Blackshear iana

Intended to be a "Spread Eagle" coverage of people, events and conditions as they were found, and to supply genealogical data about those whose names were or are spelled with any of the variants of the last syllable.

With the exception of the negroes, who "took" the names of their former owners at the time of their transition from slave to free men, it will be found that there is a blood relationship existing among a vast majority of those whose names appear herein, regardless of the spelling of the last syllable.

From "History of Surnames of the British Isles" by C. L. Ewen p. 376 "—sell, —sey see shaw. —shall, —see —see shaw. —Shall, —see see Shaw. —sole, —sell, —sey, —shall, —shar, —sher, —shier, —shire, —shaw, —sow as in Hensher, Kershaw, Ormshire. Often confused with —shire and variants" p. 78 "Many new Sir Names were given to the families of the Scots as Mar, Lowder, Shaw et al from the lands they had in possession by a Council at Forfar in 1061, headed by Malcolm Canmore page 173, de la Schawe, meaning 'of the Schawe' (a small wood.) now Shaw" p. 256 "Modern Scottish Surnames of Scottish genealogical influence include Shaw, (sometimes local)."

After the Council at Forfar in 1061, came the Norman Conquest and the introduction of the "de la" prefix. The numerical increase in families in a relatively small country over the years created the necessity for more definitive prefixes in order to identify the many families who descended from the Schawes, Shalls, Shaws and others. As in the case of the Douglas family, where one finds the Black Douglas, et al, so with the Shaws. Some prefixes referred to the personal appearance, such as the Black Shaw, (as distinguished from the fair or ruddy Shaws). Some referred to the environment in which they lived such as Black-Schawe, Black-Shall or Black-Shaw referring to their densely wooded lands.

The Society of Genealogists, Harrington Gardens, London, England, considers Blackshaw to be the most used spelling in the British Isles, therefore all variants are cross indexed into Blackshaw. The earliest being of Scotland, the later and more numerous were located mostly in Cheshire. Some were found in other English Counties, in London and in Ireland.

In the American Colonies and later in the United States the spelling of the name varied as numerously as in Britain, for example, the following have been documented, most of them blood kin: Blackshaw, —sha, —shar, —share, —shair, —sher, —shere, —shear, —sheare, —shir, —shire, —shier, —shiar, —shor, —shur, etc., etc.

In this collection, (negroes excepted), most of the American people named Blackshear or any variant, have descended from Robert Blackshaw, first documented as son of Thomas and Ellenor of Piscataway, N. J., 1677. The spelling of his name in land grants, deeds and other records dated during his lifetime varied between Blackshaw, 'shar, 'share, etc. No doubt the notaries, scribes, clerks and other officials spelled the name the way they heard it, leaving space for "His (R) Mark". The names of his sons, Randall, Thomas, and Alexander varied likewise and perhaps for the same reason. These variants continued until their descendants learned to write their own signatures and also to make their own choices, the most frequent choice being Blackshear.

The British pronunciation all but ignores the last syllable, making the name sound like Blackshr. Many American families are inclined to place small emphasis on the first syllable making the name sound like Blckshear, Blckshare or Blckshire, etc.

No great effort has been made in this compilation to reproduce the spelling used by any particular family, therefore some may find their names ending in some variant other than the one they use. The spelling does not in any way affect their connection with the other families who may use other variants.

As early as 1588, in England, there seems to have been much indifference about the spelling and treatment of the name. From the Principal Probate Registry, London P. C. C. Wills, 1383 to 1716, 1588 Blackshawe alias Shawe, William, Chesterfield, Derby. 52 Rutland 1639 Blacks(h)all, Oliver St. Osyth, Essex 11 Harvey 1656 Blackshawe alias Shawe, Godfrey, yeoman, Dronfield, Derby 293 Berkley. From "Surnames of the United Kingdom'', by Henry Harrison, page 36, the following definition is quoted: ''Blackshaw (Eng.) Dweller at Black Wood (O. E. bloec+s c (e) aga)'' Via V.

Traditions and Documentations

Searching for documentation to prove, "Family Tradition", consumes a great deal of time and a lot of money.

All too frequently traditions attached to one person or family are displaced, the events having occurred in the lives of others than those to whom they are traditionally attached.

Such is the tradition that the Blackshears came to America from Germany, and that they were "full blooded Germans". Much time and money were consumed in vain efforts to prove that this family tradition was based on facts. Another tradition that the family came from Holland was also investigated, as was the tradition that the family came from Switzerland with the de Graffenried colony and settled at New Bern, N. C. Extensive foreign correspondence and personal research made in Germany, Holland and Switzerland failed to reveal any clues, hints, probabilities or even possibilities that those countries cradled the Blackshear ancestors. Careful research among the available names included in the de Graffenried party, and among the 30,000 Palatines who came to America failed to find any name which, by reasonable transliteration or probable translation could be made into Blackshear or any variant thereof.

The Centraal Bureau voor Genealogie, Nassaulaan 18, Den Haagn, Nederland, stated: "We would inform you that the family name Blackshear, Blackshaare, Oomblahere, etc., does not occur in the Netherlands."—Signed W. Ph.Veere.

Theodore von Lerber, Professional Genealogist, Marktgasse 42. Berne, Switzerland, stated on 23 July, 1952: "It does not seem to be the case that Blackshear was from Berne, in the records of the emigrants, the first volume starts with the years 1694-1754, there does not occur a single name that would even have any similarity. Among the thousands of names which figure in the records there are very few which went to America." (A translation from statement by Hans Marti).

On 29 Aug., 1952, Dr. Friedrich Krebs, Archivist for the Pfalz. (formerly part of the Palatinate), Speyer, Germany, Domplats 6, stated: "As to your ancestor Blackshear, Blacksette or Blokshear, I have found that in 1709 a man with the name

Boesshaar has emigrated from the town of Zweibricken to America. His ancestors are said to have come from Switzerland. This Boesshaar did not come to Carolina with deGraffenried, but he was found in New York City and at the Hudson for the years 1710-1712. He was a cooper''.

Failing to locate any clues on the continent, it seemed advisable to do some research in Britain, this research proved to be more fruitful as the contents of this work will show.

The ''German'' family tradition, probably is based on association and location. No foreign research on de Graffenried, John Martin Franck, (Frank), or Philip Mueller (Miller) was undertaken.

References in American historical and genealogical books are accepted. The following information is from those sources:

Baron Christopher de Graffenried, a Swiss nobleman and adventurer, was granted land at the confluence of the Trent and Neuse Rivers in N. C. He was also granted expense money, the condition being that he take his colonists from the Palatines who had fled to England from their German homes. He hired three ships, two for transporting the Palatines and one for his own personal aides who came from Berne, Switzerland.

John Martin Franck, a German but not from the Palatinate, came to America in 1709, on the same ship with Philip Mueller and his family, who were from the Palatinate section of Germany. Franck, then a mature scholar of 27 years of age, fell in love with Jacob Mueller's young daughter, Civilla, (sometimes listed as Sevil), she was but 17 years of age and too young for marriage, so we have a case of the old love story, ''he waited for her''. Among their issue was a daughter, Catherine, who married first, Hardy Bush and had issue, after the death of Bush, Catherine married James Blackshear. The location of the Franck settlement was quite near to the location of the Alexander Blackshear settlement, a few miles from New Berne, (now Newbern, N. C.) the Blackshear-Franck community was then known as ''New Germany.''

No documentation, either foreign or American could be found which connected James Blackshear with the deGraffenried party or with the immigrant Palatines.

It is documented that James Blackshear was the son of Agnes and Alexander Blackshear who came to Craven County, N. C., from Delaware between the years 1740-1747. Careful research failed to disclose any other James Blackshear, contemporaneously, or in that locality.

It seems to be logical to conclude that the "German" tradition was started from the tales heard about the German family connections, located at New Germany on the Trent River in Craven County, N. C., rather than from the Blackshears who moved into that county some 30 or more years after the arrival of the deGraffenried party. Catherine and her parents undoubtedly spoke the German language in their homes, their children and grandchildren would therefore have been familiar with it, and spoke it on occasion, and their stories to their descendants could very well be remembered incorrectly, giving rise to traditions which were misapplied.

Research made after the S. F. Miller, "Memoirs of General David Blackshear" were printed, have definitely proven that documentation is preferable to family tradition.

Armorial Bearings

Research, while incomplete, reveals three coats of arms: one illustrated, but without blazon, one with blazon, but without illustration, and one with both illustration and blazon.

The Blackshear coat of arms, used for generations by members of the family in various parts of the United States, must have been designed from a description of it, for although the essential armorial bearings and motto are the same in every illustration found, some copies of the arms show variation in technique, according to the taste of the artist who interpreted the description.

Research for the origin of the Blackshear arms was halted by the conditions surrounding the records in Scotland and Ireland.

Like the Shawe and Blackshawe families, the arms probably originated in Scotland.

The illustration shown is from a line drawing made by A. Laura E. Blackshear; from the design used by relatives in Ga., La., and Fla. The blazon is hers also.

The Blackshaw coat of arms is taken from a description to be found in Burke's "General Armory". The illustration shown is from a line drawing made by A. Laura E. Blackshear. The blazon is from Burke.

The resemblance to the Blackshawe arms is so close as to suggest that an unrecorded cadency or achievement occurred. Note that the erminois becomes ermine, and the fourth trefoil becomes a stalk of oak leaves and an acorn. The vested cubit arm is omitted.

The Blackshaw arms are probably the best known of the three, because of the widespread and frequent use of the Burke books by students of genealogy, heraldry and kindred subjects. Researchers interested in families of British origin also use the Burke books extensively.

The Blackshawe coat of arms is registered in the College of Arms, Queen Victoria Street, London, where the records show by whom and to whom it was granted. The College of Arms is an ancient and honorable institution. Its virility and usefulness are proven by the number of years it has functioned and by its present high standing. The illustration may be accepted as portraying, correctly, the arms which were granted to Thomas Blackshawe of Adlington in the year 1613.

On 1 May, 1954, The Master of Sinclair, Portcullis, at the College of Arms, wrote in part: "There is a grant of arms to Thomas Blackshawe of Adlington, Co. Chester by Sir Richard St. George, the then Norroy King of Arms, in 1613. In the grant he is described as son of William, son of Robert. ....in one of Augustin Vincent's late 17th, century books on Cheshire, I find a short pedigree of the family. This pedigree is headed by John Blackshawe of Withington, Co., of Chester. He had a son Robert, also described as of Withington. He had a son William, described of Adlington. This William married Maude Benet, and they had a son, Thomas, who had the Grant of Arms in 1613. This Thomas married twice. First Margaret, the daughter of Thomas Salesbury of Flint in Wales; and secondly Sara, the daughter of Thomas Davenport of Butley. They had a son Thomas and a daughter Anne. ...." (See Entry for a son John baptised 1608, Cit. Prestbury Parish Registers and "Visitations to Cheshire" by the Harlean Society.)

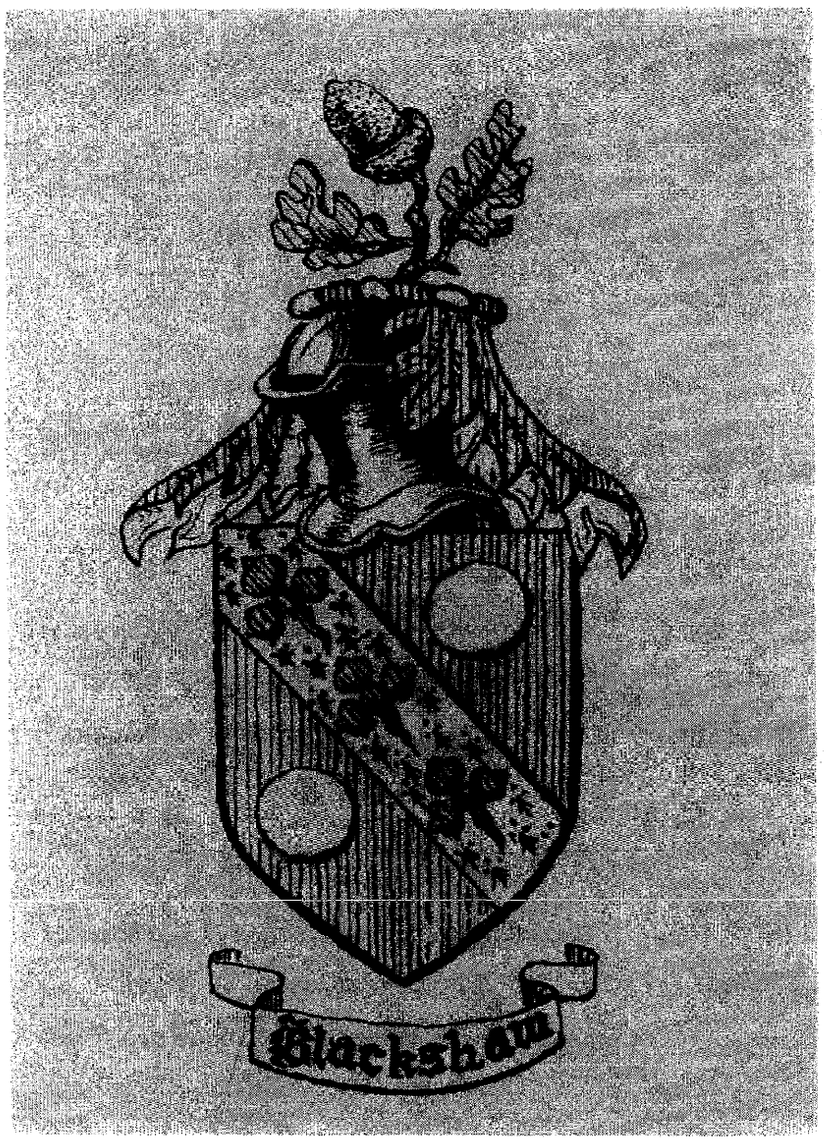
The illustration used is from a line drawing by A. Laura E. Blackshear, who used as a model the colored painting which was supplied by the College of Arms to the compiler in 1954. The blazon is by the College of Arms. A more complete blazon would be as follows: Gules, on a bend erminois, between two plates, three trefoils slipped vert. Mantling, gules doubled argent.

Crest: above the helmet resting on the escutcheon, on a wreath of the colors, a dexter cubit arm erect, vested erminois, cuffed white, the hand proper, grasping a trefoil, as in the arms.

Here follows a key to the color symbols: Argent—Silver or white, left blank. Gules—Red, vertical lines. Vert—Green, diagonal lines drawn from the dexter to the sinister side of the shield. Sable—Black, cross hatch, vertical over horizontal lines. Proper—Natural, (According to nature). Or—Gold or Yellow, expressed by dots. Azure—Blue, horizontal lines. Ermine—A white fur with black tufts. Erminois—A fur, the field or, the tufts sable.

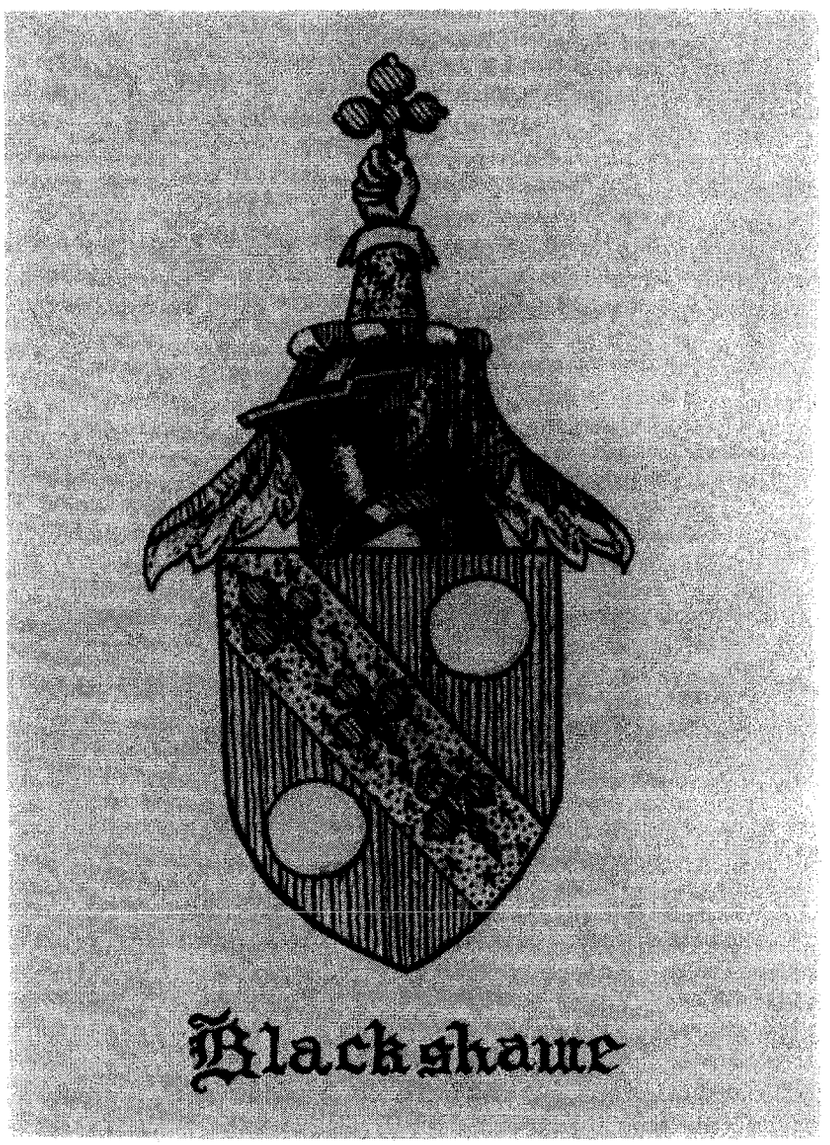
BLAZON OF THE BLACKSHEAR ARMS

Blackshear armorial bearings. Argent, a lion passant, on a chief gules, three mullets of the first, a fillet, or. Crest: From a wreath of the colors, a demi lion rampant, naissant. Supporters: On either side a lion rampant—all lions black with red tongues. Motto: On a scroll azure, doubled silver, VIVENS UT VINCAT. (Living to overcome.)



BLAZON OF THE BLACKSHAW ARMS

Blackshaw armorial bearings. Gules, on a bend ermine between two plates, three trefoils slipped vert. Crest: An acorn or stalked and leaved vert. Cit. Burke, "General Armory".



BLAZON OF THE BLACKSHAWE ARMS

Blackshawe armorial bearings. Gules, on a bend erminois between two plates, three trefoils vert. Crest: A dexter hand proper vested erminois. Cit. College of Arms, London.

Founding Families in the United States of America.

The challenges of the future are for the young couples of today. It is theirs to found families which will be able to meet and to master the intricate conditions of tomorrow.

Any young American, whether he be of high or humble birth, rich or poor, literate or illiterate, may, by the exercise of his talents and energies, become the founder of a family whose descendants shall proudly take rank with the descendants of those hardy, brave and industrious American Colonists, the Signers of the Declaration of Independence, the Patriots of the American Revolution, the Creators of the Constitution of the United States and other Builders of the American way of life.

Blackshears were and are among the builders of America and the American way of life.

All white Blackshears, whose lineage could be traced, came from two immigrant families. First: Thomas and Ellinor, 1677. They were the ancestors of most of those whose names appear herein. Second: Randall and Alice, 1682, whose male descendants seem to have disappeared with their grandson, Nehemiah.

One comes to accept the idea that all white Blackshears are "kinfolks". The immigrant ancestors were pioneers in the real and rugged connotation. They did their parts in developing the resources and forming the pattern of the Colonial way of life in America. The imprint of their character, worth, and work was left especially in the Colonies of Delaware and North Carolina.

They contributed their sons and their substance to the cause of the American Revolution.

The northern Blackshears fought for the cause of the United States in the 1861-65 war. Their southern kin contributed their all to the cause of the Confederacy. These southerners accepted and overcame the devastations which, in those days, followed the vanquished in war. They became pioneers and builders again after 1865.

Their descendants may be found in the forefront of worth while affairs of today. They are making themselves felt in the realms of religion, education, science, medicine, business and agriculture, as well as in the social and esoteric groups.

One will search in vain for the proverbial "Horse Thief", or the victim of the hangman's noose. Not one was found.

Not all were saints by any stretch of the imagination. Included, but not identified, are two children born out of wedlock; one was accused of violating a trust,—he died of a broken heart before he could be tried; one was tried for murder,—the verdict was "justifiable homicide"; one ignorantly settled on land which had been previously granted to another; several had local reputations for possessing extensive and emphatic "cussin" vocabularies. Doubtless there were and are "hidden sins" among those of all generations, but in the overall, the family conduct watch words seem to have been discretion and forethought.

Throughout the years, one observes the many Blackshears who were preachers and teachers. In the early years agriculture was their vocation but preaching and teaching were their avocations.

One cannot fail to observe the many who joined the armed forces of their State and Nation. From Privates to Generals, they have written impressive military history. Throughout the years Blackshears have proven their patriotism in war and peace.

The vast majority seem to have loved God and their fellowman. Sundays were Church and Neighbor days.

It seems to have been characteristic that fathers, when able, gave their children a "start" when they grew up, and the children "took care" of their parents during their declining years.

Profanity, murder, adultery, thieving, lying, and coveting seem to have been foreign to the history which this family has written for itself.

From the Church of England days, through the Presbyterians, the Quakers, the Baptists, the Methodists and other denominations, Blackshears have been active Churchmen.

In this history, 1677 to 1954, will be found many poor, some rich, some illiterate, many literate, A.Bs., M.As., M.Ss., Ph.Ds., M.Ds., D.D.s., D.D.Ss., L.L.Ds., etc.; some leaders and many loyal followers of the right,—all builders of the American way of life.

Ninety years ago, one said; "....the truth is, we love truth and honesty too well to cultivate the arts of dissembling; without truth and honesty, real refinement is very seldom observed."

Fifty years ago, one said; "The name Blackshear is the synonym for honesty, integrity, and uprightness, and I am proud to be descended from them."

One year ago, one said: "The Blackshears are modest people and Christians, I believe you could get more information from outside sources than you could from us."

To those characteristics their history adds an obvious innate drive or force which presages achievement in whatever direction their energies may be aimed. The descendants of the "Knights of Battle Abbey and the Barons of Runnymeade" have no nobler heritage.

Pedigrees

Due to the great number of people mentioned and the long period of time covered, it was not feasible to arrange pedigrees in the usual genealogical order.

It will not be too difficult to find the pedigrees of those who have supplied the necessary information about the recent or living families.

Completed entries contain three generations. By following the entries backward in time, using the parents as guides, the pedigrees can be established back to Robert Blackshaw. He was the ancestor of most of those who are to be found in this compilation. The exceptions are those to be found in the Entries which are not complete.

There are many Entries which contain only a name and an address. At least one request for information was sent to each one of these who are now alive, but no response was received from them. Even these may find their pedigrees, if their private or family records go back far enough to connect with one of the older families.

There are other Entries for some who were located through research, with no parents or other connecting link shown. These are of doubtful value in establishing pedigrees, but they did live, they did bear the name, and they are therefore, included. Later researchers may find their tasks less confusing by knowing that those people were not overlooked in this work. As examples, a few of these are named here: Arent of N. J., John of Va., Daniel and Ruth of N. J., Randall and Alice of Pa., Rachael and Samuel of Ireland, Joseph of Dela., Joseph of Pa., Jacob of Pa., Thomas of Rowan Co., N. C., Elijah of Craven and Jones Counties, N. C., Thomas of Ga., and Thomas of N. J.

Each main Entry begins with the given or Christian name of one who was or is named Blackshear, (or variant). They are arranged in alphabetical sequence, the names of their spouses appear in the Entries, also in the index.

Some confusion may occur when one remembers the traditional names instead of the real or documented names, such as "Dear Aunt Angie" whose first name may have been Emily;

her Entry would, therefore, begin with Emily in the E section.

Time, space and money were not available in sufficient supply to follow those whose names were changed by marriage further than to the married names of their children, and then, of course, only in those cases where by research or volunteer information the Entries could be completed.

Two pedigrees are submitted here by way of illustration, one American and one British: Edmund David, (in index) parent, Perry L. Jr., see Entry, parent, Perry L. Sr., parent, Perry Linkfield, parent, James Addison, parent, Enoch, parent, Jacob, parent, Elisha Stout, parent, Alexander, parent, Robert, parent, Thomas of Piscataway, N. J., 1677. The British pedigree is reversed; John of Withington had Robart of Withington, who had William of Adlington, who had Thomas of Adlington, who had John of Adlington, who had Thomas, who was baptised 25 Sept., 1634, all in Cheshire.

Church of England Registers were not systematically maintained during Cromwell's revolutionary years, there is therefore a gap of some 10 to 12 years in which the best sources of information do not exist. There remain the Court trials and procedures, the records of Wills and Administrations, the inventories of Estates and other public records, during those Cromwell years when Church registers were ill kept, if at all. Those years were from about 1649, the year that Charles 1st, was beheaded, until about 1660 when the Churches began to resume the function of recording baptisms, marriages and funerals. St. Wilfreds Church, Mobberly, Cheshire, having had the closest personal study of all the Churches, in and around Chester, shows no Blackshaw entires in her Registers from 1649 to 1660.

Later researchers may like to know that the following Cheshire parish registers have been searched for the marriage of Thomas Blackshaw and his wife Ellinor . . . ? . . ., with negative results: Alderly, Bebington, Bidstone, Bruera, Chelford, St. Bridget, St. Mary, St. Olave, Disley, Eastham, Frodsham, Gawsworth, Heswell, Holmes Chapel, Lymm, Marple, Martom, Prestbury, St. Mary (Stockport), Swettenham, Tarporley, Texall, Upton in Overchurch and Wallasey. There are some 40 odd other parish Churches with Registers in Cheshire, which began before 1677, the year that Thomas was first documented in America.

It is essential that the marriage of Thomas and Ellinor be documented, either in Britain or in America, before pedigrees can be extended beyond the shores of America.

Later researchers may like to know that searches were made in the Maine and New Hampshire public records and the Historical Society records, in an effort to establish an arrival earlier than 1677. Piscataway, N. J., was settled first by a group from Piscataqua, Maine, now New Hampshire. There were no Blackshaws among them, nor were there any records of Blackshaws having been among the earlier settlers of Maine and New Hampshire.

The Monnette books contain the most numerous references to the Blackshaw family: later research however, has followed the N. J. Blackshaws into Delaware, West Va., Pa., N. C., Ga., and other southern States. Monnette says that the Blackshaws arrived at Piscataway, N. J., in 1677, further that Gov. Carteret's ship, "Philip", made many crossings carrying colonists and supplies. Gov. Carteret was an appointee of the English Crown, and while he would have welcomed colonists from any source, it may be safely assumed that his ship plied between British ports and his N. J. ports. The next step therefore, in establishing a pedigree back of Thomas and Ellinor, would be to continue the researches in England.

For the convenience of those who may wish to make a record of their own pedigrees, several pedigree pages are included in the fore part of this book.

My Fam'ly Tree

I recollect when I was young
My daddy said that we
Cum from the best old Scottish blood
That ever crossed the sea!

Believin' every word he said
Wus like the Gospel true,
That all my folks were great and good;
Of course their blood was blue.

So I grew up to boyhood,
Went out to see the sights—
And thar, I learned, to my surprise
That other boys had rights!

It galled me some to see the airs
And how they spoke to me
Of their old ancestors and sich,
That come from o'er the sea!

Shucks! says I, this can't be true,
For Pa just said to me,
"My son, we have a coat-o'-arms
From o'er the deep blue sea-"

Says I ag'in, I'll fix you kinds;
You're none of high degree;
You're all a set of common folks,
But I've a pedigree!

So I writ back to Scotland,
My great-grand-dad's old home,
Expectin' that a king to find
A-setting' on the throne!

I nosed around in dockeyments,
And grave yards too, you see
That's whar a fellow gits the stuff
To build a family tree!

The higher I got up on the tree
With them dead kin o' mine,
The more the notion of their worth
Kept a-risin' all the time!

At last I heer'd from Scotland,
And this what wus said:
"You ain't got much to brag on now,
Your good kin is all dead!"

"They used to be good warriors,
Would rather fight than sleep,
But holy smoke, they fell from grace
And got to stealin' sheep!"

To me this was a stunnin' blow—
I fell from out the tree,
And, passin' down amongst its boughs,
I smashed my pedigree!

I fell so hard it mashed me flat;
That's why it seems to me
It's risky for us common folks
To build a family tree!

Abraham No. 1 b. Kent Co., Delaware or Craven Co., N. C. about 1742 son of Agnes and Alexander Blackshear. m. N. C. about 1768, name of wife not known, Issue No. 1 or No. 2 Abraham No. 2 No. 2 or No. 1 Alexander No. 3 Sarah all b. in N. C. between the years of (about 1769 and 1773. Abraham No. 2 m. first Elizabeth Stanley and second Mildred Lord. Alexander is said never to have married. Sarah was not married at the time of her Grandmother's death 1793. The custom of making wills was common in this family in those years, as witness the wills of Alexander, Agnes, James and Elisha Stout. Since no will made by this Abraham has been located one surmises that either he and his widow died young or moved to Georgia at the time that so many relatives were doing so, including his son Abraham No. 2. His father Alexander willed to this Abraham, among other items "—All my cider casks of what kind and nature soever they be—" in the year 1786. "1787-1789 Dec. 31st to Dec. 31st tax 5 shillings on an Ordinary license, Jones Co., N. C." At Louisville Ga. 5 Dec. 1814 one Abraham Blackshear was granted a license to distill spirits for the term 5 Dec. 1814 to 19 Dec. 1814. Dr. Raines says one Abraham moved to Sumter Co., Ala. others say that one Abraham moved to Conecuh Co., Ala both moving from Ga. From the above one wonders if both Abrahams came to Ga. at about the same time, the older one having some familiarity with Cider and Spirits, the younger devoting his time mostly to farming. Certain it is that Abraham No. 1 disappeared from the N. C. scene, either by untimely death or removal before the Federal Census of 1800 was taken. Here follows some of the N. C. documentation; 1764 Chain Bearer on Survey of land made for Elisha Stout B.

1766 Chain Bearer for Surveyor Levin Lane on land for Elisha Stout B.
1779 Assessed for taxes on two negroes Jones Co., N. C.
1785 "My son Abraham" named in the will of Alexander B.
1785 County, not Federal Census of Jones Co., N. C. indicates that he was in the household of Alexander B. his father.
1787 Taxed 5 shillings for an "Ordinary License" Jones Co., N. C.
1790 Listed in Federal Census of Jones Co., N. C.
1793 Granted 32 Acres on the South Side of Trent River Book 8 p. 371 Record of land Grant Office.
1793 "My son Abraham" mentioned in the will of Agnes B.
Further research in the N. C. area failed to disclose any other trace of this Abraham Blackshear. Research in Georgia is imcomplete because of the disappearance of records from many of the older counties, some by fire, some by war and some by indifferent handling.

Three slaves listed. 1810 Not listed in Sampson Co., Census. 1806 participated in Ga. Land Lottery while living in Washington County Ga. the Anderson District (later Morgan, Putnam and Jasper Counties) he drew lot No. 220. 1814 one Abraham (could have been his father) granted a license to distill spirits in Washington Co., Ga. 1820 Listed in Federal Census of Conecuh Co., Ala. does not appear in the 1830 Census, name spelled Abram Blackshaw in the 1820 Census. Listed as son of Abraham No. 1 by Dr. T. H. Raines, writing about 1903. Family records indicate that he moved from Ga. to Sumter Co., Ala. first and then to Conecuh Co. The issue of Elizabeth Stanley spelled the name "Blackshear," the issue of Mildred Lord spelled it "Blacksher" their later descendants continue each spelling.

Never married. 1850 Census lists A.M.B. 20, Clerk b. in Ga., lived in the John L. Jones household. Writing in 1865 James Appleton Blackshear says "Late in the afternoon I called at Mrs. Cotton's to see Miss Harrold. I had the pleasure of seeing Cousin Marian and her delicate little boy. She has a comely face, an elegant figure and evidently a good disposition." Charles Cotton Blackshear won scholarship to Mercer University Macon Ga. another to Johns Hopkins at Baltimore, Md. where he majored in, and received Ph.D. in Chemistry. Taught at Goucher, now Womans College of Baltimore. World Traveler & student of Ancient Asian Architecture. Writing in 1922, a newspaper man with signature d. V. wrote the following article titled.

"THE PROFESSOR FROM JOGJA"

JOGJA
April 14

Anyone who knows Jogja, knows the Grand Hotel and the professor. There is but one professor in Jogja and he lives in that hotel. Everyone sees him daily along the roadside, and points him out with somewhat respectful surprise, but no one knows him any better.

May I bring forth this professorial amonymity, this incognito, and introduce Professor Charles C. Blackshear to you? For truly an ex-university professor who lives year after year in this city, studying town and environment, remains a somewhat peculiar character. Moreover, one sees immediately that this man is an old or ex-professor, a learned man, with all the queer characteristics innate in this type human being, characteristics which one usually reads about rather than meets in daily experience. Typical traits distinguish him from the ordinary man. He is slim, and therefore appears taller than he actually is. He walks around day and night dressed in a heavy brown colbert suit which possesses the least possible tropical allurement. Although this is not official, it has been vowed that the wardrobe of this man consists of not much more than this one suit! I should not omit mentioning the stark black bow tie adorning the sagging collar of his formal shirt; the eternally brown hat; and the umbrella of undefinable color. This last item of inventory disproves the libelous tales circulated about professors that they suffer from absent-mindedness, manifested by the fact that they usually forget their umbrellas everywhere they go. If there is ever an article that the professor does not leave behind him wherever he goes, it is his faithful umbrella. For it serves him as a pajong* against rain and sun, depending on how the monsoon dictates. In the evening for all security, he carries it clutched under his arm—that is in the early evening. At a later hour it dangles loosely with the handle hooked over his arm. By the way that he carries his umbrella during the day, the early or late evening, a manner of dressing up is expressed which in a way is rather a conventional necessity since his brown suit remains otherwise unchanged!

Professor Blackshear is always alone. Only once did I see him speaking with the hotel manager. Just once did he really laugh, when a jovial hotel guest played and danced the part of a Javanese bridegroom. But then, I must admit that times are such that none of us feels much like laughing.

In the morning and the evening he goes for long walks. The purpose of these long walks is unknown to me. They usually take him along the main roads. When it's dark he often carries a letter. Neither do I know whether he intends to drop it into a mailbox.

This is all that the good old town of Jogja knows about its American scholar—this unknown person, well in his fifties, grey haired and unobtrusively bespecticaled—this professor of the Grand Hotel.

Although he never seemed to attract conversation, once I dared to interview the professor. No sooner had we begun talking than the mysterious atmosphere dropped, although much strangeness remained. For mysteriousness after all is only that which is unattainable to us. Professor Blackshear, who does not have any secrets, proved himself an amiable conversationalist. He has retained a genuine American accent.

I shall now share our discussion with you. After all it's about time that we start to know this professor from mid-Java. Charles C. Blackshear adds to his signature a "Ph. D.", a doctor of philosophy, which he obtained from Johns Hopkins University. He was born in Macon, Georgia and taught chemistry at Goucher College in Baltimore, Maryland. He switched from philosophy to chemistry and from chemistry to architecture. However, he took up architecture only as a hobby, while chemistry was a necessity for earning his daily bread. Besides, he argues that chemistry and its study of atoms and molecular structure has a lot in common with ancient architecture and its basic constituent principles.

During his vacations he had already made short trips to British India and studied not only the architectural designs of the temples of Buddha, but also the structural arts of other schools. He visited British India for the first time in 1904, but since then until 1916, when he gave up teaching at the university, he made as many as five summer trips there.

"Did you retire?" I asked.

Retirement with pension proved not to exist at his college, but he had some money of his own.

"Millionaire?" inquired I immediately with a somewhat American accent. That, however, was not the case either. Just moderate means, a calm life and only allowing himself short trips was the answer. Besides he had never married and thus had no children of his own to care for; only a few far away friends.

But he never feels lonesome. On his summer trip in 1908 he crossed for the first time from India to Java. He came back in 1917 to study our ancient history and stayed for five months. During this time he used Jogja as his headquarters and traveled from here all over the island.

He went back to India to continue his historic architectural studies, but he was back in Java again on account of climatic reasons, before the end of 1917. British India just within the scope of the monsoons could not permanently tempt him. Jogja seemed to have for him the ideal tropical climate. Besides, he likes the way of life here. His special studies were about Boroboedoer and Prambanan. He spent the winter of 1920 in Siam (Bangkok) only to return again the same year to Jogja, paying a visit to Bali in 1921.

"Did you write any articles in American scientific periodicals or magazines?" "No, never. But I did write a book 'The Mounments of the Peoples of India, Java and Cambodja' I have beautiful photographs to go with it. The book discusses all the important and interesting antiquities of those countries."

Here the professor stopped talking; and I asked who published this work. Whereupon he gave the answer which perhaps forms the tragical side of this lonesome life of study. "It's not printed yet. It has been in the hands of the largest publishers in New York, London and Australia. They all find it extremely interesting and beautiful, but in these expensive times, they cannot afford the expense of printing this type work nor can I carry the expenses. Therefore, I shall just have to await more advantageous times."

After more questions, I found out that Professor Blackshear taught himself to read Javanese. However, he does not speak a word of Dutch.

"But I see you read the telegrams regularly every evening in the local papers?" "Yes, I usually can follow the content of the telegrams, but not any contemplative articles."

"And what are your further plans?"

"To return in September this year to British India and perhaps remain there forever."

However, the hotel manager informed that Mr. Blackshear has previously reached similar decisions often. And thus for the time being Jogja keeps its professor.

James Blackshear does not mention a son named Alexander, Abraham's son named Alexander moved to Alabama and never m. "Aleck" mentioned as son of Elisha Stout Blackshear in Family Chart made by James Appleton Blackshear about 1865 after visiting his Grandfather Enoch, who was Grandson to Elisha Stout via Jacob, and who dictated the information found in the chart. Several other sons of Elisha Stout left home before his Will was made, he speaks of some of his dau. as having "received their proportionate share of my estate" No doubt it was his custom to give property to his children when they either m. or moved on to seek their fortunes elsewhere. The will of Alexander Blackshear No. 1 mentions "Grandsons" Jacob and Alexander, his widow Agnes carried out the purpose of the bequest by making deeds to Jacob and Alexander later, the Alexander mentioned was undoubtedly the son of Abraham. The 1820 Census of Laurens Co., Ga. lists 3 males and 3 females young enough to be the children of this Alexander and Ann, 3 slaves also appear.

BUSINESS WOMEN TO HAVE TEA

Miss Audrey Blackshare has been appointed chairman of the "National Hand of Friendship" tea to be held by the Little Rock chapter of the American Business Women's Association today from 3 to 5 p.m. in the home of Mrs. Mollie Goodwin.

This tea climaxes the fall membership drive. Chapters throughout the United States will have teas today, the same as the Little Rock group.

The American Business Women's Association has grown rapidly, nationally, in four years, to where it now has 56 chapters, with members in 32 states. It is designed to work with other organizations, since the ABW's group is a professional, educational association, devoted to the individual member's needs and desires. Each chapter is limited to 100 members. It is nonunion, nonsectarian and nonpolitical.

The national convention, which will be held October 24-25, will convene in Ft. Worth, Tex.

Business women are invited to attend the tea this afternoon.

Miss Nora Milligan is president of the Little Rock chapter, assisted by Mrs. Darace LaFollette, vice president; Miss Annette Ward, recording secretary; Mrs. Ruth Dexter, corresponding secretary, and Mrs. Vivian Smith, treasurer. Mrs. Mildred Heihn is publicity chairman.

Alexander of Kent Co., Dela. and Craven Co., N. C. and his wife Agnes sur-name not known. Robert of Sussex and Kent Counties Delaware and his wife whose name is not known. He was a Genealogist as well as a public spirited citizen and Doctor. His other lineage was traced back through the Mitchell Family to the Saxon Kings of England, His immigrant ancestor was Christopher Branch of Arrowbattock and Kingsland, Henrico County Va. arriving March 1619/20. Item 3 of his Will "I bequeth to the Va. Historical Society all my books, pamphlets and manuscripts relating to Genealogy, Heraldry and Kindred Subjects." The two books he wrote in long hand covered No. 1 all that he could learn about James Blackshear and his descendants No. 2 all that he could learn about Elisha Stout Blackshear and his descendants, the No. 2 book also contains all that he could learn about the descendants of Abraham Blackshear. These three sons of Alexander and Agnes Blackshear headed up the three main branches of the Southern Blackshear Families. Including this too slight reference to Dr Raines is in appreciation of the work he did and for the records he left, without which the collecting of the data included herewith would have been very much more difficult.

In a letter dated May 24, 1902 (No. 252 Courtland Ave., an old residential Street in Atlanta, Ga.) Dr. Raines wrote to Mrs. R. B. Hollingsworth at Fresno, Calif. as follows: My dear Mrs. Hollingsworth,—I thank you most heartily for your very kind and interesting letter. It is certainly a pleasure to know you, even if our acquaintance be through the post entirely, and I assure you, my branch of the house is noted for its love of kindred, no matter how distant the connection be. . . . I believe I wrote you that I am engaged in writing a history of the family. You would be astonished to know the vast amount of information I have gathered about them, and am yet not half through. The name Blackshear is the synonym for honesty, integrity and uprightness, and I am proud to be descended from them. . . .

And Madam, believe me, I am sincerely your kinsman, Thomas Hart Raines.

Annie Laura Eve Blackshear b. Augusta, Ga. 30 Oct. 1875 dau. of Katherine McCallum Baker and James Everard Blackshear No. 1. Living Athens, Ga. 1954 never married.
A biographical sketch presented at the testimonial dinner given to Laura Blackshear February, 1945, in Athens, Ga. as "The Woman of the Years." Not only all Athens but people from all over the State came and sent messages appropriate to the occasion.

ANNIE LAURA EVE BLACKSHEAR

In "Who's Who in Art" published by the American Federation of Arts, Annie Laura Eve Blackshear, born Oct. 30th, 1875, is listed as "Painter, Illustrator, Lecturer, Teacher, Writer." Also for years she was radio commentator over W.S.B. on art topics for the Georgia State College of Agriculture, and she wrote and produced plays and pageants for this institution and for the Georgia Federation of Women's Clubs. Laura Blackshear's ability to be so versatile may be explained by her boundless energy, her keen acquisitive mind, her rare talent and skill, and a personal charm and force that makes possible anything she attempts. Painter and Teacher. After graduation from the Tubman High School in Augusta, Ga. Laura Blackshear continued her education at Lucy Cobb Institute in Athens where she won the highest art award. She then went to New York and became a pupil of Twachtman, Chase, Gifford, Breckenridge, Garber and others in the schools: Woman's Art School, Cooper Union, Art Students League, New York School of Art, and later studied in Summer School of Pennsylvania Academy of Fine Arts and at the University of Ga. in Athens.

Fortified with several certificates, awards and diplomas from Georgia and New York, she began her singularly active career as Art Director for Piedmont College, Demorest, Ga. serving there seven years, then she became Director of Art and Music at Nacoochee Institute, Sautee, Ga. and at Jones Normal School at Eclectic, Alabama. She returned to Athens to become General Secretary of the Y.W.C.A., before being elected some twenty years ago to the position of Illustrator of the Ga. Agricultural Extension Service, an office she formerly combined with that of Instructor in Poster Design in the Summer School of the University of Ga.

She is a member of the Southern States Art League, was several times president of the Ga. Art Teachers Association, Vice-President of the Association of Georgia Artists, several times president of the Athens Art Association, and was Auditor and Georgia Sponsor of the Southeastern Arts Association. She is also a member of the Writer's Club of Columbia University in New York.

In addition to her full schedule of professional work for the Ga. Extension Service, Laura Blackshear, in odd hours has continued her creative painting, which has been shown in the traveling exhibits of the Southern States Art League, the Association of Ga. Artists, in the Southeastern Arts Association, and in several independent exhibits. She has painted portraits of note: that of Dr. Spence for Piedment College, Gov. Hoke Smith, Mr. Lever, Congressman, and Mr. Walter Brown for the Georgia State College of Agriculture, also Judge T. F. Green, Law School, University of Ga.

One of Miss Blackshear's paintings "Mammy and Her Pickaninnies" shown in an exhibit at Houston, Texas, attracted the attention of the French critic Clement Morro who reviewed it with a reproduction of the painting in Sept. 30th, 1930 issue of "La Revue Moderne," Paris, France. To quote from the translation of this review: "This artist represented at the Houston Exposition by the group of which we have a reproduction here, is not only a skillful painter, a portraitist apt at seizing and portraying the psychological expression in a face, but is also one of the leaders of the artistic movement in the State of Georgia."

Illustrator, Writer, Lecturer. As Illustrator for the Extension Service of the University of Georgia, Laura Blackshear has pioneered in the field of visual instruction for the agricultural development of her state. Her illustrated charts supplied to all the specialists in the Extension Service have been used and are continuously used in every county in the state, and her illustrated bulletin of 48 pages published by the Extension Service has been used by numerous State Universities to initiate this type of visual aid in Extension work. Requests for this bulletin have come from foreign countries interested in adopting this plan of visual education.

Miss Blackshear's full time occupation as Illustrator for the Ga. Extension Service is often so augmented by the 4 H-Club Institutes, Farmers and Women's Conferences held at the University that she has to employ a number of assistants to meet the extra demands made upon her department. Since she also plans and paints the settings for the Agricultural Extension exhibits for the annual State Fairs held in Atlanta, again she must call in extra aid in the painting of huge murals as background for the various exhibits.

Besides the previously mentioned bulletin, Miss Blackshear has written numerous articles for publication, such as "Professional Education in the Arts for Teaching and

« MAMMY ET SES PICKANINNIES », PORTRAIT PAR Mme A. LAURA E. BLACKSHEAR.

Vocations,'' published Sept. 1936 in Proceedings of Western Arts Association ''Delineation and Aid in Education.'' ''Re-discovering Principles of Classic Greek Design,'' ''Classroom Practice in Design,'' published by Georgia Education Association, ''Wealth in Ga. Clay,'' magazine section of Atlanta Journal March 1, 1931, ''The Framing and Placing of Pictures,'' Southern Ruralist, ''Charts for Visual Instruction'' 1924 Blackboard Magazine.

It is characteristic of Laura Blackshear that she is a perennial student, her intellectural curiosity is never satisfied and whenever ''something new is added'' to the demands of her job, such as putting on pageants and plays, giving radio talks and writing specialized articles, she enrolls in such courses at the University of Ga. as will supply for her the necessary information for the new task. She took courses in pottery to better write on the wealth in Georgia Clay; she studied Journalism at the University in Athens and also by correspondence at Columbia University, New York, together with courses in play writing and pageants, which enabled her to write and produce pageants for the Ga. State College of Agriculture, of such beauty and distinction that they were in demand for repeat performances given in Savannah for the Ga. Education Association and in Atlanta for the National Education Association.

In addition to her radio broadcasts and teaching lectures mentioned, Laura Blackshear has given numerous art and historical lectures to the Daughters of the American Revolution, the United Daughters of the Confederacy, the Ga. Federation of Women's Clubs, the Garden Clubs of America, and to various other organizations.

Clement Morro's review aptly sums up her activities when he says: Thru her writings, thru her teachings, thru her official career, as well as thru her attention to and interest in exhibitions in the Southern States, Annie Laura Eve Blackshear has become one of the most conspicuous figures in American Art circles.

But this biography would be but a colorless photograph unless, like a true portrait painter I show the soul that animates the picture. Laura Blackshear's vivid personality expresses itself in her honesty with herself and others, in her loyalty to her friends and to every obligation. She is a great lover of beauty in nature and in character and she especially loves people, as shown both by her warm hospitality and by her devoted unselfish service to those in need or in sorrow. She exceeds the Golden Rule by loving her neighbor more than herself; her deep religious faith supplies the power of her life and "the light which cannot be hid."

cupation Lawyer. A. B. University of Ga. L. L. B. Lumpkin Law School, University of Ga. Athens. Editorial from the Augusta Chronicle at the time of his death "The death of Mr. Archibald Blackshear, City Attorney, which occurred yesterday afternoon is a distinct loss to the City, a distress to a large circle of friends and a sorrow to the numerous members of his family. He was always active in civic affairs, having served notably as Chairman of the Red Cross Chapter, in Augusta during the world war. There are many instances of his service as a lawyer without a penny in which he took a deep and determined interest in his clients. He served city Council as attorney with an unusual degree of courage and fidelity. There never was a breath of suspicion upon his integrity nor a charge against his ability nor an intimation of unworthiness. His character was without reproach. He bore his failing forces with a rare courage. To those who saw him struggling against an ever-encroaching weakness of body that even affected his speech and walk, he showed the courage of one who stood four-square, and took the blow without flinching and without complaint. He never said one word to distress his family or discourage his friends. Such courage is rare and may well serve as an example to those who are inclined to deplore their condition and bemoan their fate. The passing of such a splendid man is like the falling of a great tree upon the mountain—it leaves a vacancy in the sky." Excerpt from news article in the Augusta Herald (Newspaper) 28 March 1929 "As the president of the Board of Directors of the Associated Charities, now the Family Welfare Association, Mr. Blackshear fathered the Juvenile Court in Richmond Co., Realizing the need of a Court here where children would be treated, not as criminals, but as potential citizens in whom the opportunity for good still flourished, he induced the Board of Directors to urge the Grand Jury to recommend a juvenile court for this County. This was done, and the result was the establishment of the present Family Relations Court which irons out difficulties in the lives of children too young to face trial in the larger courts."

"Sorry I do not have the data to complete this form. Have not been in touch with my Uncle Charles' widow (now a Mrs. Harlow, Oakwood, Tex.) (her 3rd marriage) or my first Cousin his son by this lady. If I recall rightly Charles Jr. was 16 about 1932.

My Uncle Charles was of small and slim build and exceedingly good-looking, all the boys of (Rufus King B) were dark complexioned. Two were tall, my father Nat W., and Robt. King B., and two were smaller, Chas. and Joe A. (I). Joe was the only one not really handsome.

This one, Charles Howard B., was of a quick temper and being small, often resorted to settling his quarrels with a pistol, having had several such scrapes in Oakwood, Texas before his death. He owned several farms that he rented out, always to Negroes. But, during World War I he took a white tenant whom he evidently treated as he did his black tenants, so in the Fall of 1918, (October, I think it was) was murdered by the said tenant. I was overseas. My uncle C. was riding past the tenant's house on a wagon loaded with pigs, a Negroe was driving, and the murderer was hiding behind the chimney of the house and shot him as the wagon passed by. Then, it being a shot gun used, had only wounded my uncle, but the wound was sufficient to cause him to tumble off the wagon onto the muddy road. The man ran up quickly and putting the gun at the base of his head, shot him dead.

My uncle C. was well dressed, for he and my Father were the family "dudes" and I feel sure that he would have bemoaned the ruined clothes more than his death. He was utterly fearless, and was generally armed but this time unarmed.

In October 1919, the clan gathered at my Uncle Bob's home in Corsicana, Texas. He had brought in the first deep oil well in Corsicana, Texas. Corsicana had long been a shallow field. There were at this Clan gathering, Bob, Joe and myself and several of Bob's in-law menfolk, all to go to the trial in Centerville, Texas, the County Seat of Leon County. Bob had a new Packard car and in it we set out for the trial of the murderer. Bob asked me if I had a pistol, and I was surprised at such a question. When I said, Yes, in my grip, he said "Well, good God amighty boy, go get it; we are going to court." So I took it. I might add that Leon County was and may still be the most backward county in Texas. Centerville is in the center of the county with only bad dirt roads then and no rail connections. The road was so full of stumps that at Buffalo, Texas we had to leave the Packard and transfer to a higher slung Ford. The one hotel had only corn-shuck filled mattresses and I could not sleep, so was up by 5:00 a.m. I noted the men on horseback and all wagons "some with women with sunbonnets on" had shot guns and rifles across the saddle horn or by the side of the drivers of the wagons.

We had employed two famous (County famed) lawyers to augment the efforts of the District Attorney staff . . . family honor, you know . . . the trial lasted several days, and had night sessions too for my Uncle Bob was anxious to get back to his oil drilling ventures. Result . . . the murderer of CHB was sent to the Pen for ten years, but after a few years "Ma" Furgerson pardoned him. It was her husband while governor of Texas who "fired" old Uncle Edward as president of Prairie View Normal School. I think it is now University.

I do not know but it was said at the time that this was the first white man since the Civil War that had been sent to the Pen from Leon County for murder. But this needs checking on. Some had been sent up for hog and horse stealing. But, the Blackshear name was of some weight in the County. The lawyers employed by the family to assist at the prosecution were Dug. Dachields and his brother. Address then Centerville, Texas."

HISTORICAL FACTS ON THE OLD BLACKSHEAR TRAIL

Old Blackshear Trail, written by Mrs. J. L. Walker of Waycross, is probably the only authenic compilation of data on the trail, in existance. Mrs. Walker has been requested to publish the story on a number of occasions, and it has appeared in one of the large dailies of the state.

At the announcement of the unveiling of the Memorial tablet, Mrs. Walker gladly consented to the publication of the article, which bears historic facts of interest to people throughout this section.

By Mrs. J. L. Walker

Many interesting facts in the history of our country are being unearthed in the bringing from obscure places the old topographic maps of Georgia. The early surveys show the contour lines of the old trading paths and roads and many of these roads form boundaries of lands in different sections of the country.

The Blackshear trail has the distinction of forming several boundaries in its routing to McIntosh County. This Military road is found on several old maps, winding a circuitous route in and out of the once thickly forested lands in Southern Georgia. It passes many miles along the banks of the Ocmulgee and Flint Rivers, opening an avenue of protection for the struggling colonies along the coast. Part of the road that was opened for the passing of General Blackshear and his army was followed exclusively in many places, and when asked why he diverted his route he replied: "I like to travel along the banks of the rivers owing to the convenience of receiving supplies for my army." He also had to blaze the road for many miles out of the way on account of the river swamps and only direct line of travel that followed to Darien was after the road merged into the old Barnard path in Pierce County.

Blackshear's military road had its beginning from Big Bend of the Ocmulgee River near Hartford, once the county seat of Pulaski. It was cut through the entire country on to what is now Dooly County passing along the banks of the Flint River in what is now Crisp County.

Here the army camped and built Fort Early. General Blackshear describes the building of this fort by his men, in a letter sent on August 13, 1813, to Governor Mitchell.

The road passed out of Crisp into Lee County, where General Blackshear and his men spent the night at Chehaw Village at the lower part of Wilcox, passing directly through the entire length of Telfair. Dr. B. M. Kennon's pharmacy at McRae is located in the middle of the old road which passes along through old Jacksonville in that county.

It crosses little Ocmulgee into Coffee, through Appling, and it passes in the Barnard Path, crossing Hurricane Creek into Pierce where General Blackshear, with 5,000 Indian prisoners, together with his men camped, the ground later being selected for the county site of Pierce County and named Blackshear.

The road after passing into Ware County is designated in the Ordinary's office as passing through lot 213, Gilcrist Park. This road, after leaving Gilcrist Park, passed down the old Train Road that leads out along the boarders of the Okefinokee Swamp; here two miles of the military road was corduroyed and the logs are serving today and the same purpose for which they were put there over a hundred years ago, making a causeway over the marshy place. It passes Braganza, crosses Spanish Creek at Uptonville, through Bethel Church, Sardis School, Prospect Church, South across Cowhouse just below Starland Branch, comes in then diagonally westward toward the swamp border to The Saint Marys River.

It then traverses a corner of Camden, and cuts through Glynn to McIntosh county.

The soldiers often had to swim swollen streams and raft over their effects of army supplies.

No obstacles were so great that they were not surmounted by General Blackshear's intrepid soldiers.

The following letters will not only furnish information in regard to the military road, but will show the spirit of the times:

"Governor Mitchell to General David Blackshear,

Milledgeville, August 4, 1813.

"Dear Sir:

"From the representations I have received of the fears of our people on the frontier, under the present state of Indian hostility, I have to request that you will proceed to that part of the frontier within your brigade, and adopt such measures as will afford some security to the inhabitants until the troops now ordered to be got in readiness are marched to the attack of the Indians.

"You will report to me what you deem necessary in this respect and have as much regard to economy as the nature of the case will admit.

"I am, dear sir, with great regard and esteem, your very obedient servant.

D. B. Mitchell

The gravity of the situation is shown in General Blackshear's reply to Governor Mitchell, which follows:

Oconee, August 13, 1813—

Dear Sir:

"I have just returned from my tour on the frontier of my brigade, where I found the inhabitants in a high state of alarm—an immense number of whom had fled to the interior. I proceeded to lay off three forts on the frontier of Twiggs county (at about ten miles distance from each other,) about one hundred feet square to have two blockades and enclosed with a stockade 8 feet above ground, and ordered one subaltern, a sergeant, a corporal and fifteen privates to each, and a captain to command and superintend the building and discipline the men.

"In Pulaski, having a greater extent of frontier as those in Twiggs, and the same number of men to each (one of these in Fort Valley, in Crisp County,) I then proceeded to Telfair and laid out there ninety feet square, and ordered one sergeant, a corporal and twelve privates to each and a subaltern to command the whole, to be relieved every ten days until further orders."

Governor Mitchell directed that the whole of the lower frontier be protected by forts and block houses, asking that the lower bridge over the river between the Okefinokee Swamp be occupied with a suitable garrison. He felt that this would hold the Indians in complete check, and his plans for the protection of the settlers were fully carried out, but to no avail, for massacres of the most cruel kind continued to occur in Southern Georgia.

The following year Governor Peter Early wrote General Blackshear and advised for the cutting of a road from Hartfort to Pulaski, to St. Marys.

He stated: I have for some time forborne taking any definite steps relating to the contemplated road from Ocmulgee to

St. Marys, though we wish to have an understanding with Colonel Hawkins which might prevent anything unpleasant from arising between us and the friendly Indians. This understanding is now effected, and there is no obstacle remaining against proceeding immediately to the accomplishment of the object."

Another letter from military headquarters, September 17, 1814, is quoted in part as follows:

"There is being represented to the commander-in-chief that the Indian frontier on the counties of Twiggs, Pulaski, and Telfair is menaced with depredations from the hostile Indians. Brigadier General Blackshear will order some prudent and judicious officer with a patrol of cavalry, consisting of twenty privates, armed with guns, to explore the country between the Ocmulgee, opposite Hartford, and Flint River, below and above the Hitchee Town.

"The object of the expedition is two-fold; First, to ascertain whether any hostile Indians are lurking in the quarter; secondly, to ascertain the best practical route for a road from Hartford to Flint River, striking the latter below the mouth of Wecuy-wap creek. The officer who shall be ordered on this service will be charged carefully to avoid any interruption with friendly Indians.

"By order of the Commander-in-chief.

"Anthony Porter, Secretary."

"Orders from Major General McIntosh for General Blackshear to march with Colonel Wimberley's regiment of infantry from Camp Hope, on the Ocmulgee, to Hartford and from thence by opening a road in the most direct way to the Flint River are as follows:

"Camp Hope, Dec. 14, 1814.

"Brigadier General Blackshear will march, with Colonel Wimberley's regiment of infantry, direct from this encampment to Hartford, on the Ocmulgee, and proceed from thence by opening a road in the most direct way to the Flint River, bearing in mind that he must apprise me, from time to time, of the strength and movement of any hostile Indians that he may acquire knowledge of on the march, taking special care that the information sent me by the best means can afford or admit of, keeping in view the object of this march towit, to deter any hostile or marauding party of Indians from committing acts of violence or making predatory excursions on the frontier of the state of Georgia most exposed to their savage fury, making every effort at the same time to arrive at the Flint River as speedily as possible, giving me the earliest information of that event.

"Upon General Blackshear's arrival at the Flint River, he will proceed to select a proper situation as a place of deposit for provisions, and throw up a small breastwork, with pickets around it, and two small block houses at right angles of the same, about sixteen or eighteen feet square, which will be sufficient to secure the work for the assault on every side. A subaltern's command will be sufficient for this on situation, who will remain and occupy it until otherwise ordered or relieved. His excellency, the governor, will detach two hundred horsemen to join the General at this point, as soon as in his opinion, a sufficient time has been allowed to this detachment to reach the Flint River.

"Major Blue of the 39th regiment, with about sixteen hundred mounted men. Choctawa, Chickasaws and Creeks, were to march on the first instant in pursuit of the Red Sticks and their allies. Colonel Hawkins' warriors are likewise ready, and will join to chastise the Seminoles or any other tribe of the hostile Indians that may be collected or collecting; and (if necessary) I will combine my whole force to that object—which will depend on the intelligence I shall receive from you.

If there shall be the smallest grounds for believing a collected enemy in the route directed, the general will be particularly cautious to march in regular order, either in two or three columns, as he finds most convenient—keeping an advance and rear guard, with double flankers in center, front and rear to prevent surprise or ambuscade. The Flankers ought to be relieved every hour, having an arduous duty.

"Before you march you will order the regimental surgeons to report to you any of your detachment incapable of performing duty from indisposition; and should there be any that require any medical aid, a surgeon's mate must be left with them, and one or two attendants, if necessary, with orders to proceed on to Fort Mitchell as soon as surgeon deems them able to perform the march.

"By order of Major General John McIntosh.

Aide-de-Camp"

"In 1832 about when my Grandfather D. A. B. was 6 years of age, he peeped through a crack in the Cabin at Belmont, Ala. and witnessed a dance by some slaves at night. One slave fiddled, some sang and some danced. Young D. A. B. was intrigued by the song and learned to sing it himself, the words were 'Fiddle old woman Fiddle old man, Pull out your bottle and give me a dram.' Shortly after learning the song young David started to school and was instructed by his father to sing when the other children sang, on arriving at school he found the class engaged in their regular opening song, not knowing the words or the tune, young David burst out with 'Fiddle old woman, Fiddle Old man, pull out your bottle and give me a dram!' In his declining years he could always be made to smile when his children would ask him to sing the Fiddle song.'' Further on March 30, 1953, he wrote ''On the first day of April many years ago, my Grandfather D. A. B. was living at old Pleasant Hill, La. His friend and neighbor, Dr. Mumford, sent him some beautiful, hot battercakes for breakfast, my Grandfather buttered them, poured molasses on them, cut into one of them and discovered the inside to be Cotton and not battercake, he said to Aunt Lucy, the cook; 'Run to Dr. Mumford's house and tell him to come quick, that my daughter Ella is choking to death on the battercakes he sent me.' Aunt Lucy was a good actress and Dr. M., Mrs. M., and Lucy came running back to Grandfather's house, seeing that they were taking the matter seriously my grandfather tried to motion them back but mistaking his signals they ran all the faster, on arriving they saw Ella laughing at them, Dr. Mumford said he wouldn't play any more April Fool Jokes on Mr. Blackshear because he could make them boomerang back too quick and too hard.''

All issue born at Macon, Ga. From his Column "An ear to the Ground" Sports Editor of the Atlanta Journal on 13 Jan., 1953, Ed Danforth, the following is extracted; GEORGIA'S FINEST ALL-ROUND ATHLETE? IT MUST HAVE BEEN YOUNG STRIBLING. Telephone bells sometimes send us racking off . . . buckity-buckity . . . in all directions when they break suddenly into the routine of a day. This one blasted a Saturday evening when all the world, save short order cooks; policemen and newspapermen, was at play, or perhaps taking a but. It said: "Who was the greatest male athlete Georgia ever produced?"

Confused as usual on being snatched from a spell of concentration on something of vast moment, I fell back on O. B. Keeler's classic counter-attack: "I don't know . . . you tell ME." The guy said it was Young Stribling, a verdict I hurriedly endorsed and broke it off as politiely as possible.

However, the idea kept bobbing up that evening . . . it probably was William Lawrence Stribling II, the boxer of Macon, after all.

Georgia produced Bobby Walthour, a bicyclist; Bobby Jones, a golfer, Ty Cobb, and Johnny Mize, baseball players, and any number of football players of national fame . . . but they were specialists. Their talents were not spread out in sports like those of Young Stribling. Strib played grade school football and had great promise, but his father kept him out after one fling at the high school level. He was a top-flight basket-ball player and in later years was good enough to play semi-pro.

In the swimming pool he was a fancy diver of rare coordination and a speed swimmer with fine time records. Strib was kept out of baseball for fear of breaking up his hands, but he was a low handicap golfer and tough in a match. Incidentally, the way he could handle a plane was a caution. He came along between wars and held a commission in the reserve that would have landed him in the last one as a bomber pilot if he had not met death in a motorcycle wreck near Macon in 1933.

TWO BIG WORLD'S TITLE FIGHTS

Stribling had a chance at the light-heavyweight title once and the heavyweight title once and missed both, but he was the man none of them wanted. For eleven years he fought through all weight divisions, and climbed through the ropes oftener than any other fighter. At the end he was still an athlete in prime condition with reflexes unimpaired.

How Stribling missed the world's lightweight title is a story for another day when Harry Ertle gave out three decisions after the youngster had outpointed Champion Mike McTigue in Columbus, Ga., in 1923. He later beat old Mike to a newspaper decision in a "no-decision" contest. His gib shot at Champion Max Schmeling in 1932 at Cleveland was squandered when he was forced to spar in daily exhibitions to entertain amusement park crowds for weeks before the fight.

William Lawrence Stribling II surely must have been the greatest all-around athlete ever produced in Georgia and a sportsman in the finest sense.

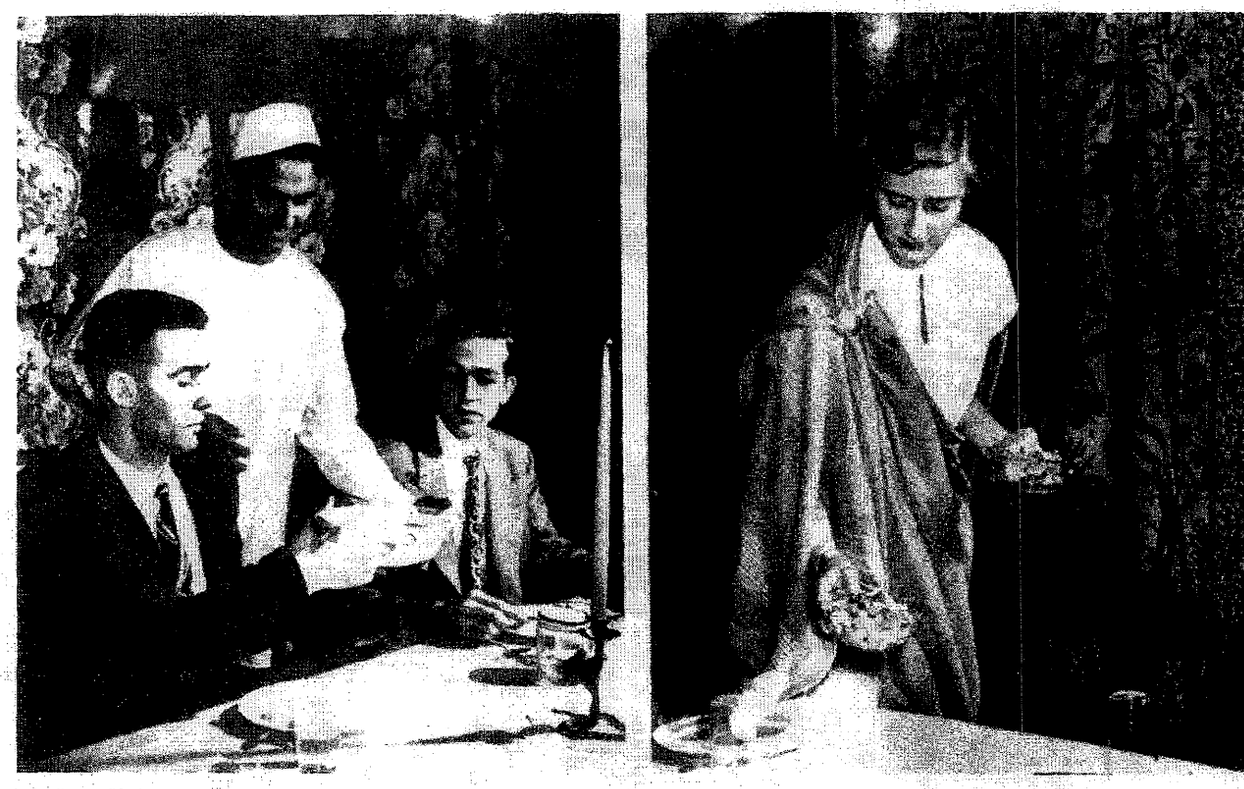
INDIAN DINNER WOOSTER COLLEGE STYLE

Take a large portion of curry sauce, 8 bowls of Chutney and several kettles of Rice, 150 hungry students ready to eat with their fingers, waiters dressed in white linens and waitresses in saris; decorate the tables with small objects d'art from the land of Gandhi and the result will be an Indian Dinner, Wooster College style. That's what happened recently when students welcomed home their Wooster-in-India representative, David Blackshear, who was Wooster's representative on the teaching staff of Ewing Christian College in Allahabad for two years. There Blackshear taught English, the Bible and psychology. Since 1932 there has been a Wooster representative in India, supported by student subscriptions. Proper procedure for eating curry and rice Indian fashion is to use the tips of the 4 fingers, as illustrated here. Good manners decree that the food be kept between the 2nd knuckles and the tips of the fingers, en route from plate to mouth. Left to right are Jean Dickason, Bisham Parmar, Gordan Roadarmel and Ann Dickason, all born in the far east.



Left, David Blackshear, 1948-50 Wooster in India representative, receives from Bisham Parmer, Indian Student enrolled at Wooster, a dish of curry. Art Merrill, son of Missionaries in India and Chairman of the dinner, awaits his turn. Right Sari-clad Lyn Irwin of Abilene, Kan., sets the table for the Indian Dinner. The following is the write-up which appeared in the local newspaper at the time of Mr. Samuel T. Hall's death, 30 December 1953.

SAMUEL T. HALL DIES AT 84, WAS BROTHER OF EAGLE'S FOUNDER.

Samuel T. Hall, the last of the Hall brothers associated with The Eagle in its earlier days, died last night at the home of his daughter, Mrs. Dan Hollis, on Headland Rt. 1, following an illness of several weeks. He was 84.

Mr. Hall, a native of Haleburg in Henry County, came to Dothan from Enterprise to work with The Eagle after his brother, W. T. Hall, bought the paper. He was also a brother of Grover C. Hall, editor of The Montgomery Advertiser, and Cody Hall, editor of The Alexander City Outlook, who have been dead several years.

At one time he operated a job printing shop here, but maintained his association with The Eagle as head of the mailing room. He retired in 1938 and made his home with his daughter.

Mr. Hall's death came on the 59th anniversary of his marriage to Miss Donie Blackshear, of Haleburg, who died in 1921.

A Mason and a member of Dothan's First Baptist Church, Mr. Hall was also an honorary lifetime deacon of the church.

He is survived by five daughters, Mrs. Hollis, Mrs. M. V. White, Irondale, Ala., Miss Estelle Hall, Houston, Tex., Mrs. S. G. Knowles, Dothan, and Mrs. L. H. Cit. Last name on the Inventory attached to the Will of William Blackshear of Leon Co., Texas, value $350.00, indicating that he was quite young but sure to survive—see value of other slaves in inventory. From Iowa, and through the public schools of Bastrop and Austin came E. L. Blackshear, who in 1895, was elected the fourth Principal of Prairie View. He came at a time when Booker T. Washington was being lionized in a South which was already gauging for rejection the industrial education substitute for the Negro contemplated by Southern leaders at the passing of the second Morrill Act. The tall, stately, golden voiced Blackshear was a Washington disciple, and before the fully approving Board and a great throng, Booker T. Washington made Blackshear's first Commencement Address. Some form of the Washington brand of "industrial education" was being demanded by Negroes in the state for their public schools, and the A. and M. Board went on record as approving such "practical" education at Prairie View.

Blackshear was especially interested in the agricultural phase of industrial education and asked the Board to establish the "factory plan" used at Tuskegee. Aware, however, of the continued fight of Negroes for a University, Blackshear asked for a seven-year course for the college. The 26th Legislature changed the school's name to "Prairie View State Normal and Industrial College", and in 1901 authorized it to offer a four-year college course. The Board added only two years to the four-year Normal Course, and in 1904 Prairie View granted A.B. Degrees to G. A. Randolph, Joseph E. Davis, and Mrs. Ruth King. This was the only time a departure into collegiate status was to be attempted until the Osborne administration.

Students loved Mr. Blackshear. His discipline was firm, but life at the college was rich and varied. Predominantly religious in tone, the college life was full of that didacticism which the cultural hunger of the negro student at the turn of the century found stimulating. Formal intercollegiate athletics came with Blackshear in 1904, and Coach W. P. Terrell's football squad beat Wiley 7-0 in their first game in 1907. Clubs and recitals grew apace despite the ill-heated, ill-lighted, crowded fire-trap frame and brick structures that dotted the "hill". And compensation enough was to be found in Mr. Luckie, Mr. Woodruff, Mrs. Kimbro, Mr. Bledsoe, Mr. Crawford, Mr. Isaacs, and countless others—always wise, profound, just, and urbane.

The extensive building program during this period included Foster and Luckie Halls in 1909; the Auditorium-Dining Hall in 1911 and Crawford Hall in 1912.

Office of the Registrar,
Col. Wm. S. Blackshear,
1215 Anacapa Street,
Santa Barbara, California,
Dear Sir:

I have your letter of February 28, 1953. I have searched the records of Tabor College that are in safe-keeping in our office and find the following regarding Edward Levisier Blackshear:

He entered Tabor College in September 1876 at the age of 14. This does not agree with your statement that he was born prior to 1861. Since the age of 14 seems rather young to be enrolling in a college I am assuming that there is some error in the record. It is clearly written in ink so there is no error on my part in reading what is recorded.) He attended from 1876 to 1881, being enrolled in the classical course. He received the A.M. degree in 1881. (I am not certain as to the meaning of the A.M. degree for I can find description of only the A.B. and the B.S. degrees. However, since he attended Tabor for five years, and also since his grades were excellent—99 in Latin, 97 in Trigonometry, 98 in Greek, etc. . . . it is very probable that an advanced degree may have been conferred upon him!)

An interesting coincidence may be of value to you. Just today, a Mr. Irwin I. Loose, of Thurman, Iowa, who graduated from Tabor in 1884 sent a contribution to Doane College! Mr. Loose would undoubtedly have known Mr. Blackshear. I would suggest that you contact Mr. Loose immediately (he must be at least 90 years old) for information that he might have about student days.
I will be very glad to be of further assistance to you if there is anything else that I can do for you.

Yours truly,
Loyd C. Oleson, Registrar

Office of
THE PRESIDENT
Mr. Perry L. Blackshear,
2500 North Woodward Way, N.W.
Atlanta, Georgia,

Dear Sir:
In compliance with your request of December 2 we are enclosing a brochure of the first Seventy-five years of Prairie View which contains an account of Dr. Blackshear's life and activities at Prairie View.
I do want you to know that I had the honor of knowing Dr. Blackshear personally as he was at Prairie View when I first came here as an employee. At that time he was no longer principal of the institution but was head of Negro Extension Work in Texas.
Dr. Blackshear was the most brillant and best loved president that this institution has ever had. In fact, all of Texas was very proud of him as he was an intellectual giant. Unfortunately, I do not know of the whereabouts of his family. I have been told that a son and daughter live in California but I do not have their addresses.

If we can be of further assistance to you, please feel free to call on us.

Very truly yours,
E. B. EVANS, President

Elijah Blackshear lived in Craven and Jones Counties N. C. Occupation Planter. Contemporary with the children of Agnes and Alexander Blackshear but relationship has not been established.

1772 Deed from John Gregory, 29 Oct., 1772 for 160 Acres in Craven Co., "upon the line that divided Onslow from Craven County, at a place called the Royal Oak, said land was patented to George Brock 30 Oct., 1765" consideration 20 pounds Proclamation Money. Cit. Deed Book 22 p. 266 Register of Deeds, Craven Co. N. C.
1774, Deed to John Gregory made 26 Sept., 1774, same as above but with the following added, "Near a Desert". Cit. Deed Book 21 P. 255.
1790, Witnessed a "Love and Affection Deed" from Agnes Blackshear to Jacob and Alexander Blackshear, made 17 Sept., 1790. Other witnesses were Elisha Blackshear and Nathan Clifton. Cit. Deed Book 1 p. 559. This Elijah can hardly be confused with Elisha, since both witnessed the same deed. He cannot be confused with Elijah, the son of James Blackshear and C. F. Bush Blackshear since the son of James was not adult on any of the above dates. He does not appear as head of a Family in either the Jones Co., Census of 1785 or the Federal Census of Jones Co., 1790. He could have been a son of Agnes and Alexander who got his inheritance before the wills of Agnes and Alexander were made, or he could have been a relative through parents whose identity has not been established. All Cit. are contained in the above.

Elisha, b. 1790-1800 about 1794, son of Jesse Blackshear. Lived in Marshall County, Tenn., 1840, engaged in Agriculture. M. and had issue 6 daughters and 6 sons, born between 1810 and after 1835, but before 1840. His wife was b. between 1790 and 1800. Only the dates and location, together with there being no other Blackshears in the vicinity can be cited to make this Elisha to be the son of Jesse, who was born in 1794. See entry for Jesse.

Elisha Stout, b. Kent Co., Delaware, about 1736, son of Agnes and Alexander Blackshear. Lived in Craven and Jones Counties in N. C. D. Jones Co., 1810. Will filed there. Wife, Susannah (probably Ward). Place and date of m. unknown, issue 11 in all, if the three main references are all included. Alexander is mentioned by one. James, Jesse, Moses and Jacob by two others, but only Moses and Jacob appear in the will of E. S. B. It is therefore assumed that the other sons got their inheritance (as did the older daus.) and struck out to find their fortunes in other parts. The issue is being numbered herein but no claim of accuracy is made. No. 1 Alexander, found in Laurens Co., Ga., with a Family, 1820 Census. No. 2 James, "Went over the Cumberland Mountains", no other trace. No. 3 Jesse, "Moved to Tenn., and had Ezekiel." See entry. No. 4 Moses, m. and moved to Twiggs Co., Ga. See entry. No. 5 Agnes, no trace. No. 6 Jacob m. Judith Moore. See entry. No. 7 Rebecca, no trace. No. 8 Susannah, no trace. No. 9 Nancy, no trace. No. 10 Elizabeth, no trace. No. 11 Temperance, no trace. In the will of E. S. B. all of the daus. are mentioned, also three sons-in-law, but the identity of their wives is not clear. The sons in law were James Huggins, Samuel Westbrook, and Elijah Koonce. The last three daus. mentioned seem to have been unmarried at the time the Will was made. The parents of E. S. B. lived in Craven Co., Enoch Ward lived in the neighboring county, of Carteret; the last child mentioned in his will was "Susannah". (1750). In Ga. an Enoch Ward, (also mentioned in his father's will), is found to be neighbor to Jacob Blackshear, the youngest son of Susannah and Elisha Stout B. Jacob named a son Enoch, which name had not formerly been in the Blackshear Family. The grandson of Jacob married Caroline Ward, indicating that the Wards and the Blackshears continued to be neighbors in Ga. as well as in N. C. No marriage bonds have been found for either Susannah Ward or Elisha Stout Blackshear.

1860, Listed Sumter Co., Census Property $3600.00. Homer living in household, farm laborer with property $400.00, no wife mentioned.

1870, Listed in Sumter Co., Census, property $1600.00. No wife. Dau. Martha Hulda Green listed as "Keeping House". No Mr. Green listed.

1873, Deed to his son James Addison jointly with his dau. Martha Green which, see.

1880, No longer listed in Sumter Co., Census.

Pedigree Documentation; From his account of the Descendants of Elisha Stout Blackshear on page 38, Dr. Thomas Hart Raines, writing in about the year 1903 says, "Enoch Blackshear, son of Jacob Blackshear and Judith Moore, married Margaret Wall and had issue," list includes James Addison Blackshear who married Caroline H. Ward.

Enoch Blackshear drew lot No. 174 in the 12th District of Houston Co., but did not pay the required fee and acquire title until 20 Nov. 1829. Jacob does not appear on the Tax List of Twiggs Co., in 1826. It seems typical of the times and customs for Jacob to have moved over into the next Co., to occupy the land for his son until the deed was acquired from the state. Both Jacob and Enoch appear on the 1830 Census of Houston County.

Twiggs County, Georgia

"On last Monday afternoon at 2 o'clock, Uncle Ezekiel Blackshear passed from mortal life to Heavenly Glory. Aged 90 years, 1 month and 5 days. He was buried in Jeffersonville Cemetery, Wednesday morning, Mr. Hal Wimberly conducting the funeral services. Uncle 'Zeke was the oldest man in Twiggs County. He celebrated his ninetieth birthday March 15, when a large number of friends gathered around to honor one whom it had pleased God to give great length of days. Up to that time, he enjoyed comparatively good health, for a man of his age, but the occasion proved too great a tax upon his system, and he has been failing rapidly ever since. His noble traits which so highly adorned his character, his gentle and amiable disposition, courteous deportment and steadfast love and reverance for his Maker throughout his long sojourn upon earth, won the admiration of a host of friends who deplore his death. Three daughters and a son survive him; John, Miss Sallie, Mrs. Emma Crandford and Mrs. Mary Bridger. To the bereaved relatives, we extend our heartfelt sympathy."

COL. SEABORN JONES TO GEN. BLACKSHEAR.

Milledgeville, January 23, 1825.

My Dear Sir:—The subject* on which I am about to address you must form the best apology for troubling you; and the relations of friendship which have existed between us will best explain the reasons why this letter is addressed to you. The suit at present existing between Dr. Ridley and your brother Joseph is one which involves much property and no little feeling. At the last court of Laurens County, Major

Walker suggested to me a desire that a settlement might be made between them, which would not only terminate the present suit but prevent any future litigation. This accorded so well with my own feelings that I immediately determined to use my utmost exertions to bring about so desirable an event. I say it accorded with my feelings; for I assure you I have, ever since I was engaged in the case, most ardently desired a settlement might be made which would save me the disagreeable necessity of discussing questions involving so much feeling as those connected with the prosecution and defense of the case.

It is urged by Ridley, and must necessarily be by his counsel, that Joseph Blackshear had the most implicit confidence reposed in him by his brother Elijah; that he placed his only child and daughter under his guardian care and protection, and died with an entire confidence that his only child would be taken care of and treated as though she were the child of Joseph himself; that, while living, they were as twin-brothers; and that Joseph is now attempting to take advantage of every quirk and quibble of the law to deprive this daughter of all, or the greater part, of her property.

The defense which has been set up is, too, of the most odious character, and calculated to injure him; and the remarks upon that defense (I mean the doctrine of survivorship) must necessarily be most wounding to his feelings. All this I hoped we might be able to avoid, and that we might be able to make a settlement equally beneficial to both parties.

By the will of your brother Elijah, Ridley's wife is entitled to fifteen thousand dollars of personal property, and land in proportion, on her intermarriage, with interest from that time. If the counsel of your brother Joseph have acted with candor, they must have informed him that this was inevitable. The proportion of land equivalent to that sum of personal property cannot be less than five thousand dollars, making together $20,000. To this add interest from the marriage (December 8, 1822) to this time, $5000, makes twenty-five thousand dollars that he is now entitled to.

Upon the death of your brother, the remainder of the estate has to be divided into three parts, of which Ridley and wife are entitled to one-third. What is this worth? The balance of the estate, (after deducting the legacy to Harriet of $15,000,- &c.,) lands, negroes, and stock of all kinds, cannot be less than fifteen thousand dollars. Ridley says he can prove it to be worth thirty thousand. To this add the bank-stock in the Darien and United States Banks, the dividends, the yearly hire or value of the lands and ninety-one negroes, or profits arising from the plantations, which all know were under your brother Joseph's management, cannot be less than five thousand dollars per year.

Your brother Joseph has been advised, and, I presume, believes he will not have to account for the yearly value of the property. This is a mistake. For although he has the right to lay out and dispose of it, yet, you will see, this power was given to him from the reliance Elijah had in his management and care, and that it must ultimately be accounted for when the general division takes place at his death. Now, for this contingent interest, Ridley, by my advice, and, I may say, persuasion, agreed to take five thousand dollars, making the whole sum to be paid him thirty thousand dollars. This was thought too high, and I was informed by Major Walker that twenty thousand dollars would be given. To this Ridley would not accede; and I will be candid and say to you that while I would not interpose my advice, voluntarily, to permit his taking any sum, yet, on being asked, I could not advise him to take that sum, believing it so far below what he had a right to claim. I have written fully and freely to you, not as counsel for Ridley, but as a friend to you and your brother, and from an anxious desire to have the case settled and myself saved the necessity of discussing questions which must wound the feelings of my friends. I have no doubt you will duly appreciate my motives. If you think, with me, it will be best for your brother Joseph to settle on those terms, you will endeavor to bring it about. If you do not, you will excuse my troubling you on the subject.

My brother is getting better. My family is well. The Governor is mending. Accept for your family my best wishes, and believe me yours, sincerely,

SEABORN JONES

*The bill in chancery filed by Archibald B. Ridley and his wife Harriet against Joseph Blackshear, as executor of Elijah Blackshear, deceased, pending which Mrs. Ridley died, and her husband subsequently, as administrator, recovered judgment for about twenty-five thousand dollars, which was collected. For some decision or ruling of the law in this case, Judge Moses Fort was arraigned before the Legislature of Georgia, in 1827 by Col. Blackshear.
A committee in the House of Representatives, of which the Hon. Charles Dougherty was chairman, heard evidence upon the charges, (habitual intoxication included), and reported an address to the Governor recommending the removal of the judge from office, which passed in the House, but failed in the Senate for want of two-thirds, the constitutional majority required in such cases.

The connection between the Raines Entry for the son of Abraham and the Census Entry of 1830 in Laurens Co., Ga. is based wholly on probabilities and is not to be taken as documentation. Dr. Raines could not trace James the son of Abraham No. 2, it is known that Abraham No. 2 once lived in Washington Co., Ga., as did many who were later located in Laurens Co. There were no other likely James's in the area, hence the probability.

James Blackshear, b. N. C., or Ga., 1793 to 1795, parentage unknown. Married Catherine . . . ? . . ., who was b. in N. C., or Ga., 1800 to 1811. Listed in 1840 Census Henry Co., Ala. Male 30 to 40, Female 20 to 30, a female 5 to 10, and 2 males under 5. The 1850 Census of Henry Co. lists him at 55 and Catherine at 50, with Prudy Heath 18, and Jas. J. at 12, Jane at 10, then Jesse at 8, Female, age 5 and Margaret age 2. This Family seems to have moved to Barbour Co., Ala., in time for the 1860 Census, where the parents are listed as Blackshew. Son James J. seems to have remained in Henry Co., where he is listed as a farmer in the household of Henry G. Glider in 1860. Prudy Heath had either married or died, Jane was listed as Louisa Jane, Jesse W. and Margaret are living with their parents and another son, Wm. T., age 9 years, has been added since the 1850 Census. There is a lack of uniformity about the Birth Place in the several census, some say N. C., and others say Ga.

James Blackshear, listed in 1810 Census of Jones Co., N. C., age from 16 to 26 years, no family, no district shown, vol. 6 p. 293, with James R. Bryan listed above and Ezekiel Blackshear listed below. The birth range of this James could make him the son of Abraham No. 2 or a grandson of Elisha Stout. James Blackshear and Katherine F. B. Blackshear had a son named James but he was killed by the Tories during the Revolutionary War. None of his Grandsons were born within this age range. Since he is listed next to Ezekiel, who was the son of Jesse, (the son of Elisha S. B.) it seems reasonable to suppose that this James was the brother to Ezekiel and therefore the son of Jesse.

Pages 201-202:
"James Blackshare. Among all classes and in every condition of life where the struggle for a livelihood is going on, where will independence be found more clearly demonstrated than in the life of the honest, industrious farmer? Mr. Blackshare, who has followed agricultural pursuits for the past fifty-two years, and who has never missed a crop during the years thus spent, is a fair example of the tiller of the soil. He was born in West Tennessee, in 1824, and is the son of Rev. Jacob and Mary (Barry) Blackshare, the father a native of Tennessee, born in 1802, and the mother born in 1799. James Blackshare was left motherless at the age of ten years, and May 27, 1847, he was united in marriage to Miss Sarah A. Dines, who bore him five sons: William S., a member of the firm of Blackshare & Co., in the manufacturing of staves and in the general milling business, is married and the father of six children: Robert B. (deceased), left a widow and five children; Sidney A. (deceased), left a widow and five children; James T., lives on a farm near Boydsville, is married and the father of three sons, and Jacob L., farmer near Boydsville, is married and the father of two sons and two daughters, The mother of these children died in 1857. March 14, 1858, Mr. Blackshare took for his second wife Mrs. Ruth E. Evans of Tennessee, and in the fall of the same year he and family moved to Clay County, (then Greene County) Ark., and settled on the farm where he is now residing, three miles northeast of Boydsville, which consisted of eighty acres, to which he added eighty more. To his last marriage were born six children, three of whom survive at the present: Mary F., wife of Dr. John J. Prince, and the mother of one daughter, resides at Bethel Station, Tenn., where her husband follows his profession and is also engaged in merchandising; John S., a merchant at Rector, married and the father of one child, a daughter; Ora A., the wife of A. J. Burton, and the mother of three children, two daughters and a son, is now living near her father where her husband is occupied in farming; IRA E., died in his sixteenth year. Mr. Blackshare came to this State with his wife and seven children in two wagons, drawn by oxen, being the owner of seven or eight head of cattle, six or eight head of horses, and about $200 in money. The first winter before there were gins introduced into the country, the cotton, which they picked with their fingers, was made into clothing for the family. There were no mills then except little hand mills, which were only used to grind corn, and were called corn crackers. They would crack the kernel into about four pieces. A few years later Mr. Blackshare raised a little wheat and ground it in the same mills and "sarcht it"; this consisted of a box with a muslin cloth over it, opened at one end, on which was dropped some of the meal, and then by a rocking motion the bran was forced to the top and back through the opening at the rear, while the fine flour passed through the muslin into the box. At that time trading was done by exchanging pelting and furs for salt, sugar, coffee, etc., at Cape Girardeau, Mo., 100 miles distant, to which place they made their trips with ox teams about once a year. Mr. Black- share has not taken a drink of liquor of any kind, or a chew of tobacco, for over forty years, or since joining the church, and has always been willing to render aid, as far as he was able, to all laudable enterprises. He and wife are members of the Methodist Episcopal Church, South. Mr. Blackshare was township magistrate for four terms of two years each, and was also county treasurer for two terms. He is a member of the Masonic fraternity, and is one of the representative men of the county. He is now the owner of 340 acres of land, after having supported his family and settled nine children at an expense of $14,000, and does not owe a cent.''

DON'T PUT ALL OF YOUR EGGS IN ONE BASKET.

A tale that he loved to tell about his youth; On reaching age 14, my father gave me the use of "a patch of land". Whatever it and my planning and my labor yielded was to be my very own, to do with as I pleased. My father owned slaves, livestock and gear but I was not allowed to use the slaves. But the plows, hoes, mules, etc., I was allowed to use when they were not otherwise in use. It seemed to me that money was something greatly to be desired, (partly, because I had never had any), therefore no crop for my patch would do except a "Money Crop". That meant COTTON! So, from asking questions and watching others preparing the land for cotton planting, I saw how it was done and so "pitched in", with mule and sweat, with plow and sweat, with seed and sweat, with hoe and sweat, with picking sack and sweat—finally to the Cotton Gin "in Town" and the cotton buyer. My money crop got me 40 big, shiny pre-war Dollars, I was rich! and wished to so impress others. That brought up the question of ways and means, the question was suddenly, unexpectedly and pleasantly answered by a friendly (?) gent, who must have spied me as I was lost in the vision of how I would look if I had some of the articles which were displayed in the "Show Window" of his General Store. What should it be? Boots and Spurs? Bridle and Saddle? Gun and Powder Horn? Or that "Sto' Bought" Suit of Clothes? (Ma had made all of my clothes out of Homespun cloth) Or should it be that Tall Silk Beaver Hat? I was "big for my age", nearly six feet tall, broad of shoulder and butt, a shock of blond hair, a home-spun shirt, jeans pants ending half way between knee and ankle and "Brogan" shoes, but with a bag full of money which was "burning my pocket". Up to that time my life had been spared the thought of my personal appearance, girls were just other people, but I had been overwhelmingly impressed by the looks and speeches of the politicians. They all seemed to me to wear long coats and high Beaver Hats—could I ever look like them? These were the ideas which were running through my head as I gazed into the store window. At this point the "Friendly Gent" put his hand on my shoulder and began to talk about his wares in one breath, and ask me about how much money I had with the next breath. I did not hesitate to tell him with too much pride, no doubt. I remember little about the exciting and convincing talk that must have followed, but as I mounted and rode my mule, "bareback", over the five miles to home, strangers, acquaintances, friends, and relatives looked in amazement at me in Brogans, jean pants that were too small and a home-spun shirt and the Tall Silk Beaver Hat on my head. It poorly concealed the great shocks of hair beneath it as I rode along thinking about the office I would "Run for". I, and only I, knew that my money was all gone, so I say, "Never put all of your eggs in one basket."

WAR

Sept. 15, 1862—The other batteries of the battalion about 8 o'clock P.M. yesterday had returned to camp with most of their ammunition exhausted and the men and horses worn out from fatigue and hunger. I had taken occasion to call the colonel's attention to the important position which my battery had held and to the valuable service which it had rendered; whereupon he had consented that I should take it to the battle-field. I had mounted my horse to be going and 60 minutes later would have made me and my entire command prisoners of war had it not been that an Aid De Camp to Gen. Evans luckily galloped that way, from the field and informed us that our whole army had retreated during the night and that the enemy was advancing in full force by the very turn-pike which I was to take and that he was then within two miles of us. Where was the army gone! He did not know. He knew nothing more than that when he went in search of the General where he had left on yesterday, he saw nothing but yankees there and yankees everywhere. Cutt's battalion was immediately on the pike and moved off at "Trot March" but we had not gone far before we received intelligence that the enemy had flanked us on the right and that his cavalry was then in front capturing Longstreet's baggage train. Therefore with the enemy in front on our right and in rear we could escape only by the left, and to do this we had to turn round in a road so narrow that almost every carriage was unlimbered and to go back to the camp before finding a road which would serve our purpose.

Until now no uneasiness had been manifested and the privates knew not the danger that surrounded them. But the truth could no longer be disguised. It became necessary to go into the "Gallop March" and the clouds of dust which loomed up to the very skies and the blue yankees themselves soon told to every man woeful tales of his impending fate. The united efforts of all both bodily and mental were called forth and they exemplified the proverb "In unity there is strength", for our guns and wagons rolled over the rocks and hills and gullies of that country road easier and faster than they had ever gone over the best macadamized pikes. Still we succeeded in making our escape by a providential occurrence. A Brigade of our cavalry engaged the advanced guard of the enemy and thereby stayed his progress and diverted his attentions from us until after we had got fairly off the pike and out of his sight. The enemy pursued us, but any man who saw us between this pike and Sharpsburg, a distance of ten miles, could safely swear that his pursuit was vain.

Passed through Sharpsburg and camped in a beautiful grove near by.
Sept. 16—Moved out from camp at sunrise to take positions on the lines and halted in Sharpsburg until the positions could be found. Whilst halted here it was my good fortune to receive the first token of regard with which the yankees have ever complimented me. A 20 pound Parrott shell passing immediately over the officers grouped in front ranged the entire column but struck harmlessly into an out house in rear. The peculiarities of the feelings which the howling of that shell produced seemed to me plain indications of freaks in my moral nature, but I would not have dodged for a thousand dollars and if I had been by myself I dare say I would not have missed dodging for twice the sum. I am, however, proud to be able to say that this messenger startled me more than the tens of thousands which afterwards brought their woeful tidings. 11 o'clock A.M.—Took position on a high hill immediately in front of the enemy. 3 o'clock P.M.—Fights begin in skirmishing and cannonading on the left wing. 5 o'clock P.M. —Infantry fire from both sides begins. 5½ P.M.—Jackson's Corps arrives from Harpers Ferry. 6 P.M.—Tremendous fighting, which lasts until 7. 7½ P.M.—Infantry fire ceases with the enemy driven a few yards from his original position. 9 P.M.—Cannonadings cease and many a weary soldier pillowed perhaps upon the corpse of his comrade dreams for the last time of "home, love & Kindred." Sept. 17—Wednesday 5 o'clock A.M.—Occasional musketry had already disturbed our slumbers but the time had now come when none could sleep save the peaceful dead. The great battle of Sharpsburg was begun. Long lines of infantry fired the dark horizon with sheets of flame and filled the morning breeze with missiles of death. Tremendous batteries of artillery sent their missions of destruction screaming through the air and the sun which seemed to rise through hills of blood soon illuminated a spectacle on that dreadful field which no pen can describe. The contest raged during the whole day and still it was undecided.

Two hundred thousand men had for more than twelve hours made all the ingenuity, the skill and the experience of ages subservient in killing each other and beyond this not one thing had been accomplished. Both armies held and slept upon the field but neither could boast of victory.

Sept. 18—Both armies remained all day confronting each other unwilling and in all probability unable to renew the conflict in force. At 8 o'clock P.M. the Confederate army begins its retreat across the Potomac into Virginia, the transportation having already crossed.

Sept. 19—The sun rose bloomingly from behind the hills and lo! to the consternation of the yankees the "rebels" were gone. We had escaped, you may say, like a bird from the hands of the fowler. We had marched until we could march no more. We had perished until food or death one must come. We had fought until we could fight no longer, and a God send had saved us from destruction. Had the enemy pursued and attacked us on the evening of the 18th, as he might have done had he been vigilant—our army would have been annihilated and our country over-run. Passed through Sheperdstown. Stopped at a country house where I ate the first "apple butter" that I ever saw. Whilst here and taking dinner of beef without salt some shells from the yanks made us "git further" and we camped—.

Sept. 20—Went down river, formed line of battle. Drove 5000 enemy back with great slaughter, camped on Martinsburg road. Sept. 22 to Oct. 5, on the road between Martinsburg and Winchester and between Winchester and Front Royal.

Oct. 6—A quiet Sabbath afternoon brought orders which rended my happiness, wounded my pride and disappointed my ambition. The orders called for the reorganization of the artillery of the whole army under plea of the necessity of the service which necessity existed in the scarcity of horses and forage. More than twenty (20) batteries—mine among them—were temporarily reduced. The good horses and men with the best of the guns were assigned to other artillery companies in the service. Condemned horses, ammunitions and the most inferior guns were turned in to the ordnance department. The officers who were relieved reported to the Secretary of War and were by him assigned to duty.

PHILOGYNY & PATHOS

In leaving the army which I did about noon on the 7'' or 8'' October I was deeply grieved, chagrined and mortified. Many of my men were little less so than my self and some shed tears because of my departure. . . . Finally however, I excused myself and with my trunk in the wagon prepared to take a seat. Mollie followed me very contrary to my expectations and detained me at the door and then at the gate with tender expressions of her regret and other manifestations of deep concern. It was then that I first felt a conviction that there was a being on earth—a lovely one—my dear Mollie—who was willing to give me comfort in my adversity and partake even of my sorrows. This feeling notwithstanding did me but little good, for if I was not worthy I had no desire to possess the regard of any one and my confidence in myself was shaken. I had not seen the Secretary of War and the result of my interview with him I foreboded would ruin me forever. After promising Mollie to return as soon as I could to see her I bid her an affectionate good-evening and returned to the Hotel. Upon seeing the Secretary of War which I was not able to do until the 14'' inst., I was directed to report to Maj. Gen. G. W. Smith then commanding at Richmond. He assigned me to duty temporarily with Lieut. Col. Shields at Camp Lee, the order dating 15'' October 1862.

I remained on duty at Camp Lee still visiting Mollie almost every day until the 18th of November when upon my own application I was ordered to report ''for assignment to duty and orders'' to the Commandant of Conscripts for Georgia. Of course I now called upon Mollie and informed her that I must leave her for a time—(and it may be forever)—Poor girl! her heart swelled, her face colored and her eyes overflowed with tears. She hung about my neck, kissed me and sat down upon the lounge in deep but silent grief. Presently she asked in broken accents some questions concerning my prospects and probable return to Richmond. I gave her what consolation I could telling her that I would be apt to see her as often as I applied for leave and that my duties in Ga. would be more agreeable, easy and honorable than what they had been in Va. She seemed to cheer up when I alluded to more honorable employment, for she was of firm opinion that my abilities were wasting for want of employment. A short and sweet conversation then ensued, at the close of which I told her that we had to part, that matters had become reconciled between us touching the parting that we had both realized it, that we should meet again soon and that we might as well be cheerful as sad. She said she thought so and seemed very much nerved. I asked her to play the Marseilles hymn. She did so and it was pleasing beyond description. My time was growing short. It was now near time for the cars to leave 5 o'clock P.M. Thoughtlessly I asked her to sing the sweet little air "Good Bye." She began but could not finish it. She sung but a few words with trembling voice, then buried her face in her hands and wept like a child. I gently raised her from the stool of the piano and we locked arms across the neck of each other and for a minute wept together. I then pressed her close to my body. We mingled tears with tears and lips with lips, I left her, praying in my heart as I now do that the blessings of God may forever rest upon her and especially that no fiend may ever gain her holy affections and by their strength betray her. In crossing over the bridge on the James she had from her father's house a splendid view of the train which took me away and her first letter says "I felt like all was going with it". While the train was on the bridge I took a "Longing, lingering look" at the cottage by the river. I could see my Darling Mollie but could not distinguish her features—God bless her, I may see her again no more, forever.

Upon reporting to Lt. Col. Jno. B. Weems Commandant Conscripts for Georgia with Headquarters at Macon I was by special orders No. 2 Nov. 29, 1862, assigned as Enrolling Officer for the Seventh Congressional District with my Headquarters at Griffin, Ga. Col. Bailey, my predecessor there, had paid but little attention to the business of his office even for the short time in which he held it and I may have been justly said to have been the first Enrolling Officer the District ever had. The locality was a very healthy and pleasant one and the society of the place extremely agreeable. The ravages of war had not yet devastated the country and the free spirit of the people remained comparatively unhurt. In a few days Lieut. Council reported to me for duty as Asst. Eng. Offr. The business of the office was soon arranged for his accomodation and mine. He preferred the society of gentlemen and consequently the work of our office and there not being enough to busy us both I paid my respects to the ladies and lived the life of a loafer as most men are want to do. In the morning I would rise about eight o'clock, dress and drink and breakfast, read the paper if there was one and go into town about 9 or ten where I would meet Capt. Stark, Capt. Lewis, Col. Rogers Billy Mitchell, Cook, Dr. Daniel, Mayor Jossey, Major Smith and divers others, Tobe Johnson, Capt. Johnson, Capt. Gross, & Trent, Ried, more or less every day. Drinks and billiards being cheap, contributed to our amusement, in fact, constituted our favorite entertainment. Occasionally we would have whist and drinks. About one P.M. we went to dinner and returned to town about three. The afternoon I generally spent in riding either on horseback or in buggy with or without ladies.

The evening constituted the best part of the day and was almost invariably spent in company with the ladies. Parties, sociables, private entertainments, and visits took up the hours from 8 to eleven sometimes to 1, 2 and 3 A.M. Upon these occasions I generally met (..... 12 ladies named).

Camp Lawton Nov. 19, 1864, I returned to duty at Athens about the 15 of January 1864 and remained there until 15 March only. During these two months except what annoyance the thoughts of leaving Athens and living in Gainesville occasioned me—I spent the time quite pleasantly. There were a great many parties and I attended nearly all of them. There was also a series of tableaux gotten up by Misses Franklin & Carnik in which I was solicited to take parts and which was the cause of much secret satisfaction to the ladies in attendance who wished to show their pretty selves and especially those delicate parts of their feet, legs, arms and breasts which decency in other places would hide. I will not do the fair creatures the injustice to say that they took more pleasure in exhibiting these things than I did in looking at them. I remember especially among the beauties the costume, the figure and the countenance of Miss ..... as my Queen in a scene from King Lear, she appeared very much as the woman who—

"Rose from her untroubled sleep
And put away her soft dark hair
And in a voice as low and deep
As loves first whisper breathed a prayer,
Her snow white hands together pressed
Her bright eye sheltered in its lid
The flowing night-gown on her breast
But swelling with the charms it hid."

PEDAGOGUE

Extracts from an article written for the Georgia Educational Journal March, 1939, by Roy Newton, Great Nephew, Dean of the Junior College, Ferris Institute, Big Rapids, Michigan.

James Appleton Blackshear kept an uncommonly detailed and revealing personal diary from 1862 to almost the day of his untimely death in Louisiana in August, 1867. The greater part of the four handwritten volumes of the diary is concerned with the war. This part forms an interesting and historically valuable document in itself. However, those portions describing his experiences as a post-war teacher in Sumter County should be of particular interest to Georgia teachers today.

His teaching experience included one "year" in Sumter County, Georgia, in 1865, and part of a year in Claiborne Parish, Louisiana, in 1867. His school "year" in Georgia included 16 weeks (80 days of actual teaching) from July 10 to October 30, 1865. His "salary" for the entire period, amounting to $135.66, was collected from patrons on the basis of the number of "scholars" from each home. An interesting sociological sidelight of this arrangement is that the county paid the tuition for two children from an indigent family.

His first entries on opening his school reveal problems in pedagogy that are timeless: lack of proper facilities, discipline, and partiality.

> "Monday, July 10, 1865. Began to teach school. Had 16 pupils. 'Twas pleasant in the morning but unpleasant in the afternoon. The children have not enough books to be properly classed off and as they cannot get them I may begin to cultivate patience of which I shall probably have need on some other accounts. School house is in bad order and water has to be brought from Mr. Elbert Ansley's, nearly one-half mile.
> "Wednesday, July 12, 1865. Had the same school as yesterday. Had a notion to flog Perry about his insolence and his geography lesson, but let him off with a lecture and a promise. I had hoped to manage my school without using timber, but I am now about to conclude that it cannot be done. The wild spirit of these boys will not be tamed by frowns and lectures.

"Wednesday, July 19, 1865. Father began working on the school house well, having concluded that it would be easier to clean out the old one and put a new curb in it than it would be to dig a new one. . . . Had to keep Perry and Thomas in at noon because they did not know their Geography lesson, and to lead Joan by the arm and make her sit in my chair for a few minutes for making noise. Perry and Tom studied and learned their lesson and recited it. Joan cried considerably and would have grown boisterous had I not talked of sending for a switch.

"Thursday, July 20, 1865. Thomas Allen, whose family have been expecting him to die every day for a week, is better today. I went to the branch at noon and bathed though the place is not a very suitable one.

"Friday, July 21, 1865. Wm. W. went fishing and did not come to school. Weather very hot, dismissed school one hour earlier than usual, i.e. at five o'clock.

"Saturday, July 22, 1865, Remained at home until after four o'clock and went with father to the creek. Had a good bath but took too much exercise in swimming. In coming home I fell in with Judson Clark who told me that he had heard it reported that Miss Nora was to marry soon but did not know to whom 'twould be. He seemed not to know that people generally think me interested in her.

"Monday, July 24, 1865—I began this morning to review my Latin grammar and intend spending a half hour with it and my Latin reader every day until the end of the present term. It has now been six years since I laid these books by, but with diligent attention I hope so to improve myself in them by the opening of the next term, provided I should teach, as to feel competent to teach them.

"Tuesday, July 25, 1865. Had 24 scholars today. Bennie Allen came with Betta this morning, and remained all day. He swallowed a marble.

"Wednesday, July 26, 1865. Thomas Green went to the mill. All other scholars came. Nothing unusual. I studied Algebra a little as I have been doing since I began teaching and as I expect to continue to do until I have reviewed it throughout.

"Friday, July 28, 1865. Had all my scholars, 24. Whipped Willie Roberts for sticking straws in Judson Roberts' navel.

"Monday, July 31, 1865. Went to church with all the school except Marion Roberts and Cassie Wilder. Perry's class didn't know Geography. Made them get it over and promised them a thrashing.

"Tuesday, August 8, 1865. Dismissed school an hour earlier than usual, went home and to Miss Mollie Gains' wedding. There were a great many awkward country girls and a few town ladies with as many old people as were desired to grace the occasion. . . . Promenaded the yard for half an hour with Miss Mary Allen, who is, like unto myself, 'restless and unhappy,' dissatisfied with things as they are without any hope of being able to better them.

"Wednesday, August 9, 1865. Absent Mrs. Elbert's boys. Had a game of marbles with some of the boys.

"Monday, August 14, 1865. Had only 17 scholars. I suppose they have stopped to attend the protracted meeting at Bear Branch or Rehobeth Baptist Church.

"Tuesday, August 15, 1865. Had but 13 scholars. Whipped Judson Roberts for tickling Jammie Gaines. 12 Yankees came to our house after I went home from school and ate some peaches.

"Friday, August 18, 1865. In the afternoon I went to town and took the oath of allegiance. Received a letter and some papers from the U.S.P.O. for father and went to see Miss Nora, I believe, has concluded that I do not intend to marry her. In fact, she told me so, and I did not endeavor to make her believe otherwise.

"Friday, August 25, 1865. Had 22 scholars. Whipped Perry, Pomp Allen, Jno. L. Barrow, Willie Roberts, Augustus Ansley, and Clinton Solomon Adams for going to the branch three times when they were forbidden to go but twice during a week. Also whipped Pickie, Elvira Green, Cassie Wilder, and Betta Duke for having gone into the branch at the boys' bathing place.

"Tuesday, August 29, 1865. Had 24 scholars. Whipped Jno. L. Barrow and Doctor Gwathney for disturbing the school with noise, etc. during study hours. Introduced the game of town-ball at recess in the morning. The boys were well pleased and we enjoyed ourselves finely at playing then, at dinner time, and at recess in the afternoon. Mrs. Ebert's cows had the misfortune to get into Mr. Mulkey's sorghum patch where they ate so much that two of them died.

"Monday, September 25, 1865. My school is now somewhat like I wish to have it—free from dead heads. I have none today, and from what I can hear I have reason to believe that most of them contemplate stopping entirely. I am glad to have it so, especially as they have found no fault with me and do not know that I want them to quit.

"Monday, October 30, 1865. Went to the school house and dismissed the school. Brought home books, papers, etc. Helped work in the sugar cane and blistered my right hand."

The Masonic Lodge records have yielded the letters quoted below. He did undertake to establish a Masonic paper or magazine and tried to interest James Appleton B. in becoming the Editor of it. This venture died aborning. He made a "business trip" to England on which journey he took his three daughters along. FMBB is said to have been an invalid for many years prior to her death. T. H. Raines says JEB "was highest Mason in Ga. Lived in Macon, Savannah, and New York. Second wife was Julia, sister of Wm. R. Rogers, Esq. of Macon, Ga." Jas. Ap. B. in May 1865, visiting in the home of the Dr., observed as follows: "Cousin Fannie is in a great deal of trouble about the freeing of the Negroes and the want of delicacies. The Dr. is himself, I suppose, as refined a gentleman as there is in the whole family, for the truth is we love truth and honesty too well to cultivate the arts of dissembling without the use of which real refinement is very seldom observed. Joseph and Elijah (sons of General David), both are very plain men who seem to be proud of their character, kindred and blood." 1873, Graduate of Medical College of Atlanta. (A. J. J. EMMETT BLACKSHEAR'S LETTER

The following letter from Right Worshipful J. Emmett Blackshear was read by the Grand Secretary and was received and ordered spread upon the minutes:

To the M. W. Grand Master and Members of the Grand Lodge of Georgia:

Beloved Brethren—In 1860 I was elected Deputy Grand Master of this Grand Lodge and from that time to the present I have never missed a Communication. During this period I have formed life-long attachments, and received honors which have been duly appreciated. But as I expect to sail in a few days for Europe, it may never be my pleasure to meet with you again in Grand Communication. I shall carry with me none other than the kindest recollections of this Grand Body and my association with its members, and if I have ever said or done aught to offend a single member, I humbly crave his forgiveness.

I desire not to be misunderstood in relation to the matter sprung in the Grand Lodge on yesterday, relative to a matter mentioned in my part of the report on correspondence. If any of you suppose that I do not most heartily subscribe to the doctrine of the resurrection of the body, you have totally misconstrued what I wrote. No member of this Grand Body has a stronger belief in the resurrection of the body than myself. But I believe the resurrected body is a spiritual body. "We were sown a natural body, we are raised a spiritual body." The Great Light of Masonry tells us that "flesh and blood can not inherit the Kingdom of God," and I believe it, but would not force my belief upon you, as you are as much entitled to yours as I am to mine.

In conclusion I beg to say that if I can, at any time serve this Grand Lodge or any member thereof, in England, I shall be most happy to do so.

Faithfully and Fraternally yours,
J. EMMETT BLACKSHEAR

Macon, Georgia
October 26, 1887

Brother A. S. Giles offered the following resolution, which was unanimously adopted:

Resolved, That the members of this Grand Lodge most cordially reciprocate the fraternal sentiments contained in the letter just read from Right Worshipful Brother J. Emmett Blackshear, and extend to him our best wishes for his safety, prosperity and felicity in the two voyages which he is about to undertake.

J. EMMETT BLACKSHEAR

Brother A. M. Wolihin, Grand Secretary, read the following communication from Right Worshipful J. Emmett Blackshear, which, on motion of Brother J. E. Redwine was received and the Grand Secretary was requested to convey to Brother Blackshear the thanks of this Grand Lodge for the kind sentiments toward the Grand Lodge and the members thereof.

35 Snow Hill, London, E.C.
October 12, 1888

To the Most Worshipful Grand Master and Brethren of the Grand Lodge of Free and Accepted Masons for the State of Georgia, U.S.A.

Greeting—"The melancholy days have come, the saddest of the year," and Autumn's sear and yellow leaf" reminds me that the period for the assembling of our Grand Lodge approaches. My mind, therefore, naturally reverts to those annual love-feasts in which I have for so many years been an honored participant; and as I gaze through the vista of the past, scenes connected with this Grand Body, which an experience of over thirty years has made familiar, pass in review before me. This panorama, which presents so many features from which pleasures in by-gone days were evolved, is well calculated now to fill me with sadness; for those pleasures are gone—nevermore to return, and many who shared them with me exist in memory alone.

For the last thirty years I have been a regular attendant at the Grand Lodge, not having missed a Communication. During that time what changes have occurred! What parts have been performed upon the Masonic stage! What entrances and what exists! and alas! how many bright and shining lights in the mystic temple have been extinguished by the remorseless destroyer, Death: All these things crowd themselves upon my memory; and in thinking of those who survive, with the waste of waters that intervene, I wonder whether, in the providence of God, we shall ever meet again. But whether present or absent in the flesh, I shall always be with you in spirit, and to my life's end will respond to the heart-throbs of brotherly love which vibrate the mystic cord that binds us together.

To my beloved Brother A. S. Giles, who introduced the complimentary resolution in my behalf at the last Annual Communication, and to the brethren who unanimously supported it, I beg to return my sincerest thanks. I flatter myself that it may interest some of my brethren to know that the two voyages to which allusion was so happily made in the resolution aforesaid have been entirely successful. The one across the water was exceptionally fine; the elements were indeed propitious, the weather was charming, the sea mirror-like in its smoothness and placidity, and I can scarcely imagine that a more pleasant trip was ever made across the broad Atlantic. But more delightful still has been the matrimonial voyage mentioned, on which providence has thus far smiled, and which has been without a ripple to disturb the serenity of its progress. I trust that I am duly thankful to the Giver of all good gifts that my lines have thus fallen in pleasant places, and I have cause to hope that, through the grace of God, the later days of my life will be peaceful and happy. I pray you excuse these personal allusions, but I feel that we all belong to the same family, and that the interest of one should therefore be the interest of all.

I have had the opportunity of attending only one Communication of the Grand Lodge of England since I came to London. The meetings are quarterly, as you know and are conducted very differently from the manner in which we do business in American Grand Lodges. They have a Board of General Purposes, who meet monthly, to hear grievances and to attend to any other business that may arise. It is before this Board that all discussions take place and all matters are finally disposed of. They say they prefer to wash their dirty clothes at home, in the family so they can come before the Grand Communication clad in clean garments. What is there done is simply a formal recognition of what the aforesaid Board has done. The Grand Communications are, therefore, of brief duration, never lasting over one evening. The one I attended opened at 8 P.M. and closed at 9 P.M. and yet the hall, which is quite large and gorgeously decorated, was filled to overflowing, even in the galleries. Every one in attendance moreover was in full evening dress, and full jeweled, no one being admitted without his jewel. Many were, indeed, ablaze with jewels.

I never had much taste for personal decorations, yet for once I rather regretted that I had not, before leaving America, supplied myself with a modest emblem of my Masonic rank, which would have entitled me to a position of honor; as it was, I borrowed a Past Master's jewel and took my seat among the small fry. I, perhaps, enjoyed it as much, however, as if I had been among the Princes and Lords of the Realm, the Prince of Wales being at the head.

The Temple, which is on Great Queen Street, presents a very respectable, though not particularly imposing exterior. The facade is ornamented with six Corinthian columns, and with statuary representing the Cardinal Virtues. Adjoining the Temple is the Freemason's Tavern, where the Grand Banquets are held.

But I must not longer trespass upon your valuable time. I have intended this simply as a family letter, and hope it will be received in the spirit that prompted its dictation.

Please remember, if I can serve the Grand Lodge, or any of its members individually, I shall be happy to do so.

Trusting that harmony may prevail, and that your labors may in every way be crowned with success, I am as ever,

Faithfully and fraternally yours,
J. EMMETT BLACKSHEAR

From:
James Everard Blackshear
Savannah, Georgia

To:
His Uncle Marmaduke Hamilton

Bivouac in the ditches near Savannah, Georgia.
December 16th, 1864.
My dear Uncle:
You have doubtless given up all idea of hearing from me again. We went into the ditches here Thursday night and have been under a heavy fire ever since. If a man shows his head above the breastworks it will be shot at before it has been there ten seconds. There were three men wounded in the Regt. yesterday while working on a battery that was considered ball proof. I do not think we will remain in this place very long, for I believe it is the intention of Gen. Hardee to surrender the city. It is reported that there is only ten days rations in the city, and if it is true, we are in rather a bad position. The Yankee pickets are within 200 yards of our works, and keep up a constant fire all the time. There is but one place that our army can get out without fighting, and if we do not pass through that place soon I am afraid it will be stopped. The regiment is preparing to draw blankets and shoes, and I think something is to pay that is not exactly right. I am very well and think I will continue so if some unhealthy Yankee bullet does not hit me. We draw very slim rations and no chance of having them increased. The coursest of bull beef and sour corn bread. If there is any bacon in the place I think we ought to draw, for we cannot leave the ditches to get wood except at night, and then there is great danger of being killed. I do not think there is a very large force in our front, but sufficient to repel any attack that can be made on them.

I suppose everything in Savannah is at a standstill. I would try to run the blockade but am afraid I could not succeed in flanking the pickets. We are three miles to the left of the railroad, but where we are I cannot tell. Give my love to all while I remain as ever,

Your most affectionate nephew
James E. Blackshear.

You must excuse this hastily written letter, for there is so much firing and talking around me, I cannot think, much less write.

"At the age of 17 he enlisted in the Army of the Confederate States of America, in Co. A 5th Reg't Ga. Reserves on the 23 of April, 1864. This regiment was composed of youths between the ages of 17 and 18 and men from 45 to 50 and was sometimes called "Joe Brown's Pets", originally designed for provost and guard duty within the State of Ga. But J. E. B. also fought with his Company in pitched battles in N. C. at Bentonsville and Averysboro. A comrade in arms, Moses Guyton, wrote of J. E. B.; "He was 1st Sgt. of our Company, and during the last few months before the surrender he was for the most part in Command of the little remnant of our Company left in service. J. E. B. was brilliant in mathematics, and supervised the bookkeeping departments of Baldwin & Co., and later of Peacock Hunt & Co., both Naval Stores distributors of Savannah, Ga. He invented an adding machine but never patented it. As an expert accountant he was frequently employed on Holidays and after hours to find errors in bookkeeping for Banks in Savannah. He was a devoted husband and father, and loved the beauties of nature. After Church Services each Sunday he loved to ramble with his family through the woodlands near their home in Guyton, Ga. He cultivated rare flowers at early and late hours after commuting to Savannah each day. He had a natural gift for music and played beautifully on his rare old violin on many social occasions. He was beloved by hosts of friends, young and old." by A Laura E. Blackshear, dau.

Cit. Memoir of Gen'l David Blackshear p. 476 and p. 359. Census Laurens Co., Ga., 1820-1830. History of Laurens Co., Ga. P. 334. The House agreed to take up the report of the select committee to whom was referred the charges preferred by Joseph Blackshear against Moses Fort, the Judge of the Southern Circuit in this State; when Moses Fort, Esq., judge of said court, appeared at the bar of the House, attended by John A. Heard, Samuel Rockwell, Robert Augustus Beall, and Zachariah B. Hargrove, Esquires, as his counsel, and the said report being read, as follows:—

The select committee to whom was referred the charges preferred by Joseph Blackshear against Moses Fort, the Judge of the Southern Circuit in this State report:
That they entered upon the discharge of the duty devolving upon them by said reference under a deep sense of the duty which they owed to the rights of the person whose conduct was impeached, on the one hand, and the rights of the citizens of this State, on the other; that, under these feelings, they deemed it their duty to allow of the freest investigation on the one side and the most ample means of defense on the other. The more effectually to obtain these ends, your committee considered that they had the power (and accordingly exercised it) of permitting both the accuser and the accused to appear before them by counsel. Both parties availed themselves of this privilege, and thereby enjoyed the rights, to the fullest extent, of cross- and re-examining all the witnesses who were brought before the committee. The evidence thus taken before the committee has been committed to paper and herewith submitted to the House, with the papers therein referred to. From the evidence thus submitted, your committee feel themselves authorized to say that the first charge submitted—to wit: That the said Moses Fort "has been on the bench as judge so intoxicated, at repeated times and places, as to render him incapable and utterly incapacitated from performing the duties assigned him as judge"—has been substantially supported and proven.

Much evidence has been submitted to your committee in support of the second charge,—to wit: That the said Moses Fort "has repeatedly decided causes in courts, (or some of them) in and over which he presided, from base and unworthy, improper, partial, and corrupt motives." And although the evidence adduced to support this charge proves many acts of the said Moses Fort which might be deemed either illegal or improper, yet, in the opinion of your committee, it is not of that clear and positive nature which they have considered necessary to enable them to pronounce the motives of the said Moses Fort either improper, partial, or corrupt.

In support of the third charge, very little evidence has been submitted to your committee other than an exemplification of the record of one case, (which was an indictment for assault with intent to murder,) which in the opinion of your committee, cannot be considered sufficient to warrant the conclusion that the judge was actuated by corrupt motives in making his decisions in this case.

The fourth charge is in its nature more general,—to wit: That the said Moses Fort, "from general intemperance and intoxication, is unfit and incapacitated from performing the duties of judge." Evidence in support of this charge consists of that produced to substantiate the first, connected with proof of the general habits of the said Moses Fort for intemperance.

It will readily be perceived that the truth or falsity of this charge must depend upon the effect which a given degree of intemperance will or may have upon the mind and conduct of any individual; and, though the whole evidence may not show an extravagant or continual use of ardent spirits by the said Moses Fort, yet, in the opinion of your committee, it must have opposed a considerable barrier to the speedy and faithful administration of justice in the circuit over which he presides.

Whatever difference of opinion may exist as to the disqualification of the judge, from intemperance, to perform the duties of his office, your committee are of opinion that all must agree that the evidence shows an habitual intemperance on the part of the judge as to prostrate the dignity of his office and materially to interrupt the discharge of his official duties. With these views of the subject and the evidence, your committee feel themselves constrained to offer the following resolution:—

Resolved, by the Senate and House of Representatives, two-thirds of each branch concurring, That the Governor be, and he is hereby, authorized and required forthwith to remove from office Moses Fort, the present judge of the Southern circuit in this State.

After the counsel for the judge had concluded their argument in his behalf, they retired, accompanied by the judge, after which considerable discussion arose in the House, when, on motion to agree to said report, the yeas and nays were required to be recorded, and are,—Yeas, 88; Nays, 37. The Speaker announced the result, and declared the report and resolution agreed to by a majority of two-thirds, as required by the Constitution, and the clerk was directed forthwith to carry said report and resolution to the Senate. In Senate, Journal, 290.

The Senate took up so much of the message of the House of Representatives yesterday as relates to the report of the select committee of the House to which was referred the charges preferred by Joseph Blackshear against Moses

Fort, the Judge of the Southern circuit in this State: And on the question of concurring with the House, by a majority of two-thirds, in said report and accompanying resolution, the yeas and nays being required, it was determined in the negative,—Yeas, 39; Nays, 27.

B. as 27 and a farmer, no wife. 1860 lists him as 38 and a farmer, no wife. 1870 lists him as 48 and a farmer, no wife. 1880 lists "Joe", white, bachelor age 54. Diary entry by James Appleton Blackshear, 22 May, 1865, "I met Joseph Blackshear, son of Gen'l David and his brother Elijah, also William B. Blackshear, brother of Dr. J. Emmett Blackshear, at the home of the Doctor, at Macon, Ga." Writing prior to 1858, Stephen F. Miller says, "Joseph John Floyd Blackshear has established a plantation in Texas, with part of his own force and part of the force of his brothers Everard and Elijah, retaining an interest in their planting operations in Laurens.'' The U. S. Census records would seem to indicate that this Texas venture was short lived since J. J. F. B. is found in Laurens Co., Ga., in the years 1850-1860-1870-1880.

J. L. B. Primitive Baptist Preacher and farmer. Served several Churches simultaneously, ''Monthly Meetings'' all located in and about Terrell, Randolph, Stewart, and Webster Counties,—the remembered names are ''Mars Hill'' ''Benevolence'', ''Macedonia'', ''Chickasawhatchie''. Witnessed deed, Everitt to Elijah Paul Blackshear, 26 April, 1851, Stewart Co., Ga. On 1848 Tax list Randolph Co., Ga., not on it in 1849. Private in Capt. James Wilson's Company B 2nd Regiment. Medical Discharge. ''Chronic Nephritis''. Re-enlisted Dawson, Ga., 14 Feb., 1863, captured and taken prisoner to Staten Island, N. Y., where he remained until the end of the 1861-65 war, was shipped to Norfolk, Va., and walked to Randolph Co., Ga., where his wife and daughter lived. He arrived there ''in the middle of the night''. His father gave him some land and some slaves. The slaves left ''during the war'' except ''Angeline'' who stayed on until JLB returned from the war and helped the family build a fire under the wash pot to heat the water used to ''Delouse'' him. His prison rags were burned in the same fire. Angeline's husband and children left after JLB went to war, but Angeline found a "Fence Row" son later whom she named Hamp Blackshear. Hamp was raised as a house boy in the home of JLB and CEEB. He was taught to read and write, he later had a family of his own who were a credit to him and to his race. Angeline "faded away" perhaps Hamp knew her end but her "white folks" never did. JLB's shortest sermon followed third on a panel of preachers at one of the "Quarterly Conferences" at Chickasawhatchie Church, he took his place behind the podium and looked over the congregation and said "I love preaching as good as anybody but I know when I have had enough, let's go to dinner." His Hostess, Mrs. Jennings asked if he would have some cream for his coffee, his reply "Yes, Maam, thats what I drink it fur". (Floyd Jennings of Washington, D. C., told this story in the lobby of a hotel in Montreaux, Switzerland, 16 July, 1953). On another occasion he was preaching on the Palm Sunday theme, when to the amazement of the adults and to the amusement of the "younguns", but at the same time, with sublime reverence, he left the pulpit and straddled the alter rail and with arms feet and body, illustrated the ride on the donkey that Sunday so long long ago made by his Lord. On his death bed, a nephew, Miles Blackshear, gave him a cigar which he lighted and said, "Fire on one end and fool on the other." From the Cuthbert Leader, a weekly newspaper, May, 1913, "Rev. J. L. Blackshear died at his home in Cuthbert, Ga., Sunday night, of old age. He was born in 1826, not far from Hawkinsville, but spent a considerable portion of his youth in Stewart Co. He resided in this County (Randolph), for the past 35 years. He served as a soldier in the Civil war and was captured near the close of hostilities and imprisoned at New York. The family had not heard from him and supposed him to be dead. Several months after the close of the war, he returned home coatless, shoeless, clad in trousers and a red undershirt. But he received a royal welcome. Soon after returning home he entered the Ministry and for about 45 years was an Elder, (Preaching), of the Primitive, (Hardshell) Baptist Church, preaching until he became too feeble. For about 20 years he was Coroner of Randolph Co. A man of irreproachable life, Mr. Blackshear, commanded the esteem of all who knew him and was beloved in several Counties. He is survived by his wife, who has passed her 80th year. He was 87, their married life lasted 60 years. They had only one child, Mrs. O. F. Blackshear, who died four or five years ago''. The parents of E.C.E.B. are buried in an (now) abandoned Cemetery near their old home in Stewart Co., J. P. Ellis was a Primitive Baptist Preacher. The grave stone is inscribed as a gift from a group of his Church people. His wife died much later and is buried beside him in the old Slaughter Creek Cemetery located in the N. E. Corner of Stewart Co. Family listed in Butler Co., Ala., 1860. Wife listed in Family of parents, age 15, in 1850, in Stewart Co., Ga. Family listed in Randolph Co., Ga., with Jesse Ellis, age 3 and Burke Ellis age 7, b. in Texas. (Nephews of wife by Brother Allison Ellis of Lufkin, Texas.) The Cuthbert ''Leader'' for 9 March, 1915, announced her death.

her niece, Hallie McHenry Shinholser of Madison, Ga., wrote: "Lucy Blackshear and her sister, Zoe, were two beautiful and popular young ladies when Gainesville, Ga., was a gay summer resort. With moonlight and music, in those days, young folks went in groups and always with a chaperon in each conveyance. The merry laughter floated out over the winding roads to "New Holland" and "White Sulphur Springs", where visitors from several states mingled with the belles and beaux from Gainesville. Other nights found them at the "Arlington Hotel" where the summer orchestra made light the hearts of those happy carefree young people who fairly danced the summer nights away, then followed the smaller gatherings as the glorious colors of fall spread over the hills. And how they welcomed Christmas with closer friends, boys and girls around great blazing log fires! Songs floated out from the parlor as Zoe played the old fashioned Rose Wood Piano. On the heels of Christmas came the "New Year Calling" of those days. Young gentlemen in high silk hats and high stepping horses, carriages full of young men rode up where groups of young girls were serving together at several homes (refreshments were served at each place) and all of the boys saw all of the girls before the New Year "Calling" was over. My Aunt, with all her love for fun and her dancing feet which danced down the years into her great grandmother days, has a more serious side that every one does not know. And so, my little "introduction" goes out to my kin people and friends with a poem she has written recently, I love it as much as I love her collection of memories." Hallie McHenry Shinholser.

Love Divine

by

LUCY BLACKSHEAR COLLINS

Oh Love divine, that stills this
Restless heart of mine,
And bids me drop the load of care
And see God's presence everywhere.
Oh Love Divine, that calls me from

This world of Strife,
To realms afar, where Life and Love
And God's own children are
Oh Love Divine, that brings the light
When murky clouds would dim my sight,
I then can hear the Master say,
"Peace be still, I am the way"

"The Memoirs" were written for her Great grandson, Richard Banks McMillan, descendant of Willie Gibson Mower and Jordan Woods. It relates many charming incidents and illustrates the manner of living of two generations, also some of the tall tales told by old servants and other grumpy oldsters, revealing a clever ability at prose and a more serious side in the poem "Oh Love Divine".

R. G., occupation, Cotton Planter. Owned more slaves than any man in the County, his parents were the first settlers in Sumter Co., at a time when R. G. was 16 years of age. Members of the Methodist Church. Bought the old Blackshear home where he lived with his dau., Jenny after the death of his wife and her husband. MABG, "Dropt dead in the yard of her home at Scooba, near Gainesville, Ala." "Her life was that of a conscientious and devout Christian—a living commentary on that religion which is pure and undefiled. She was truly a helpmate to her husband, an affectionate mother and an obliging neighbor. The suddenness of her death did not permit her to speak of the love of Jesus in her soul, but the consistency of her Christian life is sufficient to assure us that she has only been transferred from the Church Militant to the Church Triumphant." By W. Spillman. Joseph Gillespie Lawler remembers that his Grandfather Robert loved to tell about the early settlers of Sumter Co., Ala., especially of the day when he was riding through the woods looking for the cattle, hearing the sound of an axe, and trees falling, he knew that it did not come from the Indians, for they only hunted and fished, so he rode over to greet the new neighbors, a pretty young girl was watching and he noticed what a pretty young girl she was. It was young Mary Ann Blackshear, who later became his wife. The Gillespies were better educated than some of the pioneers of their days and determined that their children would be better educated than were they. The boys had College Educations and while the girls were away at school they learned to play the piano, their parents bought the first Piano in Scooba, Ala., and indeed, in all of that part of Ala. People came from miles around to see and hear the "pie-anna"; they would stand outside the house and beg the girls to bring the piano out on the porch and play for them, it being an old fashioned 5 legger, that was hardly possible, so the girls induced the neighbors to come in to the house, all were amazed at the size, thinking that it would be an instrument about the size of a fiddle. Jos. G. Lawler says that the original Blackshear place did not have over 160 acres, but David bought up homesteads as fast as they became available until his plantation contained 800 Acres.

Being now (1954), 84 years of age, has retired from business but has a perfectly clear mind and memory. Abstractors, reporters and Oil Co., representatives come to him for information and are always astounded at his knowledge about local people, places, dates, and events. The town of Lawtell, La., was founded by him and named for himself and his then business partner Leonce Littell by detaching the first and last sylables of their surnames. He purchased the land, gave the right of way to the Railroad Co., who wanted to run their trains into and through the town, the Railroad surveyed and laid out the lots, he sold them at auction, except three lots, one of which he gave to the Catholic Church, one to the Methodists, and one to the town for School Buildings. The streets were named for the children of the founders. On "Radio Sunday" 14 Feb., 1954, the Opelousas Methodist Church honored by public recognition those who had been members for 50 years or more, among those recognized was

Mary Floyd Hamilton Blackshear Rogers. Graduated from

Piedmont College with A.B. degree; studied art at U. of Ga. under Lamar Dodd and others; taught public school art to teachers at S. S. Piedmont College and North Georgia College; taught at Jones Normal School in Eclectric Ala. and at Nacoochee Institute in Ga. Mountains.

A wonderful helpmate to her husband in his life as Dean of Piedmont College, President of North Georgia College, President of the University of Georgia, and after his retirement, as Director of Tallulah Falls Industrial School. State Chairman of Education for Ga. Federation of Women's Clubs; several times President of Dahlonega Woman's Club; for three years Chairman of the Building Com. for Dahlonega Community House and Lumpkin Co. Library, achieved under P.W.A. after she and her committee had raised, by private subscription, $3,500.00 to match $15,000.00 furnished by U. S. Government. The Community House was the result of her own original idea and initiative. The town and club wished to name the House for her but she declined that honor. Her object was to establish a library for the county, and a lunch room for the undernourished children. While State Chairman of Education she gained the promise for instruction in speech to be included in all grades of the public schools. She addressed 5th District Woman's Club in Atlanta and other clubs in interest of education and through her influence many new libraries were acquired for counties throughout the states. Floyd Blackshear Rogers served also as:

Member: N.S. Daughters American Revolution, Regent of Tomochichi Chapter of Habersham Co.; twice Vice-Regent N.S.D.A.R. Col. Wm. Chandler Chap. of Gainesville; Association of Georgia Artists; Southern States Art League; S.E. Arts, Ass'n; University of Georgia Woman's Club. Represented by paintings in annual exhibitions of art associations mentioned; also by a "One-Man Show" at Athens Regional Library.

Awards include second prize for original pageant won in National Contest conducted by Nat. Federation of Women's Club.

Religious Work: She joined the First Presbyterian Church of Athens when quite young. From girlhood at 12 years of age she was active in teaching in Sunday Schools, wherever she lived or spent summer vacations, in mountain missions and college towns. In Dahlonega she taught the adult class of the Methodist Church, and the class of college students at the Presbyterian Church on the same Sundays.

She gave up Federated Club work because of more pressing duties when her husband, Dr. Johnathan Clark Rogers, became President of the University of Georgia, Jan. 1, 1949—At a testimonial dinner given by the U. of Ga. faculty and alumni in honor of Dr. Rogers, a personal gift of a painting in oils by Lamar Dodd was presented to Floyd Blackshear Rogers in recognition of her gracious hospitality as hostess of the home of the President of the University.

'Interest In Fighting Progeny Keeps Fresnan, 89, 'Young'

Mrs. P. James Parker, 1616 Poplar Avenue, who has 10 grandsons and great grandsons fighting for Uncle Sam will celebrate her eighty ninth birthday Monday but she is successfully warding off old age by keeping interested in everything her warlike progency are doing to beat the Axis.

Proudly wearing a service pin with 10 stars specially made for her in New York by a grandson, Major Talbot Kendall, Mrs. Parker, daughter and widow of Confederate soldiers, summed up in a sentence today the philosophy which has kept her healthy and vigorous:

"I keep interested in all that is going on about me, particularly by coresponding and exchanging ideas with my boys on how this war can be won."

People Are Hobby

She smiled when asked her hobby:

"Simply people," she said. "Learning about them and talking to them takes all the time left after I keep the house, worked in the garden and done all my wartime and peacetime sewing."

Letters are not the only link with her active progeny, however. She has found it possible to visit them, since a number of them are doing their bit for Uncle Sam in California.

As she spoke, Mrs. Parker caressed the one gold star upon her unique service pin. That star represents a grandson, Brigadier General Clinton W. Russell, liaison officer between army and navy commands, who died in New York City last year.

Three Are Brothers

Three other stars are for Fresno brothers, all her grandsons. They are Major Parker B. Hollingsworth, with the army medical corps at Fort MacArthur; Private Claiborne Hollingsworth, now at Fort Rosecrans, who lived in Fresno until he entered the service, and Lieutenant (jg) Ashley J. Hollingsworth with a naval engineering unit in Norfolk, Va. He attended Fresno schools and was graduated from Stanford University in 1942.

The others are: Major Kendall with the 4th Air Forces in San Francisco; Ashley Parker, Jr., a grandson with a submarine crew in the Pacific; Captain James A. Parker, a grandson with the medical corps in South Carolina; Lieutenant William Russell, a great grandson who served with distinction during the African campaign, now ferrying planes for the army; Captain Peter Russell, a great grandson, a United States military academy at West Point, N. Y., graduate now overseas, and Kendall Russell, a great grandson now attending the academy.

Mrs. P. James Parker

In all, Mrs. Parker's family numbers three children, 10 grandchildren, 21 great grandchildren and three great great grandchildren. Mrs. R. B. Hollingsworth of River Road, Fresno, is her daughter. A son, Dr. Ashley S. Parker lives in Merced, and another daughter, Mrs. O. J. Kendall, resides in San Diego.

VETERAN OF KOREA HEADS WEST POINT

Gen. Blackshear Bryan Due to Succeed Irving, Retiring After 37 Years' Service

WASHINGTON, Feb. 27 (AP)—Lieut. Gen. Blackshear M. Bryan, who commanded infantry troops in the Korea fighting and is now commander of the I Corps in Korea, will be the next superintendent of the United States Military Academy at West Point.

His appointment was announced today, to be effective next September upon the retirement of Maj. Gen. Frederick A. Irving. General Irving, a native of Taunton, Mass., is rounding out thirty-seven years of Army service; he has been superintendent at West Point since February, 1951.

General Bryan, who was born at Alexandria, La., in 1900, was commissioned a second lieutenant in the field artillery in 1922, when he was graduated from West Point. He has been an instructor at the Academy on three different occasions.

During World War II he served as chief of the policy section of the War Department General Staff and later as chief of a division of the Provost Marshal General's office. He was named Provost Marshal General of the Army in December, 1945.

General Bryan was assigned to the Far East Command in January, 1951. He served first as commander of the Twenty-fourth Infantry Division in Korea, and as deputy chief of staff of the Far East Command at Tokyo. Later he was senior member of the Military Armistice Commission, and since October, 1953, has commanded the I Corps.

No Stranger to the Point

General Bryan, no stranger to the academy, also served as assistant football coach there during several periods of his military career.

Before his appointment as a cadet he had attended the Virginia Military Institute.

GENERAL BLACKSHEAR M. BRYAN
Superintendent of the U. S. Military Academy, West Point, N. Y., 1954

He was promoted to first lieutenant in 1927, to captain in 1935; to major, 1940; lieutenant colonel, 1941, and to colonel in 1942.

That same year he was raised to Brigadier general. Nine years later he was elevated to major general and this year in Korea to three-star rank.

General Bryan served as assistant football coach at the academy in 1925 for three months. A year later he held the same post for four months. In 1928, 1933 and 1934 he was an instructor.

Between these academy assignments he saw service at Fort Sill, Okla. He was graduated from the Army War College in Washington in 1940.

He also was chief of staff of the Caribbean Command, a post he held from 1948 to 1951, when he went to Korea. As senior member of the United Nations Armistice Commission he was in charge of the repatriation of United Nations prisoners.

Writing about 1900, Dr. Thomas Hart Raines said of Edward Jefferson Bryan and his wife, Penelope Hamilton, "They still have the silver prize pitcher of Penelope Blackshear."

Writing 6 June, 1942, Fred J. Cooper, Jeweler and Antiquarian. Philadelphia, Pa., said with reference to the origin of the pitcher; "The following information is taken from our book on old silver written by Mr. Currier: "Marquand, Frederick. New York, N. Y. living children and a legacy of $300.00 at age 26, her outlook was not too pleasant, but with great determination and some pride she avoided proffered help from her parents and from her late husband's parents. The older children attended Andrew Female College at Cuthbert. Then came the Cleveland Panics, which she managed to surmount solvent. She managed to buy a home and live in comfort until her untimely death of acute Nephritis. She was first a Primitive Baptist, and later a non resident member of The First Church of Christian Science, Boston. PLB had a short jolly life, was a great mimic, a singer, a farmer and at last a Rail Road Supervisor and Member of Benevolence Church, near Maddox Crossing, Ga. He d. suddenly of sun stroke.

The youthful years of this couple came along soon after the close of the 1861-65 War, their parents had difficulty in adjusting themselves to the poverty imposed by the fortunes of war, but the young folks took life as at came to them and made the most of it. Visiting with relatives and friends and church going were the most used forms of diversion. It was said that this PLB was a large, tall, dark, and handsome fellow with a great zest for life; he owned a young black stallion which he had trained as a saddle horse; hearing that his cousin, "Miss Orrie" (Oregon Frances Blackshear, distant cousin), was visiting nearby at the home of young ladies of his acquaintance, he decided to make a call; the young ladies were grouped on the front steps, a rail fence surrounded the yard. Young Blackshear, astride his black stallion scorned the gate and mounted over the rail fence, bringing up his mount on his "hind" legs, stopped just in front of the assembled company, and there, went the heart of Miss Orrie, and soon they were married! It was an accomplishment of which he was proud but of which his parents were ashamed that he would come home from "meeting" (church) and taking a stance before the Sunday dinner crowd gathered in the living room and proceed to deliver the Hell and Damnation Sermon he had heard that morning, with jestures and emphasis exaggerated, and then burst into singing the hymn of the morning in which very soon the whole assembled group would enthusiastically join. Let it not be understood that he was a scoffer or was sacrilegious; on the other hand he was a firm Christian in his walk and work.

ness Course at the Southern Short Hand and Business University at Atlanta. All further employment was with Atlanta business houses. First with the Maddox-Rucker Banking Co., later the name was changed to the American National Bank of which William Lawson Peel, (a school mate of Oregon Frances Blackshear), was the President. He was also the mentor and best friend that PLB No. 1 had found up to that time. Robert F. Maddox was Vice President and remains a good friend to date, (1954). The American National Bank was merged with the Atlanta National Bank, at which time PLB No. 1 became associated with the Third National Bank, 1916. Discovering that bank officials were overworked and underpaid and needing money for the support of a growing family, PLB No. 1, together with one, E. C. Perkins, bought the stock of Dental Supplies formerly owned by the late W. E. Foster. For several years the Perkins-Blackshear Co., operated a Dental Supply House in the Grant and Candler Buildings. On buying the interest of E. C. Perkins, PLB No. 1 merged with the Atlanta Dental Supply Co., Dr. DeLos Hill, President. Dr. Hill became another of the friendly land marks, his business and professional courage and competence became a guiding star. On the death of Dr. Hill, with G. Milton Goolsby, PLB No. 1 bought the Hill interest and operated the Corporation for several years. GMG and PLB No. 1 bought out all other stockholders and began to do business as a Partnership, trading under the name Atlanta Dental Supply Co. This partnership continues to this good day, largely due to the tolerant Christian Character, Business skill, good management and personal devotion of G. Milton Goolsby, the best of all the good friends who influenced the life of PLB No. 1. At the time of his marriage, PLB No. 1 was deeply interested in Masonry, both York and Scottish Rites, (32nd Degree), being honored by Mt. Zion Chapter R. A. M. as High Priest, by Jason Burr Council R & S Masters as Thrice Illustrious Master, by Atlanta Commandery No. 9 as Eminent Commander, finally becoming Grand Commander of the Grand Commandery of Ga. at an age earlier than any one ever to attain that honor up to that time. Under Dr. Wm. V. Gardner, as Pastor, the First Presbyterian Church elected him Deacon and later, Elder. In the American Dental Trade Association he was made Chairman of the Dealers Section for two terms and later made President of the Association for two terms June 1948-50. Among the finer values in his life he would mention; a gentle but determined mother, a wholesome fear of poverty, the finest wife one could have, the friendship of faithful and tolerant men and women, (not the least of whom was Lizzie Martin for 32 years a devoted servant, nurse, cook and house keeper; also Aubrey Stevens, butler, gardener, chauffeur, and handy man); the broadening and character building of the tenets of Free Masonary; the association with fellow Dental Trades people from all over the U. S. and Canada; the devotion of lovely daughters and sturdy sons and grandchildren; the spiritual growth through association with Pastors and members of the First Presbyterian Church; the kind response of many audiences to the numerous speeches and trade articles delivered before the meetings of the American Dental Trade Association; the comradeship of fellow Rotarians in Atlanta, Georgia, the U. S. A. and, in Europe. At the risk of seeming to be queer it can be stated truthfully that, while he ever had and has a wholesome fear of poverty, his work has never been done primarily for the sake of making money, while money has come in adequate supply, his objectives have been mostly toward a job well done, for the sake of the work itself, as unto the Lord. Some of the happier events were: the purchase and study of "Dr. Elliott's 5 foot shelf of Books", otherwise known as "The Harvard Classics", which with more elementary after work studies formed the educational background from which life is viewed; the Sunday School Party at the First Presbyterian Church at which he met his future wife; the long, highly competitive but successful courtship and the lovely wedding; a chartered railroad train trip to a Triennial Conclave of the Grand Encampment of Knights Templar at Seattle, Washington, which occurred while he was Grand Commander of Ga. With wife, a year old son, three other children, Lizzie Martin as nurse, his mother-in-law and sister-in-law, together with a hundred friends, the Grand Tour of the West was made without unhappy events; the attaining of degrees from reputable Colleges by all four of his children; the happy marriages of all of his children and the grandchildren which have come; successful Surgery by the Mayo Clinic Surgeons at Rochester, Minn. (1951); the delayed Honey Moon journey, of three months in Britain and the Continent (1952); the gathering, compiling and publishing of the Genealogical and Anecdotal data to be found here-in.

Writing for the "Proceedings" of the Grand Commandery of Knights Templar of the State of Georgia at the 65th annual conclave, held in Savannah, Ga., May 19 and 20, 1926, A. D., 808 A. O., Charles S. Wood, the Grand Recorder, said in part; "We now call him Past Grand Commander Blackshear, and he says he is delighted to be so designated. It is an honor accorded to few, for few there are who can bear the honor. If it were possible to distribute this distinctive mark to many, then the holding would not be so valuable. It is true that there are some such designations more valuable than others; it depends on the service and time of service. When it is convenient to prefix the "Past Grand" denominative, an explanation might become necessary, the full particulars of which would incorporate measuring the time and the service. This introductory is in accord with the general order of possibilities, and is in keeping with the philosophic reasons for good work and true work. A conscientious contractor never figures on fortuitious conditions, and is the prouder of his success when he knows he worked the full time. But Perry Blackshear is a good worker and believes in taking time for doing it—a very happy combination. We may say, therefore, his honor today has been earned on full time, and having been so earned, he is justified in feeling proud of the Past Grand Commander designation. He values it because he is sensible of the work necessary to attain the distinction. However, this circumstance does not call for an epitaph. Up to this present day, since he began the activities of life, whether in business or fraternal life, he has faithfully shunned that dreadful desert of "sometime", where many wrecks are buried, and many implements of those uncertain minds going just "somewhere" have been left to bleach or rust. Perry works with the iron hand of "now", because he has faith in the enjoined doctrine, "Now is the accepted time". Tomorrow, in his interpretation, is a date on the calendar of the urbane indolents, who yet live in the stoicism of Diogenes, requesting the Alexanders not to shade them from the sun, and like Diogenes too, declaring the wine they specially liked, is that which belongs to another. That wise remark might be considered witty, if it had really been spoken in these days. Now these characteristics are outstanding ones; he is young, the other noble ones will grow as responsibilities accumulate. I am sure that he does not wish the goals of accomplishment placed too far ahead; he desires to keep them in sight as he progresses. . . . On 24 Sept., 1912, he was united in marriage to Miss Dorothy Breitenbucher, of Atlanta, and the children of this happy couple are Dorothea, Elizabeth, Perry Jr., and David, just about as interesting "as the gods of love ere smiled upon". They all accompanied our Grand Commander to the Triennial at Seattle last year. This family are members of the Presbyterian Church. He is a member of the "Old Guard of the Gate City Guards of Atlanta", the Atlanta Athletic Club, the Y. M. C. A. and several commercial associations and clubs, including the Rotary Club; to most of them he gives service on committees or auxiliary boards, and, being an optimist, does things that the pessimists say can't be done." Birlenbach, the Cradle of the Alsatian Breitenbucher Families, is only 10 kilometers from the actual German frontier. Before the French Revolution, the Principality of Deux-Ponts (Zweibruchen-Two Bridges) combined under her domination the territories situated today in the north of Alsace, or the Palatinate of the House of Deux-Ponts which included Birlenbach, Ingleshm, Hunspach, Bremmelbach, Kleeburg, Stein Selt, Oberhoffen-les and Roth. The regions of Landau and Bergzaben belonged to France from 1714 to 1815. Christophe Breitenbucher came originally from Souabe, (Germany), he was a soldier in the Alsace Regiment. Author of "NACA Sonic-Flow-Orifice Temperature Probe in High-Gas-Temperature Measurement" delivered at Semi-Annual Meeting American Society of Mechanical Engineers at Cincinnati, Ohio, 15-19 June, 1952. Excerpts from introduction. "In the field of jet engine research and development there is an ever present desire to know the temperature of a flowing stream of gas—one method of measuring temperature by pneumatic means is to draw a sample of gas through two sonic-flow orifices in series, etc., etc." From the discussion, W. K. Koffel; "The author has done an excellent job of presenting the principle of the sonic-flow-orifice probe and some of its theoretical characteristics and design requirements, etc." K. L. Rieke; "The author is to be commended for his detailed discussion of the design and performance of a practical and useful tool for investigating combustion under extreme conditions of flow and energy transformation, etc." M. D. Scadron;

"The need for a means to measure high gas temperatures accurately in modern aircraft engines cannot be emphasized too greatly, etc." From the closure, "The author is indebted to Messrs. Koffel, Rieke and Scadron for their kind, yet penetrating, discussions, etc." Author of "Driving Standing Waves by Heat Addition" delivered before the 4th Symposium on Combustion at Mass. Institute of Technology 1st to 5th Sept., 1952. From the introduction; "Jet engine burner instabilities bearing such descriptive names as Chugging—Screaming—Buzzing—Squealing, etc., continue to plague the combustor designer, etc." From conclusion; "The one dimensional analysis (derived herewith) seems an adequate explanation of the mechanism whereby a flame drives or damps a standing wave, etc." From comments; Bruce Hicks, Aberdeen Proving Grounds "How can you presume to know what happens in unsteady flow when we have not yet understood the basic mechanism of steady flow?" Reply from author "We are not trying to map the life history of each gas particle in the engine, the way you are trying to do, all we want is to be able to predict when a burner will resonate and learn how to control resonanace. For this, the simple one dimensional theory is adequate."

The following article was published in "The Madisonian" at Madison, Ga., 23 Oct., 1952, under "By the Way" a column by Louise McHenry Hicky; "Geniuses come young, tall, and handsome, today. A Georgia boy, jet planes, and the Blackshear Probe.

Have you ever seen a jet plane in flight? Have you ever seen a shooting star? If you have, then you must surely have felt the wonder of God's hand. And you must have been electrified by the overpowering thought of speed and space, and the science of man.

A few months ago in Omaha, Nebraska, at the huge Air Force base, Offutt Field, the Headquarters of Strategetic Command, we stood watching a wonderful performance, an air show of jet planes in action. From his high stand on the observation and radio post, the announcer proclaimed over loud speaker when one of the jets was due to be coming in. Suddenly there was a rumbling in the distance, as of thunder,—then like a streak of lightning across the sky, some mother's son piloted this wizard of speed over the horizon and into the blue yonder, and out of sight and miles away, in a split second, leaving a slender spiral of white smoke in its wake. We only had a moment to glimpse the silver wings,—so quick was the passage.

It seemed incredible that man had almost conquered time and speed and space. What kind of dare-devils were these pilots of phantom ships? "Oh, just regular fellows," the other pilots told us. Regular fellows, indeed! Oh no, they were birds on the wing, majestic eagles of the air, looking down from lofty heights among the clouds upon us pigmies here below.

But if these daring young pilots aroused our respect and admiration,—what of the scientists who made possible these swift flights of unbelievable speed? We feel a certain awe in the presence of notable scientists. They are so wondrous wise. They explore the unknowable, and probe the heights and depths, heat and cold, and reach into the fourth dimension, and analyze space and time and speed. They are forever discovering and inventing, and bringing knowledge and equipment and new possibilities to the human race. They raise the standard of our living, expand our horizon, quicken our hopes, and tinge our most exotic dreams with gold dust. They make us reach for the stars, and keep us on tiptoe with the wonders they prove possible. They improve, educate and enrich mankind. Small wonder then that we stand in awe of such as they;—in awe of their far reach and vision.

And we must confess that we hardly associate so much wisdom and genius with youth. Surely it would be the hoary haired, the old in years and experience, who could attain high rank and eminence in the world of science and research. But now we must revise our thinking, and change our mental picture; for a Georgia boy, who is young, blond and handsome, standing six feet tall, (tall of stature and tall of vision,) has proved to be one of the outstanding scientists of our very modern era.

Recently the newspapers gave excited accounts of a fleet of jet planes that had crossed the Pacific. A Georgian was partly responsible for that feat. The jet planes, although speed demons, were unable to make such a non-stop flight in safety, until a recent invention. The terrific heat caused by such speed melted down metal, or certain parts of the machinery of the craft, necessitating frequent stops for changes or repairs. (Having no knowledge of the mechanics of planes, nor of scientific terms, our explanation seems very feeble and inadequate.) However, there was a handicap to such non-stop flights over this expanse of water. And then our young scientist, Perry Lynnfield Blackshear, Jr., of Atlanta, who had been doing research work on supersonic speed, in the Laboratory of the National Advisory Committee on Aeronautics, invented a device with which to probe the heat waves. It is named for the inventor, being called the "Blackshear Probe" designed for measuring Jet Flames in action. Now with the use of the Blackshear Probe, the marvelous jet planes can go winging into space, over the water, and to the far reaches of the land, without danger, on non-stop flights.

The extremely youthful and distinguished looking parents of this young scientist, Mr. and Mrs. Perry Blackshear, Sr., were visitors to Madison recently. The proud but modest father spoke with suppressed enthusiasm of his scientist son. But it was the mother, who confided in us that her boy was not the long haired, eccentric genius,—but was tall, blond and handsome.

Well, genuises as well as parents, come young these days. And now a son of Georgia puts our state on the map with a notable achievement in the realm of science. And Georgia is proud of her son,—proud to claim this genius, who has given to the world another device in helping to conquer distance, and measure heat, and promote safety and progress in the field of aeronautics.

in the name of Blackshaw or Blackshear there is an interesting entry in the Registers at St. Wilfred's Church, Mobberly, England, which should be made known. This Randall joined the Society of Friends while still in Cheshire and was subjected to religious persecution therefor, he was arrested at a Peaceable Meeting and Imprisoned two months in the house of correction. This occurred some 12 years before he left England with the followers of Wm. Penn. The entry mentioned is as follows: "This indenture made the 4 and 20th day of March in the 3 and 20th year of the reign of our sovereign Lord Charles the 2nd, by the Grace of God of England, Scotland, France and Ireland King. "My father was b. in Montgomery, Ala. Moved to Texas and had his plantation and many slaves on the Trinity River about 10 miles from Palestine, Anderson Co. My mother was a sister of Nehemiah St. John, Judge of the Supreme Court of N. Y. State. She was a graduate of Emma Willard College in literature and music when she was 18 years old. The Judson Institute of Marion, Ala., wrote to Emma Willard to send them a music teacher capable of taking over their Music Department, they sent my mother. My father's sister (Martha) Ellen Vanderveer attended my mother's first concert in Marion, she was so drawn by skill and great beauty that she invited my mother to come and live with them as their dau. She accepted, within a few months Mrs. V. wrote to my father to come for a long visit, that she had a wife for him, he accepted and soon fell in love with my mother. In a few months they were married and went to his plantation on the Trinity River where he developed lung trouble and on his Doctor's advice moved to the Gulf Coast Country, built a house at Sweet Home in Lavaco Co., near Hallettsville, Texas. Quoting from a letter from Lela B. Jameson, "My father, Reuben Anderson Blackshear, went to Tulane University Medical School, became ill, his mother took him to Old Mexico for two years to recover his health. He practiced Medicine in Carson Co., Panhandle, Texas, and in Amarillo. People dearly loved him. He never lost an infant or a mother in over 200 childbirths in Carson Co. He went to school to his stepfather, Rev. Hiram Glass, a very highly educated Methodist Minister who early had a College at Huntsville, Texas. Father and my husband, E. R. Jameson, blocked the first block assembled in the Panhandle of Texas, some thought he was insane to say there was oil or gas there. He was known as one of the finest Pharmacists and Physicians in all of the Southwestern part of the United States. My mother was taught by private Governess who lived in their home until Yellow Fever took the two other sisters. She then attended day school at the Sisters of the Sacred Heart Convent in Corsicana, then to Texas University during its first years when Mrs. Kirby was Matron. Their mother's mother died and their father, John Collins, brought the 3 little girls to Texas. General Sam Houston gave him land grants in 1840. So she was a lost heir of her mother's people in Tennessee. Her Uncle Coleman Garrett went to the Holy Land and brought back the 32nd degree in Masonry. All of her people were strong in the Masonic Orders. Grandmother was a Charter member of the Eastern Star in Bryan, Texas, and in Amarillo, but my mother took only the Good Samaritan degree. She was a very quiet, gentle, generous hearted, patient wonderful person, preferring her home to all others. She was a great reader and did beautiful sewing."

Sermon Subject: The Love of God
March 14, 1954

(Conclusion): Let me suggest briefly two or three of what I call "eternal truths" to which I anchor my own living. First, I accept as truth that God is good. Anything that does not square with that, is out, as far as I am concerned. Next, I am sure that God is wise, far wiser than I am. I do not, then, pit my knowledge of life or of goodness against His. Third, I accept the Master's word that God is my Father, and that He wants me to become His child. That is life's only really important goal. Nothing else matters much. Fourth, and finally, because God is my Father, and is good and wise, I believe He is good enough to want to give me His love, and He is wise enough to know what is best. Whatever, then, comes to me in life must be fitted into that pattern. I can then be sure that I am being guided by my Father, and guided in the way that is best. If I live with Him day after day, I shall eventually grow into His likeness. By my effort to love as he loves, I shall some day learn to be at home with Him in what I seek in this life, so I shall desire to live with Him in the long stretch of eternity, hereafter. It is not easy for us to learn to desire God, that is, desire Him as He is, for He is Love and we are not. But if I press on I believe that some day I shall learn, and will at last win Life. That gift of Life is the true measure of God's Love. It is ours for living, even today, in all the relations and needs of our day, if we only dare believe and then live our faith.

Sermon in Brief, for Sunday, March 21, 1954.
Written for publication in local paper, The Peekskill Evening Star.

Title: A New Way for a New Life

Text: "Once you were darkened, but now you are light in the Lord; walk as children of light and try to learn what is pleasing to the Lord." Ephesians 5:8.

The very heart of the Christian faith is that a new life has been made possible in Jesus of Nazareth.

But a new life requires a new way of living. That means new standards of goodness, new measures for truth, and new ideals of service to one's fellow man, all after the example of Christ.

Such a life is possible only as it is lived. We do not learn to appreciate music, let us say, until we cultivate an understanding or response to it. We can want to be like Christ, even intend to be like Him, but until we practice in each day's living, the truth we see in Him, we are deceiving ourselves. Indeed, we are like a man who maps out a wonderful trip, and then puts his map away, telling himself he has actually made the journey. A new life requires a new way of living, each day, in every relation, and toward all people. Only thus do we become followers of the Nazarene.

Josephine (Josie) Countryman in Sumter Co. IN MEMORIUM "On the Sabbath Morning of 11 March, 1923, God in his infinite wisdom saw fit to remove from our little band Sister Roxie Beacham. In 1867 she joined REHOBOTH (Baptist) Church and remained a faithful and consistent member until her death. She was greatly beloved by many relatives and friends, was always glad to assist in any good work. We remember her beautiful service in arranging flowers in her Church. She was 80 years old at her passing away, but she still loved her church work. We shall miss her because we loved her and appreciated her life and services. Therefore be it resolved; First, that while we bow in submission to Divine Will, we feel that in the departure of our sister our Church has lost a loyal member. Second, that we extend to the bereaved family our heartfelt sympathy and commend them to the tender care of Him who doeth all things well. Third, that a copy of these resolutions be inscribed on the page dedicated by the Church to her memory and a copy be sent to the family of Mrs. Beacham." Signed J. H. Myers. Mrs. J. H. Myers. Member of Methodist Church.

DESCRIPTION OF Rufus King Blackshear by his son Charles Howard, written to me (WSB II) in 1915. "He was six feet one inch high, fair complexion, grey eyes, light hair, weight 176 lbs. They lived on the old plantation (Leon Co.—The "New" or "Upper Plantation" was across the river (Trinity) in Anderson Co. Tex.) a few years and then moved to Anderson County on a farm he owned there, where they lived a few years and moved to Palestine, Texas, living in the "brick house" on Rusk St., where he died Dec. 2, 1876. He was a Mason and was buried with Masonic honors. He fought in the Southern War, being enlisted by Capt. A. M. Sayers at San Antonio, Texas, May 23, 1861, Co. A. of the 2nd Texas Cavalry. "Bettie", his wife was born in Tenn. and moved to Palestine, Texas, when a child with her father Col. John Shute Witherspoon, who was born in Williamson Co., Tenn., Sept. 1, 1806 (actually Aug. 30th). She died in Cleburne, Texas, 1901, and was buried by the side of her husband in "The Old Cemetery" Palestine, Texas, Nat. (Nathaniel Witherspoon B. father of WSB) also buried in the old Howard burying plot there. She was a decided brunette, black eyes, five feet five inches tall, weight 132 lbs." (added by her grandson, (WSB) the only grandchild that saw her.) She was small and slim, very erect and a bit prim, I take it. I recall her as ever wearing black taffata with high collar and small white ruff. She wore, what appeared to me as a child, a very funny black bonnet tied under her chin with white lawn strings. Her hands were very beautiful and she was inordinately proud of them. She was very proud, and to many seemed haughty, though very kind to her inferiors. She had a dry sense of humor, very seldom smiled. She read the Bible a great deal and prayed upon her knees frequently. She was a very strict Methodist and never spoke ill of anyone behind their back, though frequently had a sharp tongue to their face. She stood or sat with her hands folded upon her stomach in a rather prim fashion. She loved violets and tried to teach me to appreciate poetry. She loved me very much, would rock me to sleep and never allowed me to be punished when she was about. She herself being very brave taught me that cowardice was the worst of sins. It was said that as a very young Miss she had defied a mob and prevented one of her slaves from being lynched. She hated War, Whisky, and cards, but would go any distance to see a horse race. These I recall most about her. WSB (written when I was 19 yrs. of age).

Now that I am older (1952) I can recall many more important things about her, though perhaps I could not express them any better. I see her qualities in the light of other terms than a 19 yr. old boy could have estimated her characteristics. She was small, yet seemed tall due to her stately carriage and when not close to those taller than she.

It seems that we, as a family, were very poor for a long time, but somehow after my grandfather died and my grandmother took hold of things our finances were much better. He was, so I have heard, a dreamy aesthetic type after the war, given to reading and writing poetry (rhymes perhaps), was too generous, especially to the freed "folks" (no one was ever allowed to call the slaves "slaves", but they were referred to by both my grandparents as "our people". There were always a score or more of these freed folk about the place (even when we lived in a small house) and had to be fed (all this from my Uncles). After Rufus King's death my grandmother purchased a very large white house in town on Magnolia St. Palestine, and there my grandmother "held court". It had two living rooms or parlours connected by wide folding doors and each with white marble fireplace mantels of a Victorian carving. Once one of our distant Cousins (old maid) came to visit from Ala., and finding no tombstone over Rufus King's grave sarcasticly said to my grandmother that she had done better to buy a marble stone for his grave than to be spending the money on fireplaces. I recall distinctly my grandmother's reply: "Lizie, you need not worry. When you die I'll give you the center of both of them".

My grandmother was of the "grand manner". She never treated me as a child, but talked to me as if I were a grown-up. She instructed me in "the family honor" and I recall that there were but two things a Blackshear never was; a coward or a liar. I fear I have failed the clan many times.

She had many friends, but they were of "her own class", and it was always obvious that "her class" were only aristocrats. Her intimates were 4 fine looking old ladies: Mrs. Shambling, Mrs. Lacy, Mrs. Word, and a Mrs. Quarles. These four were deep died Methodists. I recall once when I must not have been more than six or seven years of age that the evangelist Sam Jones came to town with his big tent to hold a revival meeting. These four old ladies attended religiously until one night (my Mother was in the big choir and I by her side) when the Rev. Sam began his address in a splendid manner. He began by praising the old fashion girls who were born in the country as against the girls of the town. Every one seemed to sense that he was laying the predicate to crack a joke—that is, all save these four high-hat grand Dames, who of course were seated together. Then the preacher called for all ladies in the congregation who were country bred to please stand up. These four proudly rose. Sam looked them over as they so proudly stood; then he said: "Sit down. You look like Country Janes". The other three ladies resumed their seats. But not my Grandmother.

If anything, she straightened up a bit more, betook herself right out into the center aisle and deliberately walked in a very dignified manner down to the pulpit stand, made a right angle turn and marched right out of the tent. Even the usually undaunted Sam Jones froze into silence.

My grandmother never again attended a revival meeting. She never said a word against the preacher, for the Methodist discipline forbade it, but whenever his name was mentioned she sat up stiffly in her chair and her thin lips set themselves very tightly. (Incidentally, Mr. Lacy was Mayor of the town, and his wife (the one above referred to) had a Bridge party during his revival, which was the occasion of Sam Jones turning his ire full blast against the Mayor's wife. The next morning after this pulpit assault upon his wife, Mayor Lacy was letting his horse drink from the town square marble horse fountain, he saw Sam Jones coming across the square, he took the buggy whip and met the Rev. Jones mid street and gave his Reverence the horsewhipping of his life, which of course played right into Sam Jones' hand. This was in Palestine, Tex. I understand that my grandmother did not express approval, but I feel that she must have silently thought he got what was coming to him.)

SLBP left Ala. at the age of 4 years. "As a young girl of 16 she fell very much in love with my father, who was a brother of her sister's husband, and, as she was attending boarding school in Opelousas. She used to pick up the mail every Friday and carry it to her father's country home at Plaisance. She said, whenever there was a letter from my father she would spend the entire time going home trying to cipher out what he said through the thin envelopes. On her way to college three years later, she and her brother-in-law stopped to visit his mother and my mother and father became engaged. In later years my father loved to tease her by getting a room full of people, then saying, 'Do you know what answer my wife gave me when I asked her to marry me?' Tribute by his mother, "The dread epidemic of influenza has claimed no nobler victim than Sterling Hamilton Blackshear, whose untimely death has caused sorrow to his many friends north and south and in the west where he resided for a number of years, engaged in work for the Southern Pacific and El Paso and Southwestern Railway system. Many of his boyhood days were spent in Athens, Ga. In 1902 he was graduated from the University of Ga. with A.B. degree in his 21st year. Highly esteemed by Faculty and associates, beloved member and sometimes head of the Chi Phi Fraternity. Tennis Champion, member basketball team, the Sphinx, one of the College Quartettes and was associate editor of the 1902 Pandora. He was the highest type of man, a Christian, who walked uprightly, true and honorable in his dealings and in every relation in life. He was gifted and his generous, self sacrificing nature won for him devoted friends every where he went. At the time of his death he was working for his Country in Washington, D. C., in the auditing office of the construction branch of the Quartermasters department, being physically barred from the Army. He is survived by his wife, his mother, two sisters and three brothers. With bowed heads their faith looks up to Him who has called him higher and who has said—Father, I will that they also whom Thou hast given me be with me where I am." Katherine M. Blackshear. Tribute to his mother by Sterling Blackshear.

"As an Arab dweller in the desert waste
Turns to the mountain in stately grace
Towering above him
And sees reflected from its snowy crest
The glow of the sun just sunk to rest
Beyond the deserts rim
The maddening glare of the burning sands
Is forgot, and with restless breast at peace he stands
Worshipping Allah's handiwork
And so, when a days work is done
And evening falls and the stars one by one
Steal from reluctant shadows,
My mother's spirit comes to me
And her life of love of faith, of purity
Fills my memory
Then the petty cares of the day are gone
And with outstretched arms I pray, as her son
I may bear the trust more worthily."

at the home of James Joseph, "Susina" in Thomas Co., bur. in family cemetery on Susina Plantation. Issue No. 9 Francks died as the result of a fall from his horse on the west banks of the Brazos River, Washington Co., Texas. Cit. Harley Family Records. TEB d. during the memorable Yellow Fever Epidemic which prostrated Navasota, Texas, and the surrounding country. A graphic description of the events is made a part of the story of T. E. B. because he died in the epidemic and because his son tells the story.

EPIDEMIC YELLOW FEVER

In 1867 Navasota, Texas, seemed to be in state of healthy, growth and prosperity, trade was quite large and brisk; numbers of buildings had been erected and many more projected, our population was rapidly increasing and every prospect was pleasing. Early in the summer the physicians encountered many cases of severe fever, some of which proved fatal, showing symptoms of yellow fever, this fatal disease showed itself in some of the Northern seacoast towns, it soon reached Galveston and Houston and in August it showed itself here. In the month of August, 1867, there were 15 deaths, all whites but two, in September, there were 119 deaths, only 14 of whom were colored. The other 105 were whites. Nearly every one of the colored ones were mulattoes. True blacks seldom died. In October, there were 39 deaths of whom 5 were colored, in November, there were only three deaths.

The panic created by the epidemic was equal to any made by an invading army, out of a population of over three thousand, there were only about one thousand two hundred, or one thousand three hundred who remained in the city. Nearly every one of whom had the fever, many who left the city died where they fled to, and scores of the survivors never returned, owing to the dread they had of the fever. It completely revolutionized the city and prostrated it more than the four years war had done. Scores of persons in the country and in the neighboring town who had fully determined to move here to settle were deterred from doing so, and for many months several houses in town were vacant.

all was in the most utter confusion, every carriage, wagon, or conveyance of any kind was brought into use to haul away people and their effects. The weather was rainy and many were killed by the exposure.

The alarm spread in the country and the country people dreaded to hold entercourse with the refugees. Navasota was like a city in the state of seige. The cars continued to run, but so many merchants had fled that provisions soon became scarce and dear, scarcely anything could be procured from the country, and soon all kinds of eatables ran up to fabulous prices, and the same spirit of speculation prevailed that had existed during the war. Nurses were hard to be procured and they charged very high for their services—$5.00 a day and $10.00 a night was demanded, and sometimes paid, but the most of those persons who had remained in town were poor, so they were unable to pay. Ignorant nurses caused many deaths.

R. H. Giesel took a very active part in helping the sick and convalescent and in burying the dead. He assumed the duties of Mayor as far as he could, and his memory should be cherished by us for his self-sacrifice and his prompt and constant effort to help the sick and suffering. Day and night during the entire three months of woe, he seemed to be everywhere. Sometimes he went to the country to minister to the sick. He died, 3rd of January, 1872, aged 39 years. In justice to him, the people should rear a monument over his grave.

Page 504 "Memorial Record of Ala." Vol. 2—Uriah Blacksher, Lumber Manufacturer and Exporter, at Mobile, was born in Escambia Co., Ala., March 19, 1848, and was there reared on a farm until 19 years of age, when he engaged in the timber business felling and sawing at intervals in connection with farming until the outbreak of the Civil War, from which time until its close he devoted his time to his farming interests. Peace being restored, he gradually merged his agricultural pursuits with those pertaining to the manufacture of lumber for exportation and for domestic use, building a number of mills and giving employment to many hands. In 1889 he moved to Baldwin Co., where he purchased large tracts of land, and located in the upper part of the county, near Montgomery Hill, where he secured the establishment of a Post Office, which was named after himself. Here he erected a large sawmill and store, stocking the latter with a well selected assortment of merchandise, and began the manufacture of all grades of merchantable lumber on an extensive scale. His business soon assumed proportions so extensive that he found it to be advisable to form a copartnership with Messrs. Peter E. and John McGowan. In August, 1892 he decided to locate in Mobile, where he purchased a comfortable home on Government Street, to which he added many improvements. He also bought and rebuilt the mill at Magazine Point, three miles above the city, with a sawing capacity of 50,000 feet of lumber per day, and is now manufacturing at the mill large quantities of clear stock lumber for export and for northern trade, employing about 50 operatives in addition to those employed at his mills in Baldwin.

Uriah B. was a Mason, an active member of Gulf Lumber Assn. Owns 26,000 acres of land in Escambia and Baldwin Counties and is one of the busiest and most enterprising men of the state. He has done much toward the upbuilding of church and school, in politics he was an ardent Democrat.

(Nov. 23, 1858-Aug. 27, 1945)

"MY HISTORY FROM BOYHOOD"

While I was beginning my 10th year of age, in Nov. 23rd, 1868, my mother married a M. E. Minister, and school teacher, Rev. Hiram M. Glass. Between that date and 1873 (when we had no free schools) they had Colleges in Fairfield, Butler, Owensville, and Bremond, Texas, which I attended. At 10 yrs. of age I studied Bullion's Latin Reader, and "Towns Analysis of the English Language", which I think layed the foundation of what education I have, and which I advise all youths to study.

In my 16th year I went to work in a drug store for $6.25 a month and my board. I burned oil at midnight in the laboratory as I made Tinctures, Syrups, Elixirs, powders and mashes.

In my 19th year I opened my own drug store on about $500.00 capital. I bought on credit and remitted weekly, keeping up my credit with wholesalers.

At 23 I sold to my only competitor and took the road selling drugs.

In my 28th year I opened a wholesale business in Waco of Drugs, Sundries, Fancy goods, Queen's ware, glass ware, tin ware, stationery and goods that paid a big profit. I began this with one drummer and by 1896 I had 4 to 5 on the road, and selling about one hundred thousand a year. Terms were from "Cotton to Cotton" or from Spring to Fall. The Country was prosperous, everybody busy, and livestock at a good price, and real estate valuable. These were "High Tariff" (days) and American factories were protected against alien slave labor made goods.

But we Democrats stood out for "Tariff for revenue only" elected Pres. Grover C. Cleveland, a Senate and Congress got our "Low Tariff" and broke about everyone in America. Where we paid $2.50 a day wages, Europe paid 25 to 50c. People who live in good houses, have carpets, good furniture and eat meat daily, cannot compete with European slavery wages, and workmen that only get a soup bone once a week. "Yes Sir Boss: We done tried dat."

From 1892 to 1895 we had our "Coxey's Armies" marching over our highways, hungry and begging. But in 1896 we elected Pres. Wm. McKinley, Senate and House. "Protective Tariffs" were rstored, and you have not heard of "low tariff" since.

Being born a Southern Democrat, I voted for Cleveland, but in 1896 I made speeches for Republican McKinley; "Experience is our best teacher". "Those who dance must pay the fiddler." Wm. Jennings Bryan came on the scene in 1896 made "The Speech at our Democratic Convention in St. Louis in which he said: "You cannot press the crown of golden thorns on my brow". This so pleased the Convention that they almost went crazy, yelling, and toting him on their shoulders as though he was a God.

He threw aside the laws of "supply and demand" and then and there fixed the ratio of silver and gold at "16 to One", i.e. to say 16 ounces of silver is equal to one ounce of gold.

With mountains of silver the world over, and gold dust hard to find, it is strange that sane, sober people accepted his slogan, nominated him for President, and I believe the entire South voted for him.

You say "they were crazy". What does crazy mean? Of course his slogan was crazy, but what have you to say for our American laws and government, when for the sake of raising revenue, it sells licenses to men to manufacture and sell intoxicating beverages? They know they contain alcohol that kills life in human, animal and all vegetable kingdoms. "To preserve a dead body, put it in alcohol. To kill a live body, put alcohol in it". In short it is just as sensible to create unsanitary and disease producing cess-pools, and then build hospitals all around them to house the sick they make, and employ physicians and nurses to care for them.

We know that alcoholic beverages enter the blood stream, cooks the brains, hardens the liver, diseases the kidneys, destroys the healthy tissues, and causes death. Are we not "plum crazy" when we license its sale as a beverage? I was born sober, and have kept my body clean, and I have never taken a drink of any intoxicating beverage. I have always advocated soberness, education, Christianity, S.S., and Churches. My father was a devout Baptist, my mother was raised an Episcopalian where I attended my first S.S. at Huntsville at about six yrs. of age. My father died in old Springfield, Limestone Co., in 1864. In April, 1865, the war between the Federal and the Southern Confederacy ended.

President Lincoln read his proclamation of "Freedom". I have a list giving ages and names of Blackshear slaves, of 97 all told. I remember standing beside my mother when she called all of our negroes up to our back porch and read Lincoln's proclamation of Freedom to them, telling them that she no longer owned them and they now had as much freedom as she had, and she would no longer furnish them houses to live in, live stock and farming implements to use or issue them rations of clothing or food, and they must support themselves.

You have heard of the wailing and gnashing of teeth, I saw it enacted there. They cried out: "Miss Lizzie, we are (as) free as we wants to be", while the tears ran down their cheeks. "Let us stay here with you just like we are". It was a weeping family affair, they loved us and we loved them. Mamma said: "I must go to work and support my 5 little ones (Ellen, Willie, Mattie, Bettie and Reuben).

We loaded household goods on several wagons pulled by 4 mules each, and moved to Huntsville, where Mamma taught music (at) the old "Andrew Female M. E. College", Dr. Rufus L. Heflin being its president, and girls from Galveston, Houston, and East Texas were being educated. At this time Austin College, where only men and boys went to school, occupied the hill on the other side of town, where it now is, and Dr. McKinney was its president.

Huntsville was the "Athens" of Texas. It was there that men like H. H. Boone, Joab H. Banton, James Baker, Tom Ball, and many scores of our best lawyers, doctors and prominent business men and educators sat at the feet of "Gamalial". Huntsville was the nursery and cultural City of Texas.

We had no "free schools", and private schools like Prof.

Woodall's and Dr. Caw's were all over Texas. We had no free schools prior to 1873 and I never attended one.

Our reconstruction days begun when the Southern Confederacy after four years of war laid down her arms and Gen. Robt. E. Lee surrendered to Gen. U. S. Grant at Appomattox. The South had enlisted all its manpower, even to 15 year old boys, while the North had millions to call upon, Southern States had exhausted its strength, humanly, financially, productively and its soldiers were eating parched corn and chewing boot straps. Federal military moved in on us, enacted martial laws, armies camped in our Court House yards, and begun to fleece ignorant ex-slaves, telling them that they could marry white women, eat and sleep in our best hotels if they would join the "Loyal League" clubs and pay weekly dues, promised to have the U. S. Government give each voter "40 acres and a mule". These "Carpet Baggers" were not our good honorable Northern men, but were camp followers bent on enriching themselves by milking poor ignorant negroes dry, and leaving them to starve while waiting for a gift of "40 acres and a mule".

The older gray-headed negroes gave no credence to such talk and promises, as they knew old Marster and Missus were their best friends, and these Yankees were only feathering their own nests.

What must be done? Crops must be grown and production of food continued. It was settled by the landlords furnishing houses, farms, implements, work stock, and letting negroes milk their cows free, stood good for their store accounts, and the landlord get one-third of grain crops and one-fourth of the cotton. This was the beginning of what we call "The Third and Fourth" of crops. It is still our custom. But younger ignorant negroes who lived on our farms were lazy and indolent and let the grass and weeds "take" their crops.

We could not punish them, since these "Loyal League" Yankees would fine us heavily or put us in prison if we struck these lazy negroes. Anything done to make them work and grow crops must be done at night. Thus came into existence "Night Riders" and masked and white robed "Ku Klux Klan". Negroes believe in ghosts and are afraid of them.

Klansmen rode in numbers of 8 or 10, and in the night would ride up to negro cabins (one behind another) and ask for a drink of water, the negroes would draw water at the wells, bring a bucket and a gourd dipper, which all of us used then, and hand up a dipper of water, but the klansman would ask for the bucket, lift it up to a funnel under his mask and pour it in, where it was stuck in a rubber hose that (the) horseman behind him held, and drink ostensibly many buckets of water. Then demand of the negro that he must work his crop or they would return and give him 39 lashes on his bare back. In this way we forced lazy negroes to make their living. This was in vogue from 1865 to 1874, when we elected Richard Coke as Governor over E. J. Davis, the Republican, who was in favor of the negro.

During E. J. Davis' regime we had a great deal of trouble to suppress negroes in what they called "Risings". Our negress cook used to come and tell us: "Niggers say they gwine rise tonight and kill all the white folks". They did give us lots of trouble.

E. J. Davis appointed negro policemen and furnished them blue coats, brass buttons and blue caps with letters of brass "U. S." in front. They did "rise" once at Butler, where about 200 on horseback, wearing Yankee blue overcoats and caps, marched up and down in the street singing, "We've whipped the rebels out from their land level best, Oh, shout in the battle fight of freedom". This was more than two young merchants (Emmett Mobley and John Gorman) could stand; they took six shooters, ran and grabbed the bridle reins of two of the leading horses, and fired up in the air. These 200 negroes turned their horses and ran. This caused much fear and excitement in Butler, where there were twice as many negroes as white people. It was late in the evening (afternoon) and it was 19 miles to Fairfield, the County Seat. Peter Riley (about 18 years of age) was given a fast horse and sent for the Sheriff. By daylight next morning the Sheriff with a posse of about 20 deputies arrived. In fact, men were coming in from all directions to put down negro insurrections and keep order.

The main leaders of these negroes were well known as saucy trouble-makers. The posse went out and caught some 25 or more but reported that three of the main, mean negroes had gotten away. At any rate they were never around there any more. This put an end to negro "rising" in Freestone County.

But E. J. Davis had put negro policemen in Grovesbeck, the County Seat of Limestone County and they had murdered an innocent auctioneer, (Mr. Applewhite), in Grovesbeck. The negro policeman that shot him also "got away" and was not seen afterwards. Such as this occurred in many places where E. J. Davis had appointed negro policemen. This gives you some idea of what brave law abiding Confederates suffered during "Reconstruction".

Remember the Republican Governor, E. J. Davis, issued an order that white men must make an "Oath of Allegiance" before they could vote. They refused to make that oath and took the question to the U. S. Supreme Court that ruled that it was unconstitutional. Gov. E. J. Davis, however, refused them the ballot. We went to the polls anyway in 1874 and elected Richard Coke of Waco, as Governor. Davis still refused to vacate the chair, claiming the election was unfair. The electors went ahead and Coke took the oath as Governor, Davis still refused to vacate the chair. But about 700 men from over the State brought tents and camped on the Capital lawn demanding that Davis vacate. He wired Pres. U. S. Grant, and got this reply: "It may show the best of valor to vacate the chair". Davis then got out and Richard Coke became Governor. He restored law and order, appointed competent men, and thus Texas has been free from domineering officials since then.

Homes are the citadels of civilization, men will go further and fight harder for their home than anything else. Negroes owning no property took no interest in the country aside from what they could consume. To civilize them the South begun to cut up their large plantations into small farms, build cabins and outhouses, and sell them to negroes on many years time and make them see that they were their friends and wanted to help them. Thus the industrious, law abiding ones begun to buy homes, build churches and school houses for themselves, and take interest with "white folks" and became tax paying, good citizens. From ignorant Africans the South has produced such men as Prof. Carver, who made 300 useful articles out of our humble peanuts, and Booker T. Washington, who has educated thousands of them into valuable citizens and great assets.

The Yankees claimed to be friends of the negro, but since the civil war 1861-1865, what have they done as a whole to help the race? They do not employ them as cooks, waiters and chauffeurs, but hire aliens instead. I lived in New York (City) for 8 or 10 yrs. and always employed negro cooks. Few Northerners do so. To see their plight go up to 135th St. New York (City) where "Father Divine" lives. I do not write these lines in a critical spirit but as historic facts and conditions. Negroes are agriculturists and the South is where they can make more, save more, build their homes and buy cheaper clothes to keep them warm in winter. Up in 135th St. section, where they congregate because of cheap flats you will find thousands sleeping in small rooms, 5 to 10 on mattresses, blankets or (on) bare floors. It was by choice that they drifted North because they thought Republican Yankees were their friends. Down South we give them our 2nd-hand clothing, up North they sell them to the Russian Jews who go up and down residence streets crying: "Cast Offs", buy them and resell them down on the East Side. Tammany buys negro votes, but hires aliens to shovel snow and sweep the streets.

One of our slave boys with whom I played on our plantation was taken to Oberlin, Ohio, by a Yankee Captain who camped near us in 1865, and put him in college and educated (him), came back to Texas, and was President of Prairie View Normal College for 17 years. This was Edward Blackshear. He educated many (of his race) and instilled into their minds right ideas. He told them that they were a "servant class" and to stay in their places, and not forget it. Our best servants were his pupils and are among our best citizens, white or colored.

Having been a slave owner, I give true history as I have lived to see it. In 1865, when the South had lost the war, men who never had worked on farms, came home bankrupt but they did not sit down and weep. They hitched old Beck to the plow and worked beside their former slaves, and made such strides back to competency as surprised the world.

In justice to the Yankees up North (I will say) not all of them wanted to take our negroes from us as was done, but Lincoln yielded to (them)—(the politicians and political necessity).

A hot-headed Southerner fired the first shot at Fort Sumter, forcing Pres. Lincoln to call out the Federal army.

As to negroes' Character—

They do not rob stages or trains and seldom steal as big a thing as a horse or cattle, but look out for your poultry and watermelons when they are around. "Master's nigger, Master's corn" is their slogan. As a class they are good citizens, good cooks, good farmers and servants.

In the foregoing data I have kinder skipped and jumped, and left out many little happenings that may interest some.

I can recall things which I experienced or saw when in my 5th yr. of age. It surprised my mother, after I was grown, to hear me tell about things that occurred. Yes, I used to demand of her to dress me like the flock of little negroes of my age and let me go in my shirt tail of homespun goods, just like my negro-playmates were dressed. The mothers of these black and tan children went to chop cotton and pick it, hence they could not stay in their cabins in the "negro quarter" and cook dinner for them, so we had cabin kitchens built up in the back yard of the "White House" and several cooks got dinner for them. We had as dining table large logs of Sycamore trees brought in, and with sharp axes and adze level them off and 3 or 4 bound together, laid side by side and used as tables. These would be the full length of the room and cooks would bring wooden trays 2 and 3 feet long with greens, beans, squash, tomatoes, potatoes, cabbage and other vegetables, and put them up and down the tables and put sliced pork, ham, chicken, beef, in smaller round wooden trays, and with "corn pones", light bread and big ginger cakes lying all over the table where children could reach them.

I preferred to eat my dinner down in these negro quarters, and my mother and father humored me in my fondness for my black playmates. We each had a tin plate and tin cup, we used no spoons, knives or forks. We simply took the food out of the trays with our hands. Did that not grease your hands? Yes, but when through dinner we simply washed our hands by running our fingers through kinky heads and hair and wiping them on our shirt tails. My, my! But those were happy carefree days.

"Childhood joys are very great,
Swinging on his Mammy's gate
Eating candy 'til his mouth
Is all stuck up from North to South".

"Backward turn backward
Oh time in your flight,
Make me a child again
Just for tonight".

"A bright smile haunts my mind
As the dream is o'er me cast,
But the mill (will) never grind
With the water that has passed".

From Goodspeed's BIOGRAPHICAL AND HISTORICAL MEMOIRS OF NORTHEAST ARKANSAS, 1889-
W. S. Blackshare, of the milling and stave manufacturing firm of W. S. BLACKSHARE & Co., is a native of Tennessee, born in November, 1849, and came to Clay County, Ark., with his father, James Blackshare, when a boy of nine years. Here he grew to manhood on a farm, and in 1878 he was appointed by Gov. Garland to the office of sheriff of the county, and for two years he was county treasurer, having also filled that office for several incumbents. He was deputy sheriff for four years, and is considered one of the leading business men of the county. He is the owner of about 200 acres of land on his home place, which adjoins the town of Boydsville, and has about 1500 acres in the country, and has the best buildings to be found in the county, all erected by himself. The house is a two story frame, 16 X 40, with a one story L fifty feet long and sixteen feet wide, and a porch running the entire length of the L. He also has a very large cistern under cover. He has two large frame barns, one 30 X 40, two stories high, and the other 30 X 50 feet, also two stories high, with out-sheds on the sides. On his farm on the Cache he has built another house on the same plan as his home place, and he is also building a good barn there. He was married to Miss Emily S. Cox, who lived but eighteen months after marriage, and died in 1871, leaving him a son, Arthur Lee, who is attending the home school. For his second wife, Mr. Blackshare married Miss Mary A. Ellis, daughter of Rev. Ira O. Ellis, who came here from Mississippi, where his father, Rev. Reuben Ellis, was an itinerant preacher in the Methodist Church, South. Mrs. Ira O. Ellis is still living in Missouri. To Mr. and Mrs. Blackshare were born these children: Ezra O., Annie (who is dead), Edgar M., Angie, Lena, and Jennie. Mr. Blackshare belongs to the I.O.O.F., and is also a member of the Masonic fraternity, into which order he was initiated about the time he was twenty-one years of age. In his political views he affiliates with the Democratic party. In 1871 he engaged in the mercantile business at Big Creek, with his father, buying out the interest of Judge Royall, paying $500 on time for the goods, and in 1878 removed to Boydsville. This business he continued until January, 1888, having in the meantime several partners; first the firm was J. & W. S. BLACKSHARE, then for eight years, he was in company with his brother, R. B. Blackshare, under the firm title of W. S. BLACKSHARE & CO., and was then with Judge Royall for three years, the firm title continuing the same. In 1888 he disposed of his stock to a A. L. Blackshare, who now conducts the business in the same building. In connection with his seventeen years at merchandising, Mr. Blackshare devoted some of his time to farming, and is at present junior partner of Royall & Blackshare, real estate dealers. He is a pleasant, genial gentlemen, a good conversationalist, and has a host of warm friends. He is a splendid man physically, and although forty years of age does not look a day over thirty.

ABOUT HENRY MOSES BLACKSHEAR
A LITTLE GIRL REMEMBERS
BY
Louise McHenry Hickey—1953

Henry Moses Blackshear was a picturesque figure in the days of the sixties, tall slim, with clear cut features, dark hair and eyes, and classical mould of face that bespoke his poetic nature. Writer, musician, merchant, planter, he had much to give, and much to live for, with a gentle cultured wife of a wealthy and proud family, and three beautiful, small children, yet his life was cut short in his prime, at the age of thirty-three, but not before he had given much, and left much to be remembered.

He was the son of Joseph Blackshear and Elizabeth Paul Blackshear. His mother, before her marriage, was called the most beautiful girl in Twiggs County. His parents were a handsome couple, for the good looks of the Blackshear men is tradition. So Henry Moses Blackshear came justly by his distinguished appearance. A tradition of the Blackshear family also is that the Muses have been generous in their gifts of art to them, and Henry Moses received the golden touch. An old trunk of fan mail was treasured for a number of years by his wife. He was a regular contributor to the Macon Newspaper with his poems that sang like the sparkling waters of the Chattahoochee, and the hills and valleys of Hall, which his contemporary, Sidney Lanier, had immortalized. And he also translated the beauties of nature into the muted notes of his violin.

During the War between the States he was unable to render military service due to an injury of one eye, but he was assigned to a position at home, drafting the soldiers into service. From Macon, Georgia, his native home, he was sent as enrolling officer to Gainesville, Georgia. There he met and married Miss Philoclea Louisa Banks, daughter of the wealthiest and most distinguished man of the county, Dr. Richard Banks, considered by the medical profession as 50 to 100 years ahead of his time in skilled practice and surgery. Patients came from many states to be under his care, and Banks County was named for him.

In the union of Henry Moses Blackshear and Philoclea Louisa Banks, the cultured daughter of a distinguished father, and herself a member of the second graduating class of Wesleyan College, at Macon, there was much congeniality of mentality and spirit. To them four children were born; the first, Arthur, died in infancy. The others were, Zoe, Lucy, and William Emmett Blackshear. But all too soon a malady struck fatally at the gifted young husband. His brown eyes burned in the pallid skin of his romantic face. The doctors diagnosed it as a lung disease, and he was ordered to lead a quiet, restful life in the country. So to the broad acres of one of his wife's outlying farms, (which according to Georgia law at that time, had become his own property) the young couple moved.

In a large, two story house on their plantation they found life restful and healthful. The negroes had been freed, for the war was done, but white servants from the mountain areas could be procured, and three servants attended them in their home. It was here that Zoe, the eldest child, aged four, a beautiful, golden haired child, with large, expressive brown eyes, had the first impression, and has treasured her first memories of her beloved father, who died in her fourth year. The little daughter inherited all the sentiment of a poetic nature that felt a kindred spirit with her father.

This child, now a great grandmother, Mrs. John Grieve McHenry, of Madison, Georgia, discusses her memories of those days in the big house on the plantation. She distinctly remembers the delicate, blue china cup, always at hand, that held honey and brandy, the doctor's prescription for her father. She remembers the early autumn weather, when the brilliant foliage and the wistful Indian summer days were at hand, how she would watch and wait for the return of her beloved father from town. At dusk, just before the evening meal, when the last fireflies of summer were dotting the gloaming, and the first fires of autumn were crackling on the hearth, and the lights in the windows were coming up, she would listen for the sound of a horse's hoofs. Then she would run with outstretched arms, and her golden hair blowing in the breeze, to meet her father. He would alight from his fine saddle horse, and leading it by the bridle, and holding her warm little hand in his, they would walk together up the long lane to the big house, where the aroma of the cozy evening meal in preparation was wafted on the air.

In the pressure of his protecting hand the little girl felt all safe and secure, not knowing that this security was soon to end, and that the dark angel would be coming to meet him in the dusk of one day close by. But she could never, never forget those walks with him, nor the times in the comfortable plantation home, when the evening meal was over, how he would pace up and down the floor, with his violin under his chin, while the mellow notes softly filled the room, and her heart as well. She remembered too, the eager faces of the white servants, peeping in the doorway, listening to the master play. They had their favorite numbers, and listened for them, as the tall, young man, lost in the melody of his music, (and perhaps in his own brooding thoughts of his approaching departure) played on, and played straight into the heart of his poetic little girl. Like father, like daughter, for she loved all the things that were dear to him.

And then when the house was still, and the big, white moon rose over the pine trees, and the wind rustled softly among the needles, and the whip o' wills and the hoot owls broke the silence of the night, and the crickets and the bull frogs down on the creek, joined in the nocturnal chorus, she would snuggle her golden head deep down into her pillow, and know that all was well within, because her tall, kind father was near. Those plaintive calls of "Chuck Will's Widow", and "Bob White," "Bob White", ringing through the plantation forests, were lonesome and weird sounds that echo down the years still when she thinks of the days long ago. And perhaps the young and handsome poet father lay awake, listening too, and pondering over the thought that he must soon leave his little family. Yet he never let this melancholy invade their lives.

But one day his music was silenced. The violin and bow lay mute and unused, and no longer melodious notes floated through the house. The little girl remembered a sad and weeping mother, and the awed reverence of the servants who had loved the master and his music.

Then the whole pattern of the little daughter's life changed.

The plantation house was closed, and the widow and her three small children moved back to Gainesville proper, where a house was built for them next door to her girlhood colonial mansion type home, the home of her mother, now also a widow, Mrs. Richard Banks. The grandmother Banks was a stern, Duchess type woman, who could never unbend, nor understand the thoughts of a little girl, and Zoe's grief stricken, patient mother was her only source of solace.

But as time passed on, Zoe's loneliness for her father became more and more intense. She could never forget his kindly face, and her hand in his. She could never forget the muted notes of his violin, and all the things that had meant so much to her. Every child, for a normal way of life, needs both parents, and when she saw other children with their fathers, a great longing welled up in her, for she and her father had been kindred spirits. She grew up knowing little about his family, as they were Macon and South Georgia people. Her mother's people, the proud Banks family, were there about her, from the stern Duchess grandmother to the austere banker uncles, and grown-ups who could not reach down and take her hand as her father used to do. She yearned to know more about the Blackshears.

Henry Moses Blackshear was buried in Gainesville in the Methodist church yard cemetery, and his grave was near the church yard fence. Zoe, as she went to school, would pass the spot. She would gather the prettiest rosebuds, and the loveliest posies, and kissing the petals open, she would shyly toss them over the cemetery fence onto his grave. Such an indelible impression her father had made upon his little daughter that she always felt his absence, and missed him through the years. In her seventeenth year, when she had blossomed into a recognized beauty and belle, Zoe was invited to visit her Blackshear relatives in Macon. The visit was a highlight in her life, and she will always remember her happiness at being in the home of her father's brother, the eminent Dr. Emmett Blackshear, considered one of the most outstanding citizens, and the handsomest and most immaculately groomed man in the city. There she met and loved her new found cousins, for all of her father's kin held a kind of enchanted charm for her, and a very special place in her heart, as they seemed a part of him.

The children of Henry Moses Blackshear are, Emmett William Blackshear of Gainesville, now deceased, Mrs. N. A. Collins (Lucy), of Atlanta, and Mrs. John Grieve McHenry, (Zoe), who lives in Madison, Georgia, with her two widowed daughters, Mrs. John Winn Shinholser, and Mrs. Daniel Hicky, in the McHenry ancestral home, which has been occupied by seven generations of this family. Zoe is a lovely and distinguished great grandmother, remarkably young in appearance and spirit still. And the love of all Blackshears, her father's people, is a living flame in her heart,—so vivid to her is the memory of her beloved and handsome, poet, musician father, whom she lost as a little girl.

Dear Cousin: I can't believe that my history can add much to your story but such as it is, her 'tis. Began career in Social Work in 1927 with United Charities in Dallas. Became Exec. Secy. of United Charities in Texarkana, Ark-Tex., in 1929. Reorganized the Pulaski Co. (Little Rock) Ark. relief agency under Federal Emergency Relief Adm. Then to Florida to work in the Federal Transient Bureau, heading up the Miami Bureau until 1934 when returned to Austin, Texas, as Assistant Social Service Director for the State Relief Agency, Texas Relief Commission. Later became Director and when that agency merged with Old Age Assistance to form the present State Dept. of Welfare, headed the Social Service for two years. In 1941 became Welfare Consultant for the Ford Stamp Plan of the U. S. Dept. of Agriculture, traveling in all the Southern States. Left that job to work as Director of Home Service of Dallas Co., American Red Cross. Retired Sept. 15, 1952, to enjoy the little home my son built for me in his yard and my three grandsons who are 11, 6, and 4. My son is a successful radio and TV performer, specializing in Hillbilly programs. He is also a "recording artist" with Columbia Records.

In answer to your questions regarding my father's interests, he was once president of International Interdenominational S. S. Movement but I was a child and don't remember what years nor for how long. If Dr. Raines reported it he got the information from my father during the winter we spent in Atlanta in 1906.

I adopted my son in 1919 or 1920 in Kansas City, Mo., and he has been a perfectly satisfactory son.

Sincerely,
Zuleika B. Hicks
