham academy, under the charge of Preceptor Nason. He entered the Sophomore class at Bowdoin college in 1822, and graduated from that institution with the famous class of 1825. Among his class-mates were Henry W. Longfellow, Josiah Stover Little, Jonathan Cilley, Nathaniel Hawthorne, John S. C. Abbott and George B. Cheever. Josiah S. Little took the first rank for scholarship in the class. At the commencement, three English orations were assigned to the class; Little had the valedictory and Bradbury and Longfellow the remaining two.

After graduating Mr. Bradbury came to Hallowell and had charge of the academy for one year. At that time no town or city in Maine was more distinguished for culture and literary acquirements. Dr. Benjamin Vaughan, formerly a member of the English Parliament, had taken up his residence in Hallowell, and he and his family gave a high tone to society there, while the good doctor was ever doing some kind act to improve the condition of all classes. At the expiration of his engagement at Hallowell, Mr. Bradbury entered upon the study of law in the office of Hon. Rufus McIntire of Parsonsfield, and after a year entered the office of Hon. Ether Shepley of Portland, subsequently the honored chief justice of the supreme judicial court of the state, and completed his studies there. The required term of study for admission to the bar was three years, and having a few months on his hands before a term of court would be held at which he could be admitted, he went to Effingham, N. H., and opened a school for the instruction of teachers. The notice of such an innovation in teaching, brought together a large class, some fifty or more, who were drilled and instructed in much the same manner as has since been practiced in our normal schools. Most of the pupils had been teachers in public schools, and those who had not were about to engage in teaching. They were all put into one class and drilled daily in the methods recommended to be employed in instructing in all the branches then taught in the common schools. The importance of such schools had been impressed upon Mr. Bradbury while visiting the schools of the period, and if a similar school had previously been taught in New England, he then had no knowledge of it.

In 1830, Mr. Bradbury removed to Augusta, the capitol of the state, and here has since been his home, a period of sixty years. Here he opened an office for the practice of law to which he had been admitted. The Kennebec county bar at this time was unsurpassed for ability and brilliancy by any in the state. Among the distinguished names of those then in practice here, were Peleg Sprague, George Evans, Reuel Williams, Frederic Allen, Henry W. Fuller, William Emmons, Timothy Boutelle, Samuel Wells and Hiram Belcher. To obtain a foothold in a field so ably occupied, required ability and untiring effort. Mr. Bradbury was in love with his profession and devoted his entire time to it. In the space of four years he had secured a large and lucrative practice, which continued and increased until he was elected to the United States senate in 1846. During these sixteen years he was one of the busiest men on Kennebec river. The business of his office was not surpassed by any in the state. He was constantly employed from early morning until late at night, on consultations and office business, and in the numerous trials before the jury and the court arising from his extensive practice. The extent of his business best shows in what estimation he was held. He was a sound and discriminating lawyer, a skillful and eloquent advocate, who never failed to do full justice to the cause of his client. In 1833, he formed a co-partnership with Mr. Horatio Bridge, which continued for one year, when Mr. Bridge left the legal profession to engage in other pursuits. In 1838, Richard D. Rice, afterward associate justice of the supreme court, entered Mr. Bradbury's office as a student, and upon his admission to the bar was admitted into partnership. This became necessary on account of Mr. Bradbury's largely increasing business, and the partnership continued until 1848, when Governor Dana appointed Mr. Rice to the bench.

Mr. Bradbury then formed a partnership with the late Lot M. Morrill, who had just come to Augusta from Readfield. During this partnership Mr. Morrill was elected state senator and three times governor of Maine. Finally he was elected United States senator, and the partnership was terminated. In 1856, Joseph H. Meserve was admitted to the firm, of which he remained a valued member until his death in 1864. Mr. Bradbury then associated with himself his son James Ware Bradbury, jr., and kept up the firm largely for the purpose of establishing the son in business. He was a young man of excellent character and marked ability, and his death in 1876 was a great loss to the community, and a crushing blow to the family.

When he first came to Augusta Mr. Bradbury, for one year, and for the purpose of becoming better acquainted with the people of the state, edited a democratic paper published in Augusta, called the "Maine Patriot." This paper was democratic in sentiment, and Mr. Bradbury commenced life and has always continued a democrat from conviction and principle. He has ever believed that a strict adherence to democratic principles as expounded by the fathers, and as generally exemplified by the policy of democratic administrations, is best calculated to secure the rights of the people and the permanency of the union of the states. While openly and firmly maintaining his own views on political questions, he always considered the equal rights of others, and he never allowed his social relations to be disturbed on account of difference of political opinion. He never allowed politics to interfere with his business. In 1835, he was appointed county attorney by Governor Dunlap, and accepted it, this being in the line of his profession.

From the time of his coming to Augusta he took a leading part in the political movements of the day, and especially in organizing and harmonizing the political forces of his party in county and state, for which service he possessed uncommon tact. When the contest arose between the Jackson democrats who supported Martin Van Buren, and the friends of Mr. Calhoun, Mr. Bradbury took a decided stand in favor of the former. He was a delegate to the Baltimore convention of 1844, in which the supporters of Van Buren had a decided majority, but not the required two-thirds necessary to secure a nomination. They determined, however, that if Mr. Van Buren could not be nominated, they and not their opponents in the convention should make the selection. After a struggle of several days continuance, they presented the name of James K. Polk which was received with demonstrations of joy, and he was at once nominated and triumphantly elected. During this canvas Mr. Bradbury departed from his usual custom and took the stump in favor of Mr. Polk, speaking often and in various parts of the state. He strongly urged the admission of Texas, which was an issue in the campaign, to prevent that great section of country from becoming subject to British influence. The organization and success of the democratic party in that campaign was largely due to Mr. Bradbury's influence.

At the session of the Maine legislature in 1846, Mr. Bradbury was chosen United States senator for the term of six years from the fourth day of March following. At the commencement of the session in December, 1847, he took his seat. His first speech in that body was an eulogy on the life and character of his colleague, Hon. John Fairfield, who died fourteen days from the opening of the session. It was a fitting tribute to an able and patriotic son of Maine. Mr. Bradbury's entrance into the United States senate happened at a very interesting period of our history, whether with regard to the character and composition of the senate, or the subjects presented for action. Among the members of this branch of the government were Daniel Webster, Henry Clay, John C. Calhoun, Thomas H. Benton, Lewis Cass, Stephen A. Douglass, William H. Seward and Salmon P. Chase, giants in intellect, and others of scarcely less ability and distinction. When Mr. Bradbury took his seat the war with Mexico was going on, and he gave his hearty support to the national administration in all its measures to sustain and strengthen our army then in the heart of Mexico, and surrounded by hostile forces vastly superior in numbers to themselves. There was strong opposition to the administration in the senate, and in the other branch there were those who refused to vote supplies for the armies in the field. The ratification of the treaty of peace with Mexico was bitterly opposed and came near being defeated.

Mr. Bradbury was made chairman of the committee on printing; also a member of the judiciary committee and of the committee on claims. He served on the judiciary committee, which was a very hard working one, until the close of his term. The question of slavery began more and more to excite the attention of Congress upon attempts to form governments for the territory acquired from Mexico. The South claimed that the territories were the common property of all the citizens of the United States, and that they should have the right to migrate there with their families, including their slaves, and that Congress had no right to deprive them of this privilege. This was met by the denial of the right of the citizens of any state to carry their local laws into the territories, and the assertion of the power of Congress to prohibit slavery therein. A bill introduced to establish territorial governments for Oregon, California and New Mexico, led to a long discussion. Mr. Bradbury opposed the bill because it avoided the question as to whether Congress had or had not the power to legislate upon the subject of slavery in the territories; also because it devolved upon the court the determination of questions that properly belonged to Congress to settle. This bill, he claimed, would not finish the controversy but only postpone it. He ever regarded the administration of Mr. Polk as one of the most important in our history.

General Taylor was elected president in 1848, and during the campaign he stated that in case of his election, he would remove no person from office on account of politics. His pledges were not kept in this regard, and Mr. Bradbury introduced a resolution which called upon the president to cause to be laid before the senate a list of the removals from office since the preceding fourth of March, with a statement of charges filed against them, his object being to vindicate the democratic party from the charge of proscription of their political opponents, which was most triumphantly accomplished, the records going to show that his party had been much less proscriptive than those of their opponents.

In 1849, Mr. Clay introduced a compromise measure covering the question of government for the territories, including an adjustment of the boundaries of Texas. This bill was assailed by extremists, both from the North and South. A majority of the senate were in favor of the general features of the bill, but its passage was blocked upon the question of the amount of indemnity to be paid to Texas. Mr. Bradbury offered an amendment providing for commissioners, both on the part of Congress and Texas, to agree upon a boundary and equivalents, which was adopted by a close vote.

But the section to which this amendment was added was subsequently stricken out, which again opened the whole question. Mr. Bradbury supported Mr. Clay's compromise bill because he was convinced its provisions were proper in themselves, and were a peaceable adjustment of matters in controversy.

In 1852, Mr. Bradbury was upon a special committee on French spoliations, and had charge in the senate of a bill looking to the adjustment of these long delayed claims. The bill was strenuously opposed, but Mr. Bradbury made an eloquent and exhaustive speech in its favor and the senate passed it by a large majority. With much labor and preparation, he secured the passage of a bill to indemnify Maine and Massachusetts for losses sustained in the settlement of the boundary between Maine and New Brunswick. It was also through his efforts that the first appropriation was made for improving the navigation of the Kennebec river. He was an active and hard-working member throughout his entire term, looking carefully after the public good, and especially looking out for the interests of his constituents. He was a ready debater, a fluent speaker, always presenting the strong points of a case in a clear and concise manner. He was also a most indefatigable worker in the committee-room. He declined a re-election, and at the close of his term retired to private life and at once resumed the practice of his profession. He has had no desire for office since; and a few years ago, having given up the practice of law, he has since given his time and attention to the management of his private affairs.

In the settlement of contested election cases in the Maine legislature Mr. Bradbury has had a larger experience than any other Maine citizen. For very many years he was on one side or the other of almost every contested case, and his clients were generally successful. He has also had large experience in drafting bills to be presented to the legislature, and some of the most valuable measures passed for the management and restriction of railway corporations have been proposed by him. His efforts have been directed to securing the rights of all parties, and especially the rights of small stockholders against the grasping policy of railway managers. In his law practice he was always faithful to his clients, and ever ready to advise and promote a settlement between parties when it could be fairly and equitably effected, and especially in family difficulties. He was opposed to litigation in trifling matters, and always refused all such business.

He has ever kept up his interest in Bowdoin College. He was for several years a member of the board of overseers, and for thirty years a member of the board of trustees. Since 1866 he has been chairman of the committee of finance. He attends all the commencements, and looks after the welfare of the college in all its interests. The college conferred upon him the honorary degree of doctor of laws in 1872. He has long been an active and efficient member of the Maine Historical Society, and was its president from 1873 to 1889. He obtained from the Maine legislature a grant of land, the sale of which forms the bulk of the permanent fund of the society at the present time. He has long been an active member of the Congregational church in Augusta, and is much interested in the good of the cause at large. He has charity and fellowship for all denominations of Christians, and would have them work harmoniously in the great work committed to their charge.

As a citizen Mr. Bradbury has ever taken an active part in all the public enterprises of the day, and has ever been ready to contribute of his time and means for the advancement of any measure calculated to benefit the city of his adoption, and the state. He opposed the construction of two parallel lines of railway through the state, and still believes it would have been better for the state had his views been carried out. He was a director of the Somerset & Kennebec railroad, and had much to do in effecting a union of this road with the Portland & Kennebec. At the time of this writing (March, 1890), Mr. Bradbury, though he has passed the eighty-seventh mile-stone, is still remarkably vigorous, takes charge of a large private business, attends to his duties as a bank president, is a constant attendant at church on the Sabbath, and attends the meetings at Portland of the standing committee of the Maine Historical Society, of which he is one. His mind is still unimpaired, and his enjoyment of life and its work is apparently as great as ever.

On the occasion of Mr. Bradbury's eighty-fifth birthday (June 10, 1887), the Maine Historical Society tendered him a complimentary dinner at the Falmouth Hotel. There were present beside the leading members of the Maine Historical Society. Hon Cyrus Woodman* of Cambridge, Abner C. Goodell, jr., president of the New England Historical and Genealogical Society, and Charles Deane, LL. D.,* of Cambridge. Letters were received from distinguished men from various parts of the country. Prof. Henry L. Chapman of Bowdoin College presided in a very able and acceptable manner. His opening speech was a model for such an occasion. On being presented Mr. Bradbury was received with cheers and made a very neat and appropriate speech. Speeches were also made by Hon. John A. Peters, chief-justice of the supreme court, Dr. Charles Deane, President Goodell, Hon. Hannibal Hamlin, Hon. Marshall Cram,* Rev. Dr. Fiske, Hon. George F. Talbot, and Hon. William Goold. The letters were read by the secretary, Hubbard W. Bryant. The occasion was one of unusual interest.

The following is an extract from Prof. Chapman's opening remarks:—

We are here today in grateful recognition of the debt we owe to the fidelity and wisdom of one who has been so many years our sachem—our esteemed and honored president. We all know, gentlemen, his unselfish devotion to the welfare of the society; his wise and watchful care over its varied interests; the kindly courtesy of his official and personal relations with us. It is a great pleasure to us to give some outward expression to the honor which our hearts have all along yielded to him. And in order to emphasize the feeling that prompted this gathering we have been glad to invite and to welcome here the representatives of sister societies to unite with us in this tribute of esteem. We may thus confirm, by living contact and fellowship, the sympathies that run along the obscure lines of antiquarian research, and bind us together in the ties of common or similar pursuits.

Nor do we forget that the day is one that permits us to add to this token and assurance of our associated regard the kindly congratulations and good wishes which belong to a personal anniversary, an anniversary, it may be said, that recurs with startling frequency in all our lives. Whatever that was cherished and valuable the passing years may have taken away from our revered president, who today reaches another mile-stone on his journey, they have not taken away from him the continued power and privilege of serving his fellow-men in many noble ways. They cannot take away from him the record of that for which we honor him—a life distinguished by important duties worthily performed, by high trusts faithfully discharged, by great privileges blamelessly enjoyed. And, on the other hand, they have brought to him in their swift passage,—

That which should accompany old age,
As honor, love, obedience, troops of friends.

In his domestic relations Mr. Bradbury was signally fortunate. He married November 25, 1834, Eliza Ann, daughter of Thomas Westbrook and Abigail (Page) Smith of Augusta, who was born March 18, 1815. Mr. Smith, father of Mrs. Bradbury, was born in Dover, N. H., February 22, 1785, and in 1805 came to Augusta and engaged in trade, which he followed for many years and accumulated a large fortune for his day. The mother of Mrs. Bradbury was Abigail, daughter of Ezekiel and Betsey (Robie) Page, who came to Augusta from Haverhill, Mass., in 1762. Mrs. Bradbury was a most womanly woman. Affectionate, cheerful, full of energy and possessed of great executive ability, qualities inherited from her parents, she was a model wife, mother, friend and member of society. She lived with her husband in happy union for over forty-four years, and for the most part of that time enjoyed perfect health. She died suddenly January 29, 1879, greatly lamented by her surviving family, and deeply mourned by the entire community. In her life-time she abounded in deeds of charity and kindness. The Old Ladies' Home in Augusta was one of her favorite charges, of the management of which she was president at the time of her death. She had been a member of the Congregational church for many years, but for several years before her death she attended the Episcopal church. Her creed was much broader than that of any denomination; she observed strictly the Golden Rule, and hers were "the charities that soothe and heal and bless." The epitaph engraved on her headstone is truly expressive of her character:—

She loved to do good.

A local paper in a notice of the death of Mrs. Bradbury, said: "Her departure will be lamented by a wide circle of friends who knew her sterling qualities of mind and heart. She was a woman of large business capacity, possessing uncommon executive abilities. She was ever active and foremost in all benevolent and charitable movements, and was engaged at the time of her first attack of illness in preparing, through her own labor and employed help, clothing for the poor and food to be distributed among needy families. In her the indigent and unfortunate ever found a sympathetic friend, ready with liberal hand to contribute to their necessities. They will mourn her death with unfeigned sorrow. She was a noble woman, possessing a kind heart and generous hand. Her life was filled with deeds of charity and of active benevolence, and her time and means were largely employed in supplying the wants and relieving the distresses of others." Another local paper, among other things, said: "Mrs. Bradbury inherited from her father great industry, sterling sense and correct judgment, softened in her by the womanly graces inherited from her mother. Her death casts a gloom over many a humble home, and her memory will be cherished by hundreds who have received bounty from her hand. The death of such a woman is a public loss."

The children of Hon. James Ware and Eliza Ann (Smith) Bradbury, all born in Augusta, were:—

- 1018 i Henry Westbrook^a, b. Feb. 10, 1836; m. Louisa H. Gregorie.
- 1019 ii James Ware, jr.^s, b. July 22, 1839; d. Sept. 21, 1876. He entered Bowdoin College in 1857, and graduated with honor in the class of 1861. He immediately entered upon the study of the law, in the office of Bradbury, Morrill & Meserve. Upon the completion of the regular course of studies and his admission to the bar, he entered upon the practice of his profession in partnership with his father. His industry and devotion to business were attended with success. In 1871, he passed the winter in Florida, where he formed the acquaintance and secured the attachment of many warm personal friends. Upon his return he resumed the labors of his office, and at the time of his decease the brightest prospects of professional success were opening before him. His conscientiousness, integrity and fidelity to the true interests of his clients secured their confidence and increased their number, and drew to him the best class of professional business. Always opposed to useless litigation and pettifogging in any form, he preferred equity to any advantage gained by stratagem and finesse. Hence it was that he often became a peacemaker when different advice would have led to expensive and often unavailing litigation. He was city solicitor of Augusta in 1868, filling the position to the satisfaction of the municipal authorities and the people. He was appointed U. S. commissioner in 1869, and held the office until his decease, discharging its duties with independence, ability and fidelity. Although not an ultra partizan, Mr. Bradbury ever took a deep interest in public affairs, and was strongly attached to the principles of the democratic party. They were with him a matter of conviction. He felt that the best interests of the country were to be secured by their maintenance, and he never wavered in their support throughout the long and hopeless minority of the party, though well knowing that it closed every avenue to political preferment. Prof. Packard said of him: "He left us with the impression that he possessed intellectual powers which promised much for his friends and for the public."

- 1020 iii Thomas Westbrook Smith⁸, b. July 24, 1841; d. May 1, 1868. He was a young man of excellent character and habits, and his early death, the first in the family, was greatly lamented.

- 1021 iv Charles⁸, b. March 31, 1846; m. Nov. 9, 1870, Eva A. Lancaster of Augusta. He resides in Boston.

HON. BION⁷ BRADBURY (Jeremiah⁶, Joseph⁵, John⁴, Wymond³, Wymond², Thomas¹), born in Biddeford, December 6, 1811, fitted for college at South Berwick and Gorham academies, and graduated from Bowdoin

Bion Bradbury

College in 1830. The next year he was preceptor of Alfred academy, and in 1832 commenced the study of law with Daniel Goodenow of that town. He completed his studies with Hon. William P. Preble of Portland, and was admitted to the York county bar in May, 1834. He opened an office in Calais, and soon after formed a partnership with Hon. Anson G. Chandler, which continued until the latter was appointed to the bench of the supreme court. In 1844, Mr. Bradbury was appointed collector of customs for Passamaquoddy district, and moved to Eastport; he was twice re-appointed. He served in the Maine legislature in 1849, 1850, and again in 1862. The last time he was elected by the unanimous vote of both parties. He was candidate for congress in 1858 and 1874, and for governor in 1863, but his party being in the minority, he was defeated. He was also a member of the National Democratic conventions of 1856, 1860 and 1880. During all these years Mr. Bradbury continued in the practice of the law, and always with marked success. He was a good counselor and a brilliant advocate. In 1864, Mr. Bradbury removed to Portland, and in 1885 was appointed surveyor of the port of Portland, which office he was holding at the time of his death. He died July 1, 1887. A cotemporary of Mr. Bradbury thus spoke of him: "One of the most distinguished and best beloved sons of Maine, has, after a life conspicuous for honorable activity and achievement, gone to his rest. The intelligence of his death will be received with profound regret by men of all parties and sects, and will occasion a feeling of personal loss to more people in this state, unrelated to him by kinship or political ties, than the announcement of the death of almost any other of the citizens of Maine." Mr. Bradbury married October 25, 1837, Alice H., daughter of Col. Johnson Williams of Brooklyn, N. Y., afterward of Waterville, Me., who was the son of Dr. Obadiah Williams, a distinguished citizen of Waterville, who came there from New Hampshire.

Children:

- 1085 i Mary Langdon Storer^s, b. Calais, Aug. 12, 1838; m. Aug. 17, 1868, Charles Carroll, son of Judge and Governor Samuel Wells. They had one son, Charles. Mr. Wells died May 31, 1869.
- 1086 ii Albert Williams^s, b. Jan. 29, 1840. He graduated at Bowdoin College in 1860. He entered the military service soon after the breaking out of the war as first lieutenant in the First Maine battery of mounted artillery. He was afterward promoted to captain of the battery, and then to major of the regiment. He was a brave and gallant officer, as his promotions sufficiently indicate. He is now in the practice of law in Portland, and is unmarried.
- 1087 iii William Dow^s, b. Oct. 2, 1842; d. at Eastport, Aug. 20, 1854.
- 1088 iv Bion Lucius^s, b. Eastport, Aug. 20, 1847; d. Jan. 30, 1848.
- 1089 v Alice Williams^s, b. Jan. 25, 1849; m. Dec. 9, 1869, Charles F. Libby, a talented and popular lawyer of the Cumberland bar; resides in Portland.
- 1090 vi Bion^s, b. Oct. 16, 1852.

EMILY⁷ BRADBURY (Jeremiah⁶, Joseph⁵, John⁴, Wymond³, Wymond², Thomas¹), born in Alfred, May 18, 1821; married September 16, 1843, Francis Keyes Swan* of Calais. They resided in Calais until the autumn of 1865, when they moved to Portland. Mr. Swan was senior member of the well-known banking firm of Swan & Barrett until he retired a few years ago, with a competency. Mrs. Swan was a confirmed invalid during the last years of her life, but it was borne with remarkable fortitude and patience, with a forgetfulness of self, and a thoughtful consideration for others, which had been conspicuous traits in her character throughout her life. She died in Portland, December 4, 1877.

*William Swan, born in Boston, 1746, was a descendant in the third generation from Dr. Thomas Swan, who graduated from Harvard College in 1689. He married Mercy Porter of Weymouth, 1776. Removed to Gardiner, Me., 1795; subsequently to Winslow, where he died, 1835.

Francis Swan, third son of William, born 1785. Married Hannah, daughter of James Child of Augusta, 1814. Settled in Winslow, removing thence to Calais, 1834. He died June, 1862. Mrs. Swan died May, 1869. Children:

EBENEZER⁷ BRADBURY (Theophilus⁶, Jonathan⁵, Theophilus⁴, Wymond³, Wymond², Thomas¹), was a silversmith by trade, and resided in Newburyport. He was a noble specimen of the self-made man. He had a large family, but by industrious and economical habits he brought up his children in comfort, and gave them a good education. By steady and methodical habits of study he acquired a large amount of useful information. His benevolence and genial disposition, united with strict integrity, won for him the respect and good will of his fellow-citizens, and gave him great influence in his native town. He had great interest in educational matters, which continued unabated all through his useful life. He was frequently elected to municipal offices, and for five years was a member of the Massachusetts legislature. In 1847, he was chosen speaker of the House. For two years he was a member of the executive council, and in 1849 was elected treasurer of the commonwealth, a position which he held two years — as long as the party to which he belonged was then in power. In 1853, he resided in Newton, and was a delegate from that town to the constitutional convention. The next year he represented that town in the general court. Later in life he was judge of the municipal court in Milford. He was upright in his dealings, modest and unassuming in his demeanor, kind and obliging to every one, he served his town and state most faithfully, and his death, which took place June 19, 1864, was greatly lamented by a large circle of friends. He married December 10, 1815, Nancy Merrill, who was born November 12, 1796, and died January 13, 1832. He married second, July 3, 1832, Mary Tappan, who was born November 25, 1798. He had eighteen children, the eight first born in Newburyport, and the others, part in Newburyport and part in Southampton, Franklin county, Penn.

HENRY WESTBROOK⁸ BRADBURY (James Ware⁷, James⁶, Cotton⁵, John⁴, Wymond³, Wymond², Thomas¹), was long in business in Augusta, and was a very successful merchant. He was also engaged in business more or less in other places, both in Maine and in the South. He was a man of strict integrity and highly esteemed by his associates, and also in the community where he was born and reared. His death in middle life was greatly deplored. He died January 10, 1884. He married May 16, 1879, Louisa H., daughter of Dr. Thomas Hutson Gregorie of South Carolina, an accomplished lady who survives him, and resides at the Bradbury homestead in Augusta.

Children :

- 1509 i Eliza Louisa⁹, b. May 25, 1880.
1510 ii Alice Gregorie⁹, b. Dec. 16, 1883; d. April 2, 1885.

HANNAH ELIZABETH⁸ BRADBURY (Benjamin Burbank⁷, John⁶, John⁵, John⁴, Wymond³, Wymond², Thomas¹), born in Chesterville, Me., March 16, 1827, received her education in the common schools and at Farmington academy. She early developed a talent for composition, and has a well established reputation as an authoress in both prose and poetry. Her father, Benjamin B. Bradbury, moved from Chesterville to Newport, and thence to Bangor, and here under her initials Miss Bradbury wrote numerous short stories and poems, which were very popular and had a wide circulation. Her later productions, such as "Dr. Howell's Family," "One Among Many," "Our Party of Four," and "Christine's Fortune," have greatly widened her reputation. To the "Poets of Maine," published in 1888, she contributed "Lake Lucerne," "A Winter Sunset," "Only Ferns," and "A Child's Dream." These four short poems are gems, and among the best in the collection, but the author is best known to the literary world as a writer of fiction. She married July 17, 1859, Mr. George C. Goodwin of Charlestown, Mass. They now reside in Boston.

BENJAMIN FRANKLIN⁸ BRADBURY (Benjamin Burbank⁷, John⁶, John⁵, John⁴, Wymond³, Wymond², Thomas¹), married March 31, 1856, Anna M. Pierce, who died at Bangor, July 28, 1863. He married second, at Charlestown, Mass., Sarah Horton Woodman, in 1864. Mr.

Bradbury is a druggist at number 443 Washington street, Boston.

JOHN MERRILL⁸ BRADBURY (Ebenezer⁷, Theophilus⁶, Jonathan⁵, Theophilus⁴, Wymond³, Wymond², Thomas¹), born in Newburyport, October 29, 1818, spent his youth in his native town, where he received a good English and classical education, and also at Dummer academy, then in charge of Dr. Nehemiah Cleveland. In Newburyport he was at one time the pupil of Albert Pike, the poet. One of his early schoolmates, Rev. Dr. George D. Wildes, in his recollections of the youth of Mr. Bradbury, written for the family, said: "Of no one of the associates of my boyhood could I write more that would illustrate the value of useful example. Among personal influences tending to mold the purpose and direct the efforts of any of his early companions who have attained to station, whether of usefulness or honor, I am sure a large place will be conceded to their association more or less intimate with John M. Bradbury, the boy and the man. I cannot recall the time when I did not know him. The image of a bright, little chubby-faced boy, with bright eyes, a quick step and a laughing, morning face, coming to school from the North End in old Newburyport, almost always comes first in the retrospect of my own school days; and I have an impression that when scarcely more than six or seven years of age, we were at our first man's school, under the instruction of the late George Titcomb."

John M. Bradley

Dr. Wildes states that they were in the same class and almost uniformly occupying neighboring desks in the Latin department of the high school, where Mr. Elias Nason afterward taught, but which was then under the charge of Rev. Roger S. Howard. He represents his school-mate as a good classical scholar, but excelling in mathematics. He also represents him as entering into the sports of boyhood, in which his good nature and buoyant spirits made him a universal favorite. He also represents him as a well-grounded historical scholar, and says he was no less indebted to him for guidance and help in what to him was distasteful, namely, mathematics, than for a common sympathy in historical studies and a taste for English classics.

In April, 1835, Mr. Bradbury entered Dickinson College at Carlisle, Penn., where he studied three years. He went to Philadelphia, intending to go into business there, but after a residence of six months he returned to his native town of Newburyport, where he became an assistant in his father's business, and held that position over two years. In 1841, he taught a district school in Newbury, and was subsequently appointed a teacher in a grammar school of Newburyport, which position he held for a year. After a year's interval he was appointed to a similar position which he held for six years. In May, 1849, he removed to Boston and was appointed to a clerkship in the state treasury, and in December, 1850, was advanced to chief clerk. He afterward engaged with a banking firm in Boston, and continued with them through various changes until 1868, when he retired with a competency. His business cares did not eradicate his literary tastes. His leisure hours were employed with books, his favorite reading being history and belles-letters. By this means he added constantly to his fund of information.

In September, 1868, Mr. Bradbury with his wife visited Europe and traveled through the British Isles and the principal countries on the continent. He spent some time in London, engaged in historical research in the British Museum and in the courts of probate. He also made frequent excursions into the country, especially to those places where his English ancestors had lived. In a letter to Mr. John Ward Dean, from whose obituary notice these facts concerning Mr. Bradbury are gleaned, he wrote: "My visit to Wicken-Bonant was the pleasantest experience I have had in England. The rector was away on a vacation, and I did not therefore see the registers which would have been a gratification, and I was indebted to the churchwarden's wife for admission to the church. You are familiar with its appearance, both before and after restoration, from the photographs I have shown you. It is a small church still, and the addition made to its length by Mr. Sperling, the late rector, has not improved its proportions. Of course the surfaces, internal and external are new, and there is nothing to remind the visitor of its age, except a mural tablet in the chancel, date of 1697, and a square font standing on five square supports, which is a veritable piece of antiquity. Undoubtedly Thomas Bradbury, baptized February 28, 1610-11, supposed to be the emigrant, was baptized at this font. From the church our conductress guided us to the Brick House, where we were most cordially received by its proprietor, Mr. John Pollitt. He took us through the old mansion, pointing out the alterations and additions which had been made, giving us its traditions and history. He also showed us over the grounds which are well laid out and nicely kept, and took us to points where we could get the best views of the house and its surroundings, as well as of the village generally."

Mr. Bradbury returned to Boston in July, 1871, and resided there until the next spring, when he purchased a place in Ipswich where he lived to the time of his decease, which occurred on Tuesday morning, March 21, 1876. He left a widow, but no children. He became a member of the New England Historical Genealogical Society in 1853, and a life member in 1863. He served on the finance committee and also on the board of directors. He was also a member of the Prince Society of Boston, and of the Essex Institute at Salem. Mr. Bradbury made valuable collections for a genealogy of the Bradbury family, and had his health and life been spared, it was his purpose to publish a book on the subject. His manuscript is embodied in this volume, and while there were many hiatuses to be filled and some lives but little traced, it has been of great service to the compiler, and in fact constitutes the larger portion of the entire volume. Mr. Bradbury was married August 28, 1843, to Miss Sarah Ann, daughter of Daniel and Abigail (Sargent) Hayes of Gloucester, a lady of cultivated taste, who appreciated and encouraged the studies of her husband, and made his home pleasant and attractive. For a more extended account of Mr. Bradbury, the reader is referred to a notice in the Genealogical Register for October, 1877.

ALBERT FAYETTE⁸ BRADBURY (Ebenezer⁷, Theophilus⁶, Jonathan⁵, Theophilus⁴, Wymond³, Wymond², Thomas¹), born in Newburyport, July 16, 1827, resided there until 1834, when his father moved to Franklin county, Penn. In 1837, Albert Fayette returned to Newburyport where he entered the high school and remained until 1842. His father having returned to Newburyport in 1838, and engaged in the stove business, Albert Fayette on leaving school assisted for two years in the store. In 1844, he entered the employ as clerk and bookkeeper of the Salisbury (woolen) Manufacturing Company at Amesbury, Mass., where he remained, with the exception of a single year, until 1863, when he became associated with Dale & Robinson in the ownership of the Dexter Woolen Mills. Mr. Bradbury moved with his family to Dexter in 1864, and has since that time remained there as resident agent and manager, which position he holds at the present time. He took a leading part in the building of the Dexter and Newport railroad, and has been a director since the organization of the company. For the past two years he has also held the position of treasurer. He was one of the incorporators of the Dexter Savings Bank in 1867, and its president until 1888, when at the earnest solicitation of the trustees he accepted the position of treasurer, which position he still holds. He also assisted in organizing the Dexter National Bank, and has been a director from the first. He is also a director of the Dexter Loan and Building Association. His life has been an exceedingly busy one, and though often urged to accept political or town office, he has generally felt obliged to decline. He is a trustee of the Dexter Town Library and of the School Fund. Originally a whig in politics, he aided in organizing the republican party, and has since been one of its zealous supporters. He is a member of the Protestant Episcopal church, and has been clerk of the Church of the Messiah at Dexter since its formation in 1866. Mr. Bradbury is genial, kind hearted and universally respected. He married April 21, 1853, Frances Ayer,

CHARLES WILLIAM⁸ BRADBURY (John⁷, Theophilus⁶, Jonathan⁵, Theophilus⁴, Wymond³, Wymond², Thomas¹), was born in Newburyport, Mass. Forced by circumstances to abandon a college course of study, for which he had a strong inclination, he entered a store at a early age, and continued in mercantile pursuits during his life. He was a young man of excellent character, honest, faithful, upright in all his transactions; decidedly scholarly in his tastes, he made up in part his failure to secure a collegiate education, by diligent study and reading. With the English classics he became thoroughly familiar, and he continued a systematic course of reading during his life. His course embraced Motley, Prescott, Froude, Bancroft, Macaulay and other noted historical works. In 1877, he and his wife visited England and the ancestral home at Wicken-Bonant, which was a source of great enjoyment. Mr. Bradbury had a love for the sea, amounting to a passion. His summer vacations were spent upon the New England coast, either in boating or yachting, always accompanied by his wife, who was equally fond of life upon the ocean wave. His ear for music was sensitive and correct, and he had an excellent bass voice. He greatly enjoyed singing old English ballads and songs of the sea. He was engaged in business for the most part in New York City, but he was much attached to his native New England and spent all his vacations here. He died at Winchester, Mass., December 5, 1881. Mr. Bradbury married at Cambridge, Mass., June 4, 1864, Sophia Louise Appleton. She was the daughter of Charles John and Sophia (Haven) Appleton of Cambridge, Mass., and granddaughter of Hon. John Appleton, at one time charge d'affairs at Calais, France. She is a lady of culture, refinement and varied attainments. She greatly enjoyed her European trip and wrote very interesting letters of the ancestral home of the Bradburys at Wicken, extracts of which have been given in another place. She survives her husband and resides a widow at Winchester, Mass. They had no issue.

- 15 Set off with a fair wind & Showery; arived at Lenote Island at 2 o'clock ordord on picket with Capt Martain & Ensign gilson; the picket consisted of 50 men Set out 16 sentries; the Regulars movd their Battoes & took our ground, we ordord to Land ye first when we Struck ye Shoar at St Johns.
- Aug. 16 Set off at 4 o'clock arived within 2 miles of ye fort at 3 o'clock and Landed without opposition.
- ye vessels Began to fire on ye fort & continued till night very moderate. I still very Bad with ye purging; took Command of ye picket guard Set ye Sentries & Lay on our arms. But not Disturbd; the nights extreem cold—a few guns from our vessels this night but none from ye Enemy.
- 17 ordord to Carry our Battoes Down to an Island 3 miles off and Land our provision & take 3 Days allowance. this morning an unlucky affair hapned; one of ye Small Raddoes was ordord to go very near the fort the 2^d Shot they Received from ye fort one 12 pounder, come through ye fashens and Cut off Both Capt Cleg's feet by his ankles. carried away ye Calf of Christopher Langlys Leg Nathaniel marsh Both his Legs Broke off, Robert townsend the pan Bone of his Knee & Shin Carried away.

James union one Leg by his Knee; the Capt & Nathaniel Marsh Died after having their Legs cut off. ordord up to ye Brestwork to join our Companies & Dismissd ye picket Lodgd under a few Bushes in a Swamp.

Aug. 18 the army went and Cleard a Rode & Built a Bridg almost opposite ye fort—Rainey weather and nothing to Shelter us. But a few bushes the water and mud half Leg Deep and I very weak & poorly with the Camp Disorder and can get nothing to help me; got a tent this night and Lodgd Dry.

19 ordord to Strike our tents & march Down within half mile of ye fort; marched through a Low Sunken Swamp and went to Building a Brestwork; the french Came Down on a Little point to Erect a Battrry; a few Shots from our Batttries Soon Drove them off. 2 of ye Rangers Kild Last night; Built a Brestwork to Keep ye Enemy from ye woods, But Nothing to Keep ye cannon Balls from ye fort Except the trees. 2 Shots from ye fort this Day which cut several trees over our heads But Did no Damage; one of them we got. Slept well tonight on a wad of hemlock on ye ground tho weak & poorly.

20 this morning as our guard was Comeing in there came a french Deserter & Deliverd himself to Capt Butterfield Who sent him Directly to ye generall.

unsettled weather & Rain 8 or 10 Shots from ye fort which cut of ye trees near our Camp one or 2 men wounded.

ordord on picket tonight with Capt Jackson & Ensn King.

Set the sentries & Stood to our arms all night; had a very uncomfitable Night as it rained very fast the chief of ye time—one 6 pounder came from ye fort as wee ware Setting on ye Brestwork within 6 feet of my head which we got.

Aug. 21 this Day all ye officers in Camp were obliged to turne out to Build a Breastwork to Keep off the Cannon Ball which came from ye fort as we are very Near ye fort; one man wounded from ye fort to-Day; 3 or 4 more this afternoon—one of Capt fellows Serjants Named frost had his arm Shot off—fired Briskly from ye fort at our Batteries that ware not finished. Lay Down this night in peace But had not Lain Long Before every man in Camp was ordord to stand to his arms and Line ye Brest work from end to end as there had been Enemy Discovered & so Expected.

But nothing Remarkable this time. Lay Down till towards Day when one of the Sentries fired at Something he Knew not what. which alarmed ye whole Camp from one end to the other & he was the Best man that could fire first as they thought But through the goodness of god no Dammage Done Neither from ye enemy nor from us.

- 22 Very pleasant this morning and all firing Still as yet. But very Little firing to Day till towards Night when it Began Something Smart tho I have heard of no Dammage as yet.

major Rogers got 3 french prisoners Last night which gave account that general Amherst was near; made all ye officers obliged to work very hard Building and finishing ye Breastwork. I ordord on fatigue tomorrow—went to Bed in peace tho Not well—Rained hard all night.

- 23 took a party of men & helpd to mend ye Bridg to Draw ye cannon & make a Brestwork Near the Battery, & workd not only in Sight of ye fort But within musket Shot where I could see ye french walk on ye walls. 2 men Kild & Scalpd to Day by ye indians Near our first Breastwork; one of ye Battoes 60 feet long & 16 wide is now fit to play on ye fort But waits till the other one is finished; finished all ye Battoes at 12 oclock at 3, all ye musick in camp playd 10 minutes and then opend ye Batteries and playd on ye fort & plaid from all quarters which soon made the houses fly to peases.

Received one shot from them which cut off a Regular's thigh—continued firing till after sunset, and then ceased till one o'clock at night when our men endeavored to cut away the Boom. The enemy fired with small arms very smart which caused all our artillery to play on them, which soon stilled them. We continued playing till day. A little cessation for the value of an (h)our at a time. Know not as yet what damage is done. Boom partly cut off.

Aug. 24 This morning our artillery begun to play briskly on them again—One Bun (?) burst in ye air last night and the peaces came into camp but did no damage. Jonathan Door went out with 8 of the light infantry and in 4 days brought in three persons for which Col. Haverlin gave him 32 dollars, besides other things; those that went out with him 8 dollars each. These prisoners say General Amherst is within 50 miles of Moreal (Montreal). Rainy, cold and uncomfortable weather. An unlucky shower of musket balls came from ye fort last night when we were erecting a new battery, which wounded one officer and 14 men. Engineer Warren received a ball in his back which lodged near his backbone—but likely to recover. Sergeant Furbush his right hand shot quite off, his left broke, by which means he lost his life. Our artillery played on them briskly last night.

25 A very fair, pleasant morning; firing ceases but little. The enemy attempted (to) come out against us with their grand (not legible), but the wind drove her toward our shore, the rangers kept up such a fire on them after shooting the Captain's head off, the others were glad to surrender on any terms. We pursued the schooner and other vessels, and by night we had command of all the vessels—took a number of prisoners and some cannon, besides other plunder. All the picket guards in camp called for to go to their relief. 20 prisoners were taken this afternoon—three of them officers. A shot from ye fort cut the neck bone of a young man clean off which killed him instantly. I (was) ordered on ye Royal Battery Guard—took 34 men with ensign Taylor and marched down opposite ye fort through a prodigious swamp within musket shot of ye fort and ye sentries, and staid within ye batteries with Lieut. Blakery of ye Regulars all night and all day, and by next night they threw 300 shells in the fort. I was relieved at 12 oclock at night by Capt. March—fowl weather. Lt. Sewall went on board of one of the French prizes to stay.

- Aug. 27 This morning the enemy opened a battery against one of ours, and at 6 o'clock began to play briskly—but our 24 pounder soon stilled them. They begun to play from all the batteries and continued very smart on both sides until 2 o'clock. An unlucky shot from the enemy set our magazine on fire which blew one provincial 40 feet in the air and burned his life out, killed one regular (and) wounded others. I (am) ordered on picket to-night with Capt. Jackson and Ensign Childs. At two o'clock this night, there came a French deserter which gave an account that the French had left the island; at four o'clock there came 15 or 20 more which gave the same account.
- 28 This morning the regulars and the rangers took possession of the island & fort, the picket relieved and reduced to a Sergeant and 12. The others ordered to go to draw ye cannon and put them on board ye shipping. A sergeant and 6 men of ye rangers followed ye French army overtook a Doctor, took him back and took from him to the (amount) of 15 dollars each, chiefly in cash, one silver watch. A man in the siege was going along to the suttler's with a dollar in his hand, a cannon ball came and struck the dollar away and cut his fingers off. I (am) ordered on duty tomorrow, but being taken with a pain in my head and eyes, I could not go.

Aug. 29 The artillery all embarking on board, the vessels endeavored to proceed to St. John.

30 Ordered to strike our tents at 5 o'clock and embark on board the battoes. Fowl weather and everything in confusion. The weather cleared off at 4 o'clock and we set off—arrived at St. Johns at 5 o'clock. The enemy burned the fort and most of the houses and fled to moreal (Montreal). Ordered to pitch our tents—got them in readiness—ordered to lay on our arms till further orders. Ordered to move nearer ye right and pitch our tents. Lodged in peace though in an enemy's country and but a little distance from Moreal. Major Rogers had a small brush with the enemy. Lost 2 killed besides wounded. Took seven prisoners. One man on guard heard guns at Moreal.

31 By all that I can learn from my almanac it is the last day of ye month. Tis Sunday and I heard there was a prayer made this morning, though I had not a chance to hear it or any other since I left the point. Received two letters from home. As much difference between preaching here and what I used to hear, as between blessing and cursing. Ordered to throw up entrenchments, to defend ourselves as we expected a visit from ye enemy every day. Ordered not to entrench as we expect to move soon. Took a walk into the fort when it was all burning to ashes—10 or 12 chimneys standing—2 of ye houses 4 stories high: one vessel on ye stocks and one burned. The fort not very strongly fortified. The land round it clear and level, about 10 acres, but no improvement except one small garden which was destroyed. The night extreme cold and frosty. Ordered to strike our tents tomorrow morning at Revielle beating.

- Sept. 1 Struck our tents and got ready according to the time and waited for orders till 4 o'clock and then set off. Rowed half a mile and then stopt—advanced ye pickit and slept in ye battoes.
- 2 Our men discovered track of ye enemy—Set off at 8 oclock, came down the falls half a mile long; the water very shoal and very swift, and rocks plenty which makes it very difficult to go over; arrived at St Theresa's at 11 oclock, 8 miles below St. Johns. A considerable number of houses standing in pleasant places—good land for grass or grain. Half a mile back on the road, a very fine field of wheat, peas oats, and other fruit, though we are not allowed to take anything on pain of death. Jordan with a party of 40 men to go to the 17 regiment to receive orders. Ordered to go into the woods to cut brush and pickets to build breast-works dismissed them at sunset.
- 3 A very cold Storm of rain. Major Rogers went to Chamble and took three prisoners—one an officer—
- 4 Very pleasant morning. A detachment of 2 officers 6 subs. and 140 privates to go to Chamble. Took a walk this afternoon in the village and saw plenty of women & children: at night Major Scain arrived here from Chamble with 30 Frenchmen who refused to fight and desired liberty to enjoy their estates which was granted to them; also an account that the fort was given up.
- 5 Four french officers belonging to Chamble took a walk through our camps this evening. A large detachment from the Provincials and Light Infantry this day to go and take possession of Chamble. At two oclock, a party of rangers arrived here from General Murray with 6 French Officers—Seden of Murray's Rangers with them; a number of horses brought likewise.

- Sept. 6 Ordered to take 6 days allowance of pork and flour and hold ourselves in readiness to move tomorrow and join General Murry—A very hot day.
- 7 The French inhabitants employed to draw our artillery, provisions and baggage with 200 horses & wagons—ordered to strike our tents at 12 o'clock and take 2 days allowance more, and march for Moreal. March from St. Theresas at 12 and arrived at Chamblee at 4 o'clock. Made a little halt and then marched on through villages and woods, till 12 o'clock at night, and then ordered to halt and lay on our arms—fowl weather and rainy all night and nothing to cover us except the clothes we had on—the baggage wagon was not ordered but we passed the night somehow.
- 8 Ordered to march at sunrise—Moved on through villages and might have got sauce, but were not allowed time to eat or drink. But through Divine Goodness, at 1 o'clock we arrived opposite the famous city of Moreal (Montreal)—a very beautiful place—so much fatigued with my march that I am scarce able to stand. Just as we arrived, the news came that the city was given up to General Amherst; ordered to move forward and encamp. Got a little milk of a French-woman which revived me a little.
- 9 A very pleasant morning and the city appears exceeding beautiful, but am not allowed to go over. Took a walk back in the woods. Ordered to strike our tents to-morrow at daylight, to march back to Crown Point.
- 10 March from Moreal at 10 o'clock—Extremely hot weather. Marched very fast arrived at 3 o'clock on a plain where the French encamped when they left the Isle o nix—Paraded ourselves in their camps as our tents and baggage were bound to Chamblee by water. I (was) ordered on picket this night and nothing to lodge on but the ground except a few bushes & nothing to cover me but the heavens except a large cloud; there was rain in great plenty all night: passed the night though with little comfort.

- Sept. 11 Ordered to swing packs and march at daylight. Extreme bad marching—Rainy and slippery. Arrived at Chamblee at 12 o'clock; halted and ordered to make bush camps and lodge to-night.
- 12 The battoes not arrived as yet and (we) are short on it for provisions. Spent the day in looking for the boats, but look in vain.
- 13 Not an officer in camp—Scarce anything to eat. I sent out and got one quart of milk and 2/—York for 3 lbs of bread. The battoes arrived at last—the provisions, some stale and some spoiled—had not time to cook any. Marched off and arrived at St. Theresa's at Sunset and ordered to pitch our tents—Ordered to strike tents at day-light and embark on board the battoes.
- 14 Set off at 6 o'clock arrived at St. John at 12. Stopped till all the fleet arrived; one of Capt. Morton's men badly burned by his horn ketching on fire in a French house. Set off at 2 o'clock; arrived at the Isle o' Noix at 8, paraded on board the battoes, took our sick on board,
- 15 This morning, and set off at 8 o'clock—overcast weather and some rain all day—Rowed 20 miles and landed in a little harbor.
- 16 Set off at day-break with a fair wind—arrived at Crown Point at 12 o'clock at night; paraded in ye canoes.
- 17 Carried our battoes around the Point and brought our things up and encamped. Received a letter from York and wrote two letters to York.
- 19 Nothing remarkable to-day.
- 20 Still unsettled weather, took a walk round the camps in the garden.

- Sept. 21 This day the storm just set in. Nothing remarkable this day.
- 22 All the Rangers that have arrived are ordered to carry ye battoes back to the Isle o'noix. Lt. Sayward gone with them. A very sickly time in camp at present.
- 23 The weather pleasant & fair this morning.
- 24 4 Regimental Court Martials this day in camp. Capt. Moulton, President of one—Members Lieut. Magee, Lt. Boynton, Ensign Gilson, Ensign Wheelock. Rainy afternoon and night.
- 25 Still fowl weather. The 17th Reg^t. and chief of ye vessels arrived here to-day. Nothing remarkable for this day, only I heard a prayer this night on parade, after that one of Capt. West's men received 500 lashes.
