PREFACE.

FAMILY histories are evolved slowly, notably so the Bent genealogy. The writer first became interested in the subject at the centennial of his native town in 1885. In the summer of 1888 the 250th anniversary of the arrival of the first Bent in America and the centenary of the birth of Hyman Bent, were celebrated by the descendants of the latter at the ancestral home in Fitzwilliam, N. H. For this gathering a brief account of Hyman Bent's ancestry was prepared and afterwards printed. This encouraged further research, and in the New-England Historical and Genealogical Register for July, 1894, appeared a short account of the first four generations of Bents in America. Since then many pleasant hours have been spent in the company of old books, manuscripts and memorials of bygone years, in the endeavor

" To summon from the shadowy Past
The forms that once have been."

The principal books containing information of the family are the History of Marlboro', Mass., by Rev. Charles Hudson 1862; the old History of Framingham, Mass., by Rev. William Barry 1847; the new History of Framingham, by Rev. Josiah H. Temple 1887; the History of Rutland, Mass., by Deacon Jonas Reed 1836; the History of Milton, Mass., by Rev. Albert K. Teele 1887; the History of Canton, Mass., by D. T. V. Huntoon 1893; the History of Fitzwilliam, N. H., by Rev. John F. Norton and Joel Whittemore 1888; the History of Paris, Me., by William B. Lapham 1884; the History of Annapolis County, N. S., by W. A. Calnek and Judge A. W. Savary 1897, and of course Savage's Genealogical Dictionary of New England, with which all good genealogical students begin their researches. Many scattered items of interest are to be found in the History of Sudbury, by Alfred S. Hudson 1889, and more about Bent's Fort, Col. William Bent and Gov. Charles Bent is to be found in the History of the Arkansas Valley, Colorado, published by O. L. Baskin & Co. of Chicago, in 1881, the History of Colorado, by Frank Hall, The Old Santa Fé Trail, by Colonel Henry Inman 1897, the Story of New Mexico, by Horatio O. Ladd 1891, and an article by William Waldo of Texas, published by the Missouri Historical Society in 1880. Many other publications have contributed smaller but necessary items to the present volume.

One noticeable family trait that may be dwelt upon profitably is the pioneer spirit that has pervaded a large part of the family — the spirit that has been willing to brave the unknown quantity of the wilderness to make a home, the spirit of independence that is the foundation of the Republic. John Bent, who came from England in 1638, went immediately to one of the frontier towns; his sons followed the advancing frontier, and deeper and deeper still their children and children's children penetrated the outlying portions of New England. Until 1760, however, all of the family, so far as known to the writer, remained in Massachusetts. In that year the proclamation of Gov. Lawrence of Nova Scotia, opening the lands of the unfortunate Acadians, who had been transported from their homes five years previous, seems to have made some impression in New England, and several of the Bent family, including David<sup>s</sup> of Sudbury, Samuel<sup>s</sup>, a native of Milton, and probably Elijah<sup>s</sup> and Peter<sup>t</sup> of Sudbury, moved to Annapolis County, N. S. Four years later Jesse<sup>s</sup> and John<sup>s</sup> of Milton located in Cumberland County, N. S., and in 1772 Joseph<sup>s</sup> Bent, a Plymouth fisherman, transferred his home to the Yarmouth shore. I do not find any of the family among the Royalists who sailed away in such numbers a few years later.

It was not until toward the close of the Revolutionary War that Massachusetts men began to settle in the wooded parts of northern New England. In 1780, Samuel<sup>s</sup> Bent of Sudbury cleared a farm in Fitzwilliam, a comparatively new town in southwestern New Hampshire. About the same time his cousin Stephen<sup>s</sup>, also of Sudbury, moved to Dublin, N. H., not far away; and in 1797, Nathan, a brother of the latter, located farther west, in the same county, at Winchester. After the war, Vermont was rapidly taken up. The first of this family to remove thither was David<sup>s</sup> Bent Jr., formerly of Rutland (Mass.), who located at Mt. Holly, in the heart of the Green Mts., in 1786. In after years three of his brothers followed, Thaddeus to Rutland about 1800, Phineas to Underhill, well to the north, in 1803, and Samuel B. to Middlebury in 1818. Another brother, Darius, went to Montreal about 1808. In 1810 Samuel Bent Jr. left his early New Hampshire home and settled in Stockbridge, Vt. In 1796 Wm.<sup>6</sup> Bent of Middleboro' located in Paris, Me.; in 1800 Isaac<sup>6</sup> Bent of Quincy moved to New Sharon, Me., and nine years later David J.<sup>6</sup> Bent of Sudbury transferred his home to Bangor, Me. Then the children of the early Vermonters began to overflow into northern New York, the first of this family being Peter<sup>6</sup> Bent (in 1801), followed a few years later by three of his brothers.

Meanwhile, two longer migrations had taken place, Lemuel<sup>6</sup> Bent of Canton, Mass., to Virginia, sometime before 1792, and Lieut.-Col. Silas<sup>5</sup> Bent of Rutland, Mass., to Ohio, with the first settlers, in 1789. In 1806 Silas<sup>6</sup> Bent Jr. pushed on from Ohio to St. Louis, only three years after the great territory of Louisiana had come into the hands of the United States. This branch seems to have led the family in the westward course of empire. Two of the latter's sons went to Colorado as early as 1826, and three years later Charles had reached what is now New Mexico, and established his home. About 1824 Horatio G.<sup>7</sup> Bent went to Georgia, thence to Alabama, and finally to Louisiana. Edward<sup>7</sup> Bent of Missouri was one of the earliest permanent settlers of California, and so they have spread until members of the family are or have been located in nearly every State in the Union. The list is far from being exhausted, but to prolong it here might be tiresome.

Henry Van Dyke, in one of the most charming of out-of-door books, says: "Little rivers have small responsibilities. * * * * When you set out to explore one of these minor streams in your canoe you have no intention of epoch-making discoveries, or thrilling and world-famous adventures." "It is not required of every man and woman," he adds, "to be or to do something great; most of us must content ourselves with taking small parts in the chorus." The Bent family is one of the "little rivers" of history. The historian is the canoeist. Will you accompany him in his frail bark?

EXPLANATION.

IN the arrangement of the following records the plan adopted by the New-England Historical and Genealogical Society has been followed in the main. The reader, after looking in the index for a certain name, say Josiah<sup>6</sup> Bent of Milton, finds the page to be, in the example chosen, 105. The italicized names in parenthesis, following his name, show his line of descent from the original American ancestor, John<sup>1</sup>, the little index figures denoting the generation. The numbers in full-faced type against the names of his sons indicate that more is to be found about them under those numbers in the succeeding pages. Thus, Josiah (Jr.) is carried forward in regular order, appearing on page 203. By reversing the method the line can be traced back.

When not specified, the State is Massachusetts, unless it is plainly otherwise.

Many words not absolutely necessary in a sentence are omitted entirely.

Abbreviations : b. for born, m. for married, un. for unmarried, and d. for died.

INTRODUCTION.

"BENT, a plain or common, a field, a moor, so called from those places being frequently covered with bent-grass, the term is very common in early English poetry." Thus says M. A. Lower in his "English Surnames." So the name seems to be a local surname, and the first to take it lived presumably on a plain or moor. It is not inappropriate that a family which has furnished so many sturdy yeomen and pioneers should draw its name from the soil.

Surnames in England, it may be said in passing, did not become hereditary or permanent until the 11th or 12th centuries. They were derived in various ways, from baptismal names, e.g. Allen, Richardson, Adams; from localities, e.g. Bent, Bridge, Wood; from official titles, e.g. Lord, King; from occupations, e.g. Smith, Wright; and from nicknames, e.g. Long, Young, Brown.

Bent-grass is a stiff, wiry growth, little known in America, though one of the early nineteenth-century poets, Joseph Rodman Drake, made good use of it in his delightful imaginative poem, "The Culprit Fay." The fairy was arrayed in a cloak of butterfly wings and an acorn helmet, plumed with thistle down.

" Swift he bestrode his fire-fly steed ;
He bared his blade of bent-grass blue ;
He drove his spurs of cockle-seed,
And away like a glance of thought he flew."

In Scotland is a town of Bentpath, and on a branch of the North British Ry. is a station of Bents, of which the station agent says :

"This Bents is a farm and the station takes its name therefrom. In regard to the origin of the name it does not appear to have any connection with the family of Bent. On the other hand the name seems to have arisen from what was the nature of the ground some forty years ago or more. At that time the whole farm lay open and bare and would be in Scottish style, termed the bent, which means a rising ground covered with a wild wiry grass that grows in tufts and is known as bent-grass. There is a Benthed farm at Croft-head Village, two miles away, and there used to be a Kilbent farm near by. There is another Bents in Midlothian, a Bent Colliery in Lanarkshire, a Bent House in Forfarshire, and on the English Crash in Cumberland is a Whitburn Bents. Bent or Bents it is thus seen is quite a common place name and is evidently derived from the existence of bent-grass growing near."

These places, it ought to be added, are in Southern Scotland—Anglo-Saxon Scotland—not in the Highlands or Celtic Scotland, for the name seems to be of Anglo-Saxon origin. Something similar to it appears as a personal name in most of the nations of Teutonic origin.

The van der Bent family is an old one in Holland.

In Björnstjerne Björnson's story, Synnöve Solbakken, one of the minor characters is Slave Bent. Of this the late Hjalmar Hjorth Boyesen, Professor in Columbia College, wrote: "The name Bent in Synnöve Solbakken is a Christian name, not a surname. It is the Norwegian corruption of Bernt, which is again an abbreviation of Bernhardt. I have never known of its being used as a family name in any of the Scandinavian countries."

In Germany there are several names having a Bent flavoring: Bente, Bentz, Bentmann and Bentheim.

Originally taken from a place, it has not hesitated to give its name in turn to places. In Virginia there is a Bent Mountain post office. The tradition is that many years ago a man by the name of Bent tracked a buffalo from the low lands to the mountain from which the post office is named. Bent County and Bent's Fort, Colorado, are treated at length elsewhere.

The descendants of John Bent, who came to America in 1638, have made their way to nearly every state in the Union, as well as to Nova Scotia, New Brunswick, Newfoundland, Province of Quebec, British Columbia, Cuba, Australia and the Sandwich Islands; and there are still some to be found in Sudbury, Mass., where the family first settled. There are to-day several hundreds of families descended from the emigrant of 1638, the heads of the families being in most cases of the seventh and eighth generations. There are at least three of the sixth and a few of the ninth.

The first of the family to indulge in the luxury of a middle name was Ebenezer Vose<sup>e</sup> Bent, born in Fort Lawrence, Nova Scotia, March 3, 1771.

The oldest member of the family was Patience (Bent) Newton, who died in Southboro', Mass., in 1837, æ. nearly 96. It was originally intended to print a list of octogenarians, but it grew too long. A list of nonogenarians will be found elsewhere, however.

ENGLISH ANTECEDENTS OF AMERICAN BENTS.

IN the western part of the county of Hants, or Hampshire, in the south of England, 22 or 23 miles north of "storied Southampton," and about seventy miles southwest from London, between Salisbury Plain and the South Downs, lies the little hamlet of Penton-Grafton in the parish of Weyhill. It is a small but ancient place, held originally by the Abbey of Greistain and later on by the family of Chaucer, the poet, whose granddaughter gave it to the hospital of Ewelme. Here was the ancestral home of the American Bents.* The same description that Longfellow gave to the earliest cis-Atlantic home of the family, Sudbury, is equally applicable there:

"A region of repose it seems,
A place of slumber and of dreams."

The country is a sort of undulating plain, delightfully green and fertile. Many of the houses, as well as the roadside walls, are covered with a heavy thatch. The little parish church, with its red-tiled roof and ivy-grown walls, in the midst of the country churchyard, is not unlike the one made famous by Gray's Elegy.

The parish records do not begin until the year 1564 (the year Shakspeare was born), and the name of Bent is found on the first page, "Ede Bent filia Joannis bēt baptizata est xvj<sup>o</sup> Septembris 1564." At "venerable Winchester," less than twenty miles away, the capital of Alfred and Canute, where Sir Walter Raleigh was tried and good old Izaak Walton died, are Bent wills dating back to 1519, among them an Edward Bent, 1558; but the first one of the family of whom we have definite knowledge is

John Bent, who died in Penton-Grafton, in 1588, in the 30th year of the reign of Queen Elizabeth, leaving a widow Edith, who died in the summer of 1601. (The wills of both will be found elsewhere.)

* The writer made a pilgrimage to this home of his fathers, July 4, 1891, taking the train from Waterloo Station in London to Andover (66 miles), where a change was made to a local train that carried him two miles further to Weyhill station. A pleasant walk of a mile or more, by green pastures and still waters, found him at the parish church.

Children of John and Edith, born in Penton-Grafton :

- i. EDITH, baptized Sept. 16, 1564.
- ii. ROBERT, " Sept. 29, 1566.
- iii. DAVID, " Oct. 13, 1568; his mother's executor.
- iv. MARIA, " Jan. 13, 1572; d. in Jan. 1591.
- v. JOAN, " Nov. 12, 1574; m. William Noyes, perhaps the Rev. William of Wiltshire, father of Rev. James and Nicholas Noyes, who were among the first settlers of Newbury, Mass.
- vi. RICHARD, baptized Feb. 5, 1577.
- vii. ALICE, " June 7, 1579.
- viii. AGNES, " Feb. 27, 1582; m. a Street.

Robert Bent (son of John Bent preceding), was born in September, 1566, in Penton-Grafton, where he died in July, 1631, a. 64 years and 10 mos. He married, Oct. 13, 1589, Agnes Gosling, who followed her son to America and died in May or June, 1639, on board the ship "Jonathan" just outside Boston Harbor. Her body was brought ashore and buried, presumably in Boston. Her passage cost £17, besides £1 10s. for bringing over her goods and 10s. paid to the ship's surgeon.

Children of Robert and Agnes, born in Penton-Grafton :

- i. MARGERY, bap. March 28, 1590.
- ii. RICHARD, " May 7, 1592.
- iii. JOHN, " Nov. 20, 1596; the original emigrant to America.
- iv. MARIA, " Sept 24, 1598; buried Feb. 2, 1599.
- v. DENNIS, " Dec. 10, 1599; m. May 8, 1626, William Baker, and lived in New Sarum, Wiltshire, Eng.
- vi. AGNES, baptized July 16, 1602; m. in Penton-Grafton, April 11, 1630, Richard Barnes, who died a few years after, leaving two children, Barnes: Richard,* bap. Feb. 20, 1631, and Elizabeth. Agnes m. again, in England, Thomas Blanchard, and April 12, 1639, sailed from London for New England in the ship "Jonathan," with her whole family. Fifteen days out she died, and soon after her infant child died. Blanchard settled in Braintree, but afterwards moved to Charlestown and married again.
- vii. JANE, " ; m. in England, Robert Plimpton, and had five children, Plimpton: Robert, Thomas, William, Jane, Elizabeth. The children Thomas and Elizabeth came to America and lived in Sudbury, Mass.

* Richard Barnes was probably brought up by his uncle John Bent. He was one of the first settlers of Marlboro', Mass., where he d. June 22, 1708, a. 77. He m. Deborah Dix and had six children: Sarah, Deborah, Richard, John, Edward and Abigail, the youngest of whom m. Peter<sup>d</sup> Bent.

THE FAMILY IN AMERICA.

JOHN<sup>1</sup> BENT, first of the name in America, was born in Penton-Grafton, England, in November, 1596 (while Elizabeth was still Queen), came to America in his forty-second year, and settled in Sudbury, Massachusetts, where he remained until his death, Sept. 27, 1672, æ. nearly 76. (His will and inventory will be found elsewhere.) He married in England about 1624, Martha ———, who died in Sudbury, May 15, 1679, well along in years.

The family—John, his wife and five small children—sailed from Southampton in the latter part of April, 1638, in the ship "Confidence" of London, John Jobson, master, the whole number of passengers, "greate and little," being 110 souls. Among them was the ancestor of the poet Whittier, Thomas Whittier, æ. 18, who with others settled in Salisbury, Mass. Nearly eighteen years before the Mayflower sailed on her eventful voyage from the same port. Later in the century, Isaac Watts first saw the light of day there. From Southampton, Richard Cœur-de-Lion sailed with his Crusaders; thither went Henry V. to embark for the field of Agincourt, and there Canute tried to exercise his authority over the waves. So much for the port of departure. The latter part of spring is still a popular time for crossing the Atlantic, but the voyage is a very different thing from what it was then, when they were tossed about in a small wooden vessel from six to eight weeks.

A glance at affairs in England will show ample cause for a change of home at that time. The rule of Charles I. had become almost unbearable, and it is not at all surprising that so many looked upon "the American wilderness as the only asylum in which they could enjoy civil and spiritual freedom." The king, advised in affairs of state by Lord Wentworth (Earl of Strafford) and in religious affairs by William Laud, Archbishop of Canterbury, wished to do for England what Richelieu was at that very time doing for France, "put the estates and the personal liberty of the whole people at the disposal of the crown and deprive the courts of law of all independent authority," as well as to break up all gatherings of religious dissenters. He had already ruled nine years without a Parliament and his despotism seemed nearly complete. But one thing was lacking, and that was a standing army. How to raise taxes for the support of troops became the great question. Though a time of peace and no navy was needed, it was decided to revive an old method of taxation, that of levying ship money upon the maritime counties, for the ostensible purpose of protecting the coast. It will be borne in mind that Hampshire was one of these seacoast shires. It was in the year of this pernicious tax that John Bent left the land of his birth.

Let us see with his eyes if we can. Two pictures are there. First, England, to the outward eye, verdant, calm and peaceful, but in reality on the verge of a political and religious volcano. (The explosion came with the Civil War in 1642.) Six weeks elapses, and the curtain rises on the second scene, a June morning, America, forest clad, vast, unknown, its shadowy recesses holding no one knew what foes. But "hope springs eternal in the human breast" and doubtless the American shore seemed more hospitable than Old England in 1638.

John Bent continued to till the soil in America as he had done in England. His farm was in the part of Sudbury* now the town of Wayland, about sixteen miles directly west of Boston. He was one of the original settlers of the town, which was incorporated in 1639 with fifty-four inhabitants. Although it was the nineteenth town in Massachusetts Bay Colony, and the Sudbury River, the picture of peace, ran through fertile meadows near his new home, it was for some years after its settlement a frontier town. Beyond was the wilderness, stretching unbroken to the Connecticut valley, threaded only by the Indian's narrow trail and known only to the red-man's moccasined foot and unerring eye.

John Bent was made a freeman in 1640; that is, because he had become a member of the church of the Puritans, he was allowed to take part in town affairs. The church was first in those days, and none but members were allowed to vote. His house lot, about six acres, was about a quarter of a mile north of the present R. R. station in Wayland, and the same distance from the river. At the first division of meadow lands, in 1639, he received one acre; at the second, in 1640, fourteen acres; and at the third, the same year, 10½ acres more, besides a gratulation—for some service done—of four acres of meadow and six of upland. In 1655 he received an additional grant. In 1641 he was one of the selectmen and on the committee to assign timber. In 1648, with two others, he was appointed to end small businesses under 20 shillings—a sort of trial justice. In 1648, with two others, he was appointed to lay out a highway from Watertown (the part now Weston) to the Dunster Farm, in the edge of what is now Framingham. This road followed the old Connecticut Path, an ancient Indian trail leading from the seacoast to the Connecticut River. He has been set down as one of Major Simon Willard's troopers that went to Dedham in 1654, but this may have been his son John. In 1656 he was one of the petitioners for the town of Marlboro', but it is not probable that he ever lived there. It was to find a home for his son that prompted him to join the petitioners, for the old document says that they have children grown to man's estate, and they should like to see them settled where they can subsist.

* East Sudbury was incorporated as a separate town in 1780; name changed to Wayland in 1830; both are still essentially farming towns; the population of Sudbury is 1,137 (in 1895) and of Wayland 2,626. During the Revolution, Sudbury was the most populous town in Middlesex County.

Children of John and Martha, i. to v. born in Penton-Grafton, Eng., vi. and vii. in Sudbury, Mass. :

- i. ROBERT, bap. Jan. 10, 1625 ; d. in Newbury, Mass., Jan. 30, 1648, æ. 23.
- ii. WILLIAM, bap. Oct. 24, 1626 ; d. young probably.
2. iii. PETER, bap. April 14, 1629.
3. iv. AGNES, b. about 1631.
4. v. JOHN, bap. Jan. 24, 1636.
5. vi. JOSEPH, b. May 16, 1641.
6. vii. MARTHA, b. about 1643.

PETER<sup>2</sup> BENT (John<sup>1</sup>) was born in Penton-Grafton, England, in April, 1629, and died in England, whither he seems to have gone on business, in May, 1678, æ. 49. He was but nine years old when he accompanied his father to America. At or before the incorporation in 1660 of Marlboro', which was carved out of the wilderness to the west of Sudbury, he had moved thither. He and his father were among the thirteen who petitioned the Colony in 1656 for the laying out of the town. He built a grist mill on Stony Brook, in what is now the town of Southboro', and became a busy man. In 1661 he contracted to build a bridge across the Sudbury River "for horse and man and laden carts to pass over." More than once he went to England, no small undertaking in those days. He had built his house just south of Williams Pond, a mile or more from the present centre of Marlboro'. We commend his good judgment on the selection of a site. Here his little family was growing up when suddenly the Indians, stirred up by the animosities of the Narragansett chief, King Philip, swooped down upon the growing town, one Sunday morning (March 26, 1676), while the good people were at church, applied the fire-brand, and Marlboro' was no more. The November before, a small band of Indians crept up to Bent's mill and scalped his son (probably Zacheus, a lad of nine years) left him for dead — he afterwards recovered — and carried off one of his apprentices, Christopher Muchin.* But Peter's troubles had begun before this, as will be seen from the following extract from the Records of the Governor and Colony of Massachusetts Bay :

Sep. 10, 1653. In ans<sup>r</sup> to the petiçon of Peter Bent for reparaçon of damages sustajned in his horses going on the countrjes service to Conecticott, the Court vnderstanding this petiçoners horse was by that journey worsted of at least sixe pounds in the value of it, besides his charge for the cure and hire of it, they therefore judge meete and order, that he shall be allowed tenn pounds out of the countrje levy, if he accept thereof, or otherwise he may haue libertje to sue the Treasurer, and recouer what damage he cann justly proove.

Two years after Marlboro' was burned by the Indians, Peter died. The inventory of his estate includes "26 acres of y<sup>e</sup> house lott at Marlborough, Milstones and Mil Irons, 25 acres of upland, joyneing to y<sup>e</sup> former house lott" and much other land, the real estate being appraised at £436. The personal estate, amounting to a little more than £40, includes one pair pistols, holsters and three swords.

Peter left a widow Elizabeth (maiden name not ascertained), who was living in Sudbury in 1704, when she deceded to her elder son her widow's third of the Marlboro' property. A year after her husband's death, she petitioned the Governor and Council for aid. (The petition, which is an interesting one, will be found in full elsewhere.)

Children of Peter and Elizabeth, i. to iii. born in Sudbury, the others in Marlboro' :

7. i. PETER,<sup>a</sup> b. Oct. 15, 1653.
  - ii. MARTHA, mentioned in her father's will, and probably the Martha living unmarried in Boston in 1690.
  - iii. ELIZABETH, b. Dec. 2, 1658 ; d. in Sudbury, Feb. 21, 1683.

married, about 1646, Deacon Edward Rice, who was born in Hertfordshire, Eng., in 1618, son of Deacon Edmond Rice (1594-1663), of Sudbury, Mass. He was a petitioner for Marlboro' in 1656, and died there, August 16, 1712, æ. 93. Barry, in his History of Framingham (published 1847), says that the children of Edward Rice were by a second wife, Anne, and this statement has been copied by other historians; but it is erroneous, for John Bent, in will dated in 1672, makes a bequest to his daughter Agnes Rice. The name Agnes in the old records, particularly in the Bent family, is spelled Annis and sometimes abbreviated to Ann. The Rices were both numerous and prominent in Sudbury and Marlboro' and have intermarried with the Bents more than a dozen times.

JOHN<sup>2</sup> BENT (John<sup>1</sup>) was born in Penton-Grafton, England, in Jan., 1636, and died in Framingham, Mass., in Sept. (buried the 15th), 1717, æ. 81. He came to America with his father in 1638, and was brought up in Sudbury, Mass. In 1662, four years after his marriage, he bought land of Henry Rice near the fordway over the Cochituate Brook, on the west side of the old Connecticut Path,* in what is now the town of Framingham, and built one of the first houses on Framingham land. April 16, 1683, he bought sixty acres adjoining. In the Sudbury town records, under date of Oct. 26, 1686, is an "agreement between the town of Sudbury and certain out-dwellers, viz.: Corporal John Bent * * * who are inhabitants bordering upon, but dwelling without the line or bounds of the town." The first petition for the incorporation of the town of Framingham, in 1693, was headed by John Bent. It was not incorporated, however, until 1700. At the second town meeting, March 3, 1701, he was chosen one of the tythingmen, who were men of authority not only on Sunday but throughout the week, and doubtless he performed the delicate duties with dignity and discretion. In his will, dated Feb. 19, 1714-15, "in the first year of our sovereign lord George of England, King," etc., he says that he is "very sick and weake in Body." His property is to be divided equally between his two sons, his daughter having already received her portion.

He married, first, July 1, 1658, Hannah, born June 6, 1640, daughter of John and Anne Stone of Cambridge, and, second, Martha, born August 17, 1657, daughter of Matthew Rice, who was a brother of Edward Rice that married John Bent's sister Agnes. John had no children by his second wife, who survived him.

JOSEPH<sup>2</sup> BENT (John<sup>1</sup>) was born in Sudbury, Mass., May 16, 1641, and was killed accidentally in the summer of 1675 (æ. only 34) by a pistol shot from his brother Peter. He married, at Marshfield, June 30, 1666, Elizabeth, born in 1646, daughter of John and Alice (Besbidge) Bourne,* and probably moved to Marshfield soon after, for, April 28, 1667, "Joseph Bent of Marshfield in y<sup>e</sup> Colony of New Plimouth" sold to Joseph Gleasing thirteen acres of upland in Sudbury, adjoining the common, with houses, barns, etc., also two lots of meadow land. He was a constable in Marshfield in 1669, but moved back to Sudbury before his death, for the inventory of his estate speaks of him as of Sudbury, where his house, barns and lands were valued at £95. The first inventory of his property was taken Aug. 10, 1675, and as he acknowledged a deed June 14, 1675, his death must come between those two dates. Joseph's widow probably returned to her old home in Marshfield, and died soon after. The children were brought up by their maternal grandparents, John Bourne, who died in 1684, and his wife, who died in 1686. At the settlement of the Bourne estate, the "Court doth order that concerning the five orphan children of the Eldest Daughter Elizabeth deceased, It shall be estimated what it is worth

MARTHA<sup>2</sup> BENT (John<sup>1</sup>) was born in Sudbury, Mass., about 1643, and died Aug. 29, 1680; married, June 5, 1663, Samuel How, carpenter, born Oct. 20, 1642, son of John How, one of the first settlers of Sudbury. John afterward moved to Marlboro', where he opened the first public house in the place, but Samuel remained in Sudbury, where he died, April 13, 1713. He married again, Sept. 18, 1685, Mrs. Sarah (Leavitt) Clapp, widow of Nehemiah Clapp of Hingham. David, the youngest son by the first marriage, was the first proprietor of the Red Horse Tavern, the "Wayside Inn" made famous by Longfellow. The old hostelry is in the southwest corner of the town, near the boundaries of both Marlboro' and Framingham, and was probably built about 1702, though some think at an earlier date. The Hows were a race of tavern-keepers. John's grandson, Capt. Daniel Howe (1681-1768), was one of the first settlers of Shrewsbury, where he soon opened a tavern. In Revolutionary days, when Capt. Cyprian Howe and Munning Sawin kept rival inns in Marlboro', there was an old rhyme running like this:

"Uncle Cyp makes the flip
And Munning makes the toddy, O."

Children of Samuel and Martha (Bent) How, born in Sudbury:

- i. JOHN,<sup>2</sup> b. July 24, 1664; lived in Framingham and Hopkinton.
- ii. MARY, b. March 2, 1666; m. 1st, George Farrar, and 2d, Thomas Barnes.

- iv. MARTHA, b. Oct. 9, 1669; m. Thomas Walker.
- v. DANIEL, b. Oct. 9, 1672; d. 1680.
- vi. DAVID, b. Nov. 2, 1674; kept the "Wayside Inn" in Sudbury, until his death, Aug. 3, 1759, when he was succeeded by his youngest son, Ezekiel How (b. April 5, 1720, d. Oct. 15, 1796), during the Revolutionary War colonel of 4th Middlesex Militia. The latter was succeeded by his son Adam How

(b. May 15, 1763 ; d. Dec. 10, 1840), and he in turn by his son "Squire" Lyman Howe (b. Nov. 6, 1801), a bachelor, at whose death, in April, 1861, it passed out of the Howe name. In 1897 it was again re-opened as a place of public entertainment.

PETER<sup>3</sup> BENT (Peter,<sup>2</sup> John<sup>1</sup>) was born in Sudbury, Mass., Oct. 15, 1653, and died March 3, 1717, æ. 63, at Marlboro' (Mass.), where all his life except his early boyhood was spent. He married, Feb. 27, 1705, his second cousin, Abigail, born Oct. 3, 1683, daughter of Richard Barnes (1631-1708) of Marlboro'. She was thirty years younger than her husband, and died in Southboro',* Mass., Feb. 4, 1768, æ. 84.

HOPESTILL<sup>3</sup> BENT (Peter,<sup>2</sup> John<sup>1</sup>) was born in Marlboro', Mass., Jan. 17, 1672, but spent all except his early boyhood in Sudbury, where he died, Aug. 18, 1725, æ. 53, on the original Bent farm in what is now Wayland. In 1710, he kept the Bent Tavern. His real estate transactions were numerous. He saw service in the disastrous Canadian campaign of 1690, when Sir William Phipps and 2000 Massachusetts men tried to take Quebec. This was in King William's War, the first of the French and Indian Wars. In 1767, Peter Bent, in the right of Hopestill Bent, was one of the "Petitioners whose ancestors were in the Expedition to Canada in the year 1690." They asked for a grant of land on account of the "great suffering and Service in the said Expedition." The original petition bore the date of 1737, and in June, 1768, the General Court granted them what is now the town of Bethel, Me. Hopestill's tombstone, still to be seen in Wayland, records that he was an ensign. That he was kind and just in his dealings with the EXPERIENCE<sup>3</sup> BENT (Joseph,<sup>2</sup> John<sup>1</sup>) was born probably in Marshfield, Mass., about 1669, and died in Middleboro', Mass., about 1754, aged 85. He was early left an orphan, and until 1686 was cared for by his maternal grand-parents in Marshfield. In 1690, he was living in Sudbury, the part now Wayland, where he was a house carpenter. Later in life, however, he is always referred to as a yeoman. Oct. 20, 1701, he bought a "small parcell of upland lying and being in y<sup>e</sup> Township of Plimouth, also y<sup>e</sup> Dwelling House that standeth upon said Land, said land lyeth at a Brooke commonly called Wellingsly Brooke on y<sup>e</sup> northerly side of sd Brooke." This homestead he sold Nov. 1, 1708, and moved to the northeasterly part of Middleboro', and in 1712 he added by purchase 100 acres in Plympton adjoining his homestead. In 1736, for £11, he granted permission to Robert Brown, James Shaw, Isaac Nye and Joseph Richards to set up a forge or iron works, "with a good and sufficient Damm," on Whetstone Vineyard Brook, "neare my now dwelling house," which was near where the present town of Carver makes a corner with Middleboro' and Plympton. Though still known as the Bent lot, the pines are rapidly encroaching upon the old farm, and the half-grown-up cellar hole, whose only occupant now is a woodchuck, and a few venerable apple trees, are all there is to show that here for four generations was a human habitation.

Middleboro', which was incorporated in 1669, and at that time joined Plymouth, was the location of an Indian settlement known as Nemasket, and was visited by Miles Standish in 1621, the first military expedition of the Plymouth colonists.

Experience Bent married, in 1703, Abigail, born 1680, daughter of George and Elizabeth Sampson of Duxbury, where her grandfather, Abraham Sampson, settled in 1628.

Children, i. and ii. born probably in Plymouth, iii. and iv. in Middleboro':

- 24. i. JOSEPH,<sup>4</sup> b. about 1704.
- ii. ELIZABETH, b. about 1706; d. Aug. 11, 1743; m. John Griffith of Middleboro'.
- iii. RACHEL, living unm. in Middleboro' in 1769.
- iv. ALICE, m. Barnabas Raymond, b. May 21, 1710, in Middleboro', where they had twelve children.

12

JOSEPH<sup>3</sup> BENT (Joseph,<sup>2</sup> John<sup>1</sup>) was born in Sudbury, Mass., March 5, 1675, and died in Milton, Mass., March 31, 1728, æ. 53. Left an orphan at an early age, he was brought up first in Marshfield, Mass., by his maternal grand-parents, and, after his grand-mother's death in 1686, by his uncle, John Man, who had married his mother's sister, Alice Bourne. Man was instructed by the Court "to three or four years hence put him out to a trade and meantime to instruct him in reading and writing." The trade to which he was apprenticed, presumably at fourteen, and that which he followed through life, was the blacksmith's, which many of his descendants have also followed. An honorable calling surely,

"For, since the birth of time, throughout all ages and nations,
Has the craft of the smith been held in repute by the people," says Longfellow.

John Man lived in Milton, and thus it was that the Bent family came to locate in the town, where, after the lapse of more than two centuries, the name is still to be found. Originally a part of Dorchester and known by the Indian name of Unquity, Milton became a separate town in 1662, so that it was still young when Joseph Bent, a boy in his teens, went thither. Previous to the white man's settlement here in the Neponset valley and on the slopes of the Blue Hills, it had been the home of the Indian tribe whose name has been enshrined in the word Massachusetts. Aside from this, Milton has been a noteworthy town. On Milton Hill, in pre-Revolutionary days, dwelt Gov. Thomas Hutchinson, whose refusal to allow the tea ships to pass out of the harbor in 1773 caused the "Boston Tea Party." Gov. Jonathan Belcher had lived in the town in still earlier days, and on the slope of the Big Blue Hill still resides Roger Wolcott, the honored Governor of the Bay State in 1897, 1898, 1899. Milton has raised a President of Harvard College, Rev. Benjamin Wadsworth, two Revolutionary colonels, John Crane and Joseph Vose, and was the home of Charles Sumner's ancestors. Many distinguished people still find a pleasant home within its bounds, among them Mrs. Adeline D. T. Whitney, the writer, and in the same burial ground, where the little slate stone is to be seen over the grave of Joseph Bent, not only "the rude fore-fathers of the hamlet sleep," but also the remains of the great Wendell Phillips.

Joseph Bent married, Oct. 27, 1698, Rachel, born Dec. 3, 1673, and died July 5, 1725, daughter of Jonathan and Mary Fuller of Dedham, Mass.

PETER<sup>4</sup> BENT (Peter,<sup>3</sup> Peter,<sup>2</sup> John<sup>1</sup>) was born March 20, 1707, in Marlboro' (Mass.), where the whole of his long and honorable life was spent. He died March 11, 1798, æ. 91, and his widow Mary (maiden name not ascertained) died June 3, 1803, æ. 93. They were buried in the old burial ground near the present Fitchburg R. R. station. His tombstone, an unusually large one, recites that he was "a man justly esteemed for his Integrity and Usefulness both in public and private Life." He was a man of great public spirit, and his townsmen elected him to the highest offices in their power. To distinguish him from the other Peter Bents, we might well call him Peter the Great. He was assessor in 1754, 1764-67, 1769-72, 1775, selectman 1750, 1756, 1759, 1766-67, 1770-72, 1774, 1777, representative to the General Court 1771 to 1775, and member of the three Provincial Congresses held in 1774 and 1775. At the second, which convened in Cambridge, Feb. 1, 1775, he was the sole representative of Marlboro', and was appointed by the president, John Hancock, one of a committee of three to examine the returns of the several towns and report upon their stocks of powder, etc. At the third, which assembled in Watertown, May 31, 1775, Gen. Joseph Warren was the presiding officer, and Peter Bent, who was again the sole representative of Marlboro', was on two or three committees. Previous to this, at a meeting (March 29, 1770) of the citizens of Marlboro' "to see whether the town will do anything to strengthen the hands of the merchants in their non-importation agreement," Peter Bent, Hezekiah Maynard and Robert Baker, the committee, submitted a patriotic and spirited report, which was adopted, transmitted to the Boston committee and printed in the Evening Post. At one time, when he was re-elected representative, he was instructed to "pay no acknowledgment to any unconstitutional and new-fangled Counsellors," etc.

In the days of the French and Indian wars (1757) he was in Capt. Abraham Williams's company of militia. In 1770 he was one of the six richest men in town. He bequeathed to his wife £84 in silver at 6/8 per ounce besides the house, furniture, etc., and mentions his lands in Southboro' and Westboro'. The old Bent farm in his day extended for a mile and a half along the road to Northboro'. He raised beef for the market and had a large apple orchard, near which the Indians came every year and camped. This annual visit was continued well into the nineteenth century. About a mile from the homestead, on the farm, is an ancient Indian burial place.

The old farm house is still standing (1899) on the south side of Williams (or Gates) Pond, a mile or more from Marlboro' centre. It is a long, rambling structure, built by successive generations, the oldest part probably dating back more than two centuries.

" Built in the old colonial day
When men lived in a grander way
With ampler hospitality."

Behind it, on the slope toward the pond, which has recently become city property, was until 1897 a gigantic hollow chestnut tree about eight feet in diameter. By the little brook which forms the outlet to the pond, half imbedded in the earth, covered with lichens and surrounded by brush, are two enormous old mill stones, which may have been used by the first Peter Bent. The homestead has been owned by but two families, the Bents, who came in possession of it by original grant about 1660, and the Stevens family that took it when the Marlboro' line of Bents became extinct.

Sept. 14, 1771, d. Sept. 29, 1852, came into possession of the Bent estate when the male line of Bents became extinct, represented the town in the General Court five years (1828-1831, 1833) and was a justice of the peace for twenty years. He m. in 1797, Eunice E. Robinson of Concord, who d. Feb. 20, 1844, æ. 69, and by her had three children: 1. Isaac Temple Stevens, b. Jan. 3, 1798. 2. Ann Bent Stevens, b. Sept. 16, 1799; m. Sept. 10, 1820, Issachar Dickerman. 3. Eunice C. Stevens, b. June 24, 1801; d. unm. May 26, 1836. Isaac Temple Stevens m. Oct. 17, 1817, Catherine Felton, and took the Bent farm. Upon his death, April 16, 1876, it passed into the hands of one of his thirteen children, William Robinson Stevens (b. April 10, 1838), who still lives there (1899) with an unmarried sister, Susanna. Another brother, Levi Lincoln Stevens, lives in Marlboro', and still another, Rev. Daniel Waldo Stevens, b. Jan. 17, 1820, d. Oct. 1, 1891, graduated from Harvard in 1846 and became a Unitarian clergyman. The descendants of Daniel Stevens (1771-1852) have held an annual re-union, usually at the old Bent place, since about 1883.

JOHN<sup>4</sup> BENT (Peter, <sup>3</sup>Peter, <sup>2</sup>John<sup>1</sup>) was born in Marlboro', Mass., Sept. 24, 1708. No record of his marriage or death has been found, but his name appears on land transactions as late as 1784. He was a farmer and lived in Southboro', a town set off from Marlboro' in 1727. He was a sergeant in Capt. Timothy Brigham's company of militia in 1757. Probably his sisters, all of whom were unmarried, lived with him.

PETER<sup>4</sup> BENT (Hopetill, <sup>3</sup>Peter, <sup>2</sup>John<sup>1</sup>) was born May 17, 1703, in Sudbury, where he was still living in 1757. No record of his death found; it is possible that he went to Nova Scotia in 1760 or thereabouts and died soon after. A peculiar interest attaches to him because of the fact that he married, April 18, 1727, Mary, daughter of Rev. Samuel Parris, in whose family the Salem witchcraft delusion began in 1692. The Rev. Samuel, after being invited to leave Salem village in 1697, lived in Newton, Concord, Stow and Dunstable, and finally located in Sudbury, where he died Feb. 27, 1720, æ. 67. His son Samuel was long a deacon in Sudbury. Mary was a daughter by the second wife Dorothy, daughter of Peter Noyes, Jr., of Sudbury.

Children, all born in Sudbury (Wayland) :

- i. MARY,<sup>6</sup> b. June 28, 1727.
- ii. MARTHA, b. March 11, 1729.
- iii. DOROTHY, b. Dec. 31, 1730 ; m. Nov. 9, 1762, Richard Mills.

THOMAS' BENT (Hopestill,<sup>3</sup> Peter,<sup>2</sup> John<sup>1</sup>), farmer, was born in Sudbury, July 29, 1706, and died in Sudbury, July 26, 1775, æ. 69. It is said that upon receipt of the news of the Concord fight he started on horseback for the scene of action, where he received a bullet wound in one of his legs, from the effect of which he soon afterward died. After being wounded, he started back for Sudbury, and while on the road met one of his boys, who, like his three brothers, was hurrying to the front. Instead of asking his son to return, he urged him forward and the boy obeyed. The inventory of his estate includes land in Chesterfield and Holden, several head of horned cattle, twenty sheep and twelve swine. He evidently had a good apple orchard, for forty-three barrels of cider were found.

He married, May 28, 1733, Mary, born March 9, 1718, daughter of Samuel and Abigail (Reed) Stone of Lexington and Sudbury, and a descendant of Deacon Gregory Stone of Cambridge, 1635. She died the same day as her husband, and they were buried beside the remains of his father in the old burial ground in what is now Wayland.

" And now their names, with the moss o'ergrown,
Are veiled from sight on the churchyard stone
That leans away, in a lingering fall,
And owns the power that shall level all
The works that the hand of man hath wrought."

Children, all born in the old part of Sudbury now Wayland :

- i. LUCY,<sup>5</sup> b. Jan. 13, 1736 ; m. July 19, 1755, Nathan Livermore of Weston, and moved to Chesterfield, Mass.

18

ELIJAH<sup>4</sup> BENT (Hopestill,<sup>3</sup> Peter,<sup>2</sup> John<sup>1</sup>) was born in Sudbury, Aug. 15, 1713, and died in Barre, Mass., May 2, 1797, æ. 83. He lived in East Sudbury, now Wayland, but died at his son's home. He is variously called house-wright, yeoman and inn-holder. The inn that he kept was the Pequot House, probably built by him about 1771, and still in existence in Wayland centre. He married Susannah, born in Sudbury, April 24, 1720, and died in Barre, July 3, 1801, daughter of Samuel Stone.

DAVID<sup>4</sup> BENT (David,<sup>3</sup> John,<sup>2</sup> John<sup>1</sup>), blacksmith, was born in Framingham, March 30, 1730; died in Rutland, Mass., Jan. 15, 1798, æ. nearly 68. The year of his marriage, or possibly before, he moved to Rutland, where he was an active and useful citizen. In addition to working at his trade, he had a large farm (160 acres at the time of his death) in the southern part of the town, a portion of it lying in what, in 1765, became the district of Paxton (incorporated as a town in 1775). The inventory of his estate included half of a pew in Rutland meeting-house and two-thirds of a pew in Paxton meeting-house. Rutland, it may be said in passing, is a fine old hill town in the very centre of the state. Jan. 3, 1775, he was chosen one of fifteen men who were to act as a Committee of Inspection to carry out the Acts of Congress. March 13, 1775, a military company was formed and David Bent was chosen captain. This company marched to Cambridge the day after the battle of Lexington and was out six days. From April 6, 1776, until March 13, 1780, when he resigned, he commanded a company in the 7th Worcester County regiment. Marched to Bennington in August, 1777.

Wednesday afternoon, Aug. 15, 1787, a cyclone swept over Rutland, doing much damage. The account in Sidney Perley's "Historic Storms of New England," says: "Seemingly gathering new fury, it continued down the side of a hill, struck a corner of Captain Bent's house and lifted the barn into the air, knocking it to pieces and throwing several large timbers a considerable distance. In the barn were four or five tons of hay, which was wholly lost. A blacksmith shop and part of a shed were entirely carried away, together with nearly two hundred apple trees; and much of the walls and fences was demolished."

The old house in which he lived is still standing, a two-and-a-half story building, east of Turkey Hill Pond, on the road from Rutland to Paxton, near the dividing line, and about  $2\frac{1}{2}$  miles from the centre of either town. The big chimney, the little panes of glass, and the old floors held down by hand-made nails, have only recently (1898) been removed. The barn was divided several years ago and the blacksmith shop and out buildings have long since disappeared. The farm is still considered one of the best in Rutland.

Capt. David Bent married first, April 3, 1751, Lucy, daughter of Peter Moore of Rutland. He married second, Oct. 2, 1783, Martha, born Nov. 21, 1744, died July 9, 1817, daughter of James and Elizabeth Browning of Rutland.

N. H., April 22, 1833, æ. 78. He marched to Concord on the eventful 19th of April, 1775, in Capt. Nathaniel Cudworth's company, and was out on an alarm twenty-six days, from Feb 4, 1776. A Revolutionary marker was placed over his grave by his descendants Sept. 7, 1896. He moved from Sudbury, Mass., to Fitzwilliam, N. H., in 1780, when the town was still young, and cleared a farm about a mile and a half from the Massachusetts line and some six miles south of Mt. Monadnock, the most prominent feature in the landscape. In 1790, he had ninety acres, but in 1805 he bought more land of Isaac Goodnow; the farm is still tilled by his descendants. Fitzwilliam, originally known as Monadnock Number Four, was incorporated in 1773, and is a typical New Hampshire farming town, sturdy, healthy, hilly and rock-ribbed.

Samuel married, Feb. 6, 1777, Molly, born March 7, 1755, died Oct. 8, 1838, æ. 83, daughter of William and Mary (Wheeler) Hunt of Sudbury, and a descendant of William Hunt (1605-1667), one of the earliest settlers of Concord, Mass.

SILAS<sup>6</sup> BENT (Elijah,<sup>4</sup> Hopestill,<sup>3</sup> Peter,<sup>2</sup> John<sup>1</sup>) was born in Sudbury, Mass., April 14, 1744; died in Belpre, Ohio, April 4, 1818, æ. 74. In 1760, from April until December, as a lad of sixteen, he saw service in Capt. Ephraim Jackson's company in Canada in the old French and Indian war. In 1766, or possibly in 1765, soon after his marriage, he moved from his native town to Barre, then called Rutland District, but a year or two later removed to Rutland, a fine old hill town in the very centre of Massachusetts. His farm was in the east part of the town, near the Princeton line. At the Lexington alarm, in 1775, he marched to Cambridge as a private in Capt. Thomas Eustis's company, and was out twelve days. From May to December, 1775, he was ensign in Capt. Adam Wheeler's company, in Col. Ephraim Doolittle's regiment, in service around Boston. Jan. 1, 1776, he was 1st Lieut. in the 4th Continental Infantry, and early in 1781 1st Lieut. in the 6th Continental Infantry, Col. Thomas Nixon. July 1, 1781, he was commissioned Lieut.-Colonel of the 7th Regiment Mass. Militia, and this office he seems to have held until he left Rutland in 1789, when the family set out in an ox-cart for the great North-west Territory, then a wilderness abounding in game of all kinds, now the home of millions of human beings. Death claimed one of the children ere the new home was reached. Early the year before, Gen. Rufus Putnam, also from Rutland, where his old home is yearly visited by hundreds of historical pilgrims, had led the pioneer band that prepared the way for the first settlers, over the mountains and down the Ohio river. In July the first families began to arrive. At the place they named Marietta the first town was started over the remains of another race, the ancient mound builders. Of this settlement, Hon. George F. Hoar said at the time of its centennial in 1888: "The company who came to Marietta with Rufus Putnam, April 7, 1788, came to found, not one state but five, whose institutions they demanded should be settled before they started by an irrevocable compact. * * * * The Indian and the Frenchmen had dwelt here, but could not hold their place. The forty-eight men who went there a hundred years ago founded the first American civil government whose jurisdiction did not touch tide-water." Gen. Putnam and two hundred and eighty more Revolutionary officers had sent some years before a petition to President Washington, asking that they be paid in land rather than in the worthless currency of the times. The result was the formation of the Ohio Company. Col. Bent had one share in the company, and that entitled him to 1173½ acres. His son Silas went ahead and prepared the way, it seems. The family remained in Marietta a few months and then, in 1790, with others, laid the foundation of Belpre (sixteen miles down the Ohio river), where the remainder of his days were spent.

Silas Bent married, June 24, 1765, Mary Carter, born in Sudbury, Mass., March 22, 1747, died in Belpre, Ohio, June 10, 1831, æ. 84, daughter of Jonathan and Susanna Carter.

LEMUEL<sup>6</sup> BENT (Joseph,<sup>4</sup> Joseph,<sup>3</sup> Joseph,<sup>2</sup> John<sup>1</sup>), blacksmith and tavern keeper, was born May 2, 1727, in Milton, where he died Jan. 6, 1774, æ. 46. In 1755, he was a lieutenant under Col. John Winslow at the taking of Fort Beau Séjour (Cumberland) at the beginning of the warfare which ended in the expulsion of the Acadians from Nova Scotia. April 29, 1759, he was authorized to beat his drums for enlistment of soldiers for His Majesty's service in a regiment of foot for a general invasion of Canada. From May, 1759, to January, 1760, he was at Crown Point with his company, and in 1761 at Halifax. In 1770 and 1772, Capt. Bent was selectman. His widow, Milatiah (maiden name not ascertained), died Oct. 20, 1796, æ. 67. She evidently kept the tavern, which was on the Canton turnpike at the corner of what is now Atherton Street, after her husband's death, as shown by the following advertisement that appeared in the Boston Gazette, Feb. 23, 1784: "On Friday next at 2 o'clock will be sold by Public Vendue at the house of the Widow Bent Innholder in Milton, a number of Lots of Woodland Pasture and Orcharding lying in the town of Milton and belonging to his Excellency Gov. Hancock. The above land has been lately surveyed and laid out in convenient Lots for the purchasers and conditions of sale may be known by applying to Russell & Clap." A part of the woodland was on what is now known as Hancock Hill in the Blue Hills.

WILLIAM<sup>6</sup> BENT (Joseph,<sup>4</sup> Joseph,<sup>3</sup> Joseph,<sup>2</sup> John<sup>1</sup>) was born in Milton, Mass., Nov. 13, 1737; died in Canton, Mass., Oct. 17, 1806, æ. nearly 69. He moved about 1763 to the quaint little village of Ponkipog, immortalized by Thomas Bailey Aldrich, who has a summer home there. Aldrich says of it: "After the black bass and wild duck, solitude is the chief staple. * * * The nearest railway station (Heaven be praised!) is two miles distant and the seclusion is without a flaw. Ponkipog has one mail a day; two mails would render the place uninhabitable." Originally an Indian settlement, within the bounds of the town of Dorchester, it became a part of Stoughton in 1726, and was included in the new town of Canton in 1797. Canton was the home in his later years of Gen. Richard Gridley and, in 1801, another Revolutionary hero, Paul Revere, founded there the Revere Copper Works, which are still in active existence.

William Bent became a man of considerable local prominence. In the Canadian invasion of 1759, in the old French and Indian war, he was a sergeant. At the time of the Lexington alarm, he marched with Capt. Asahel Smith's company, but remained only a few days, came back, and recruited a company, at the head of which he marched April 27, to Roxbury, where he was ordered. In October, 1775, he was in the 36th regiment, Continental army. During the war, when not in service, he purchased and delivered supplies to the families of the soldiers. For many years he kept the Eagle Inn, a great resort for old-time gentlemen and Federalists. "During the piping times of peace," says the historian of Canton, "Bent had leisure to devote to town affairs and parish matters."

He attended to the painting of the meeting house and on Sundays took charge of the boys in the gallery. The supply of the pulpit was in his hands and the candidates were well entertained at the old inn. He was one of the committee to prepare the bill for the separation of Canton from Stoughton, and many of the meetings were held there. Here also were held the trials for small offences. He continued to keep the Eagle until his death, when it was taken by his son, William, who ran it until about 1824. The building is still in existence, though reduced in size. Capt. William married, Nov. 24, 1763, Chloe Blackman, born in Canton, Oct. 16, 1740, died in Canton, March 12, 1820, æ. 79, daughter of George and Thankful* (Redman) Blackman, and a descendant of John Blackman of Dorchester, 1640.

Children, all born in what is now Canton :

SAMUEL<sup>6</sup> BENT (Ebenezer,<sup>4</sup> Joseph,<sup>3</sup> Joseph,<sup>2</sup> John<sup>1</sup>) was born in Milton, Mass., March 1, 1739, and died in Granville, N. S., in 1827, æ. 88. The story is that he was apprenticed to a Capt. John Wade of Ipswich(?), Mass., a carriage and chair maker, and, toward the end of his term of service, enlisted in a company, commanded by his master, for the campaign against the French in Canada, and, in that capacity, assisted in the reduction of Quebec by Gen. Wolfe in September, 1759. The family tradition is as follows: Toward the close of the battle on the Plains of Abraham, when victory seemed certain, a call was made for a flag staff. Young Bent volunteered to improvise one from the many tall firs which lined the heights. After it had been set in position it was found that in the hurry of the moment the necessary halyard had not been made fast to the top. After several had tried in vain to climb the flag staff, Bent asked permission to try it and succeeded in reaching the top with the line in his teeth. The flag was attached and the officer in command ordered that the young soldier should have the honor of hoisting the flag of victory. About 1760, or 1761, he and Capt. Wade went to Granville, N. S., among the first to take up the lands made vacant by the expulsion of the Acadians, and here he lived the rest of his life, near the place where the first French settlement in Nova Scotia was made in 1604. He married, in 1764, Rachel Ray.

Children, all born in Granville, N. S. :

- 149. i. SAMUEL,<sup>6</sup> b. June 6, 1765.

69

Hyman Bent was a man of untiring industry, and he had a faculty of turning off work with ease and rapidity that bordered on the marvellous. He worked on the eight hour system, but it was eight hours in the forenoon and eight hours in the afternoon. He was an early riser, usually up at four o'clock in the morning, and in the short days of winter his chores would be all done and he, with his axe, a mile away, like proud Edward at Bannockburn, "waiting for the break of day to glimmer in the east," that he might commence his battle.

To subdue an ordinary New England farm, and support a family from it, required energy, perseverance and heroism. But our hero, with a stubborn farm and a rapidly increasing family, was equal to the task. He was devoted to his family, and he is remembered as very often and very cheerfully sitting down before the old open fire-place with his children after those long days of toil, to sing to them, and with them, some spirited hymns or patriotic songs.

What to others might have been a weary round of toil, to him was cheerful duty. He was

"Pleasant as the air of evening and yet he was firm as the rock of ages, and in his family government was master of the situation. He was always interested in town affairs, making special efforts to attend all town meetings. He believed in having good schools, good roads, and in progress generally, and so he always paid his part of the tax cheerfully. In 1831 and 1832, he was one of the selectmen of the town. Politically and socially his aim was to establish an aristocracy of true principal.
 When it floats among the trees."

In religion, he made few professions, and fewer pretensions. He needed neither, no more than substance needs a shadow. The spirit of the golden rule shone forth from his every-day life. He had a steady love of good and a steady scorn of evil. To "do justly, love mercy, and walk humbly" was his ambition. He did not sigh for grand achievements, but his aim was to do each little duty well. With him each day was a worthy record, and the sum a faithful life.

Hyman Bent and three of his children lived to have their golden weddings remembered, and all of his children that married (ten) celebrated their silver weddings. He married, Aug. 27, 1817, Levinah Johnson Allen, born in Shrewsbury, Mass., July 15, 1797, died in Fitzwilliam, N. H., Nov. 13, 1883, daughter of Rev. Arunah Allen (1767-1853), and a descendant of Walter Allen of Newbury, Mass., 1640.

Children, all born in Fitzwilliam:

76

SILAS<sup>8</sup> BENT (Silas,<sup>8</sup> Elijah,<sup>4</sup> Hopestill,<sup>2</sup> Peter,<sup>2</sup> John<sup>1</sup>), lawyer and judge, was born in Rutland, Mass., May 16, 1768, died in St. Louis, Mo., Nov. 20, 1827, æ. 59. In 1788 or 1789, he went to Marietta, Ohio, to prepare the way for his parents, who were among the earliest permanent settlers of the Northwest Territory; soon after he began the study of law with Philip Dodridge at Wheeling, (West) Virginia. Upon the completion of his studies, he decided to embark in a mercantile career and opened a store in Charleston, in what is now West Virginia. In January, 1802, he was made postmaster of Brooke Court house, Virginia, and in 1803 became a deputy in the office of Rufus Putnam, who was surveyor-general. Feb. 17, 1804, he was commissioned by Gov. Edward Tiffin an associate judge of the Court of Common Pleas for Washington County, in his old home in southern Ohio. In July, 1805, he became deputy surveyor under Jared Mansfield, surveyor-general. In July, 1806, he was appointed by the Secretary of the Treasury, Albert Gallatin, principal deputy surveyor for the great but little known territory of Louisiana, only recently (1803) purchased from Napoleon, and ordered to St. Louis, which he reached Sept. 17, 1806. Aug. 20, 1807, he was appointed by Frederick Bates, secretary and acting governor of Louisiana, "first judge of the Court of Common Pleas and the Court of Quarter Sessions of the Peace for the District of St. Louis." In November, 1808, he was appointed, by Gov. Meriwether Lewis, auditor of public accounts for the district of St. Louis. Nov. 9, 1809, he was made presiding judge of the St. Louis Court of Common Pleas, and on that day signed the first charter for the town of St. Louis. Jan. 5, 1811, Frederick Bates, acting governor, appointed him auditor of public accounts, and in September following, he was commissioned judge of the Court of Common Pleas and Quarter Sessions by Gov. Benjamin Howard. Feb. 21, 1813, President Madison commissioned him judge of the Supreme Court of Missouri Territory, and on Jan. 21, 1817, he was re-commissioned as such by President Monroe, and held the office until it was abolished by the admission of Missouri* into the Union in 1821, when he became clerk of the St. Louis County Court which, in addition to the county business, exercised probate jurisdiction. This office he held until his death six years later. (See "Reminiscences of the Bench and Bar of Missouri," by W. V. N. Bay, St. Louis, 1878.)

It will thus be seen that Judge Bent was a pioneer of two great states, and that almost his entire life was spent in the public service; and the fact that no complaint was ever made against him is good evidence of his ability and integrity. He was not only an able jurist, but a man of varied and extensive information, just such a man as the government needed in the early settlement of the West. He had a fine residence at Carondalet, now South St. Louis.

Silas Bent married Martha Kerr, born June 8, 1778, died Aug. 19, 1833, æ. 55, of Virginia. Her early home was near Winchester.

FRANCIS<sup>6</sup> BENT (John,<sup>5</sup> Joseph,<sup>4</sup> Experience,<sup>3</sup> Joseph,<sup>2</sup> John<sup>1</sup>), blacksmith, was born in Middleboro', Mass., March 10, 1754; moved to Wareham (Mass.), where he died, Oct. 27, 1828, æ. 74. He was a ficer in Capt. Joshua Benson's company around Boston from May to Dec., 1775, and tradition adds that at the battle of Bunker Hill he was detailed to repair muskets near the battlefield. In Dec., 1776, he marched to Rhode Island in Lieut. Jonah Washburn's company on an alarm; in Sept. and Oct., 1777, he was out thirty-one days in Capt. Nehemiah Allen's company in another expedition to Rhode Island; in May, 1778, he was out a few days at Dartmouth, and again in Aug., 1780, he saw further service.

After his marriage, he lived a few years in what is now South Carver, then a part of Plympton, some ten miles south of his birth-place, but, about 1789, pushed on some seven or eight miles further south to Wareham, a fishing and manufacturing settlement at the head of Buzzard's Bay, some sixteen miles from Plymouth. He lived in the part known as Parker's Mills. The town had been incorporated in 1739. Here he did a large business, making harpoons, agricultural implements, edge tools, etc.

Virginia Manufactory of Arms, June, 1813.

James Bent, lately an Artificer in this Manufactory, and now in the State of Massachusetts, during his employment here was under my Superintendence for nearly five years. I have pleasure in saying he conducted himself with great propriety, and is a good workman at polishing all kinds of arms, finishing pistols, &c.

Given under my hand the date above.

JN STAPLES, Sup't.

After his return to Massachusetts, he worked at the machinist's trade a part of the time and taught school winters; but from 1833 until his death in 1847, he kept the Massapoag House in Canton. The hotel was built in 1789, and is still standing. From 1819 to 1824, he was adjutant of a militia regiment. He married, April 18, 1815, Hannah Crane Davenport, born Dec. 8, 1791, died Oct. 2, 1870, daughter of Jesse and Hannah (Crane) Davenport of Canton.

ANN<sup>6</sup> BENT (Rufus,<sup>5</sup> Joseph,<sup>4</sup> Joseph,<sup>3</sup> Joseph,<sup>2</sup> John<sup>1</sup>) was born in Milton, Mass., June 19, 1768; died, unmarried, in Canton, Mass., Feb. 27, 1857, æ. 88. As a young woman, she taught school on Milton Hill, but in 1795 opened a store on what is now Washington Street (then Marlboro' Street), near Summer Street, Boston, where she continued in active business until 1833. Her shop was a sort of ladies' exchange, and she was well and favorably known. She was a capable, energetic and generous woman, says the historian of Milton, and a constant attendant at the Federal Street Church during Channing's and Gannett's pastorates. For several years she lived over her store, even after she had turned the management of the business over to her relatives, Ann and William H. Allen, who continued there until the great fire of 1872; but the last two years of her life were spent with her sister, Mrs. Kinsley, in Canton. Her store was valued at $24,000 at her death.

WILLIAM<sup>6</sup> BENT (Ebenezer,<sup>5</sup> Ebenezer,<sup>4</sup> Joseph,<sup>3</sup> Joseph,<sup>2</sup> John<sup>1</sup>) was born in Milton, Mass., April 27, 1772; moved about 1799 to Boston, where he died March 1, 1851, æ. nearly 79. He learned the trade of wood carving, and upon his removal to Boston began, with his brother Adam, the manufacture of pianos, which were among the first to be made in New England. In the summer of 1797, a Frenchman named Mallet, connected with the theatre in Boston, sent the Bent brothers a piano to be repaired, and this led them to begin the manufacture soon after. Their shop was at 26 Orange Street, as a part of Washington Street was then called, and number 26 was near the present bridge over the Boston & Albany Railroad. In 1802, 1803 and 1804, the younger brother, Adam, went to the West Indies selling their goods. The early directories, beginning with 1800, call them "instrument makers and carvers"; it is not until 1807 that the entry "William Bent, pianoforte maker" appears. Soon after, about 1809, William Bent moved to Philadelphia, where the first piano manufactured in America was probably made by John Belrend in 1775.* In Philadelphia he worked for other piano makers some twenty years, after which he returned to Boston.

William Bent married Elizabeth, daughter of Samuel and Mehitable Phillips of Boston, where she died Dec. 11, 1853, æ. 71; buried in the Granary Burial Ground. No children.

*It was in Philadelphia that the first upright piano was produced by Hawkins, in 1800. See "Spirit of '76," September, 1895.

146

ADAM<sup>a</sup> BENT (Ebenezer,<sup>a</sup> Ebenezer,<sup>4</sup> Joseph,<sup>3</sup> Joseph,<sup>2</sup> John<sup>1</sup>) was born in Milton, Mass., March 17, 1776; died in South Boston, Mass., March 22, 1857, æ. 81. He moved to Boston about 1799, and in 1807 located near City Point, South Boston, then but sparsely settled,* though the Blakes had dwelt at Dorchester Point, as it was called, for a century and a quarter. The house that he built about 1810 is still standing. Less than a mile away, on the heights of South Boston (until 1804 a part of Dorchester), were thrown up the earth-works that caused the British to evacuate Boston on his natal day. In 1825, 1826 and 1827, he was in the common council; in 1831, alderman; and in 1829, 1830 and 1831, representative to the Legislature; was an original member of the Hawes Congregational (Unitarian) Church; chosen deacon in 1829. The historian of South Boston calls him a man of pleasant manner, good judgment and original thought. (See William<sup>a</sup> Bent preceding for an account of his connection with the piano business.)

He married, May 20, 1808, Sukey Foster Blake, born Jan. 12, 1784, died March 23, 1859, daughter of James and Lydia (Dana) Blake of Dorchester Neck, as South Boston was then called.

* Mr. Francis E. Blake says, that "at the date of annexation to Boston, 1804, there were only twelve families living there."

JOSIAH<sup>6</sup> BENT (John,<sup>5</sup> Ebenezer,<sup>4</sup> Joseph,<sup>3</sup> Joseph,<sup>2</sup> John<sup>1</sup>), cracker baker, was born April 26, 1771, in Milton, Mass., where he died April 26, 1836, æ. 65. He was representative to the Legislature in 1833. In 1801, he began with one oven in his house the manufacture of Bent's water crackers, which have done more, probably, than anything else to make the name of Bent known, for the crackers have been sent to all parts of our country and to foreign shores. He continued the manufacture until 1830, when he sold the business to his son-in-law, Deacon Samuel Adams, and his son Samuel T. Bent. From 1837 to 1871, Deacon Adams was sole proprietor; in the latter year, he leased the business to Samuel T. Bent, Horatio Webster, John A. Shaw, George A. Fletcher and William H. Balcom. At the expiration of the lease, five years later, he again leased it for a similar term; but, during the interval, viz. in 1879, he died, devising the property to George A. Webster and Granville J. Young. In 1890, the business was sold to the New York Biscuit Co., who still continue the manufacture in Milton under the name of Bent & Co., though they have moved from the old location to a new building nearer the railroad station. In June, 1892, George H. Bent, son of Samuel T., after many years service with Bent & Co., began the manufacture of the G. H. Bent & Co. water cracker.

Josiah married, March 28, 1794, Susanna, born 1776, died Oct. 16, 1857, daughter of Samuel Tucker, Jr., of Milton.

worked in the chair factories. In January, 1859, he formed a partnership with his brother, A. Allen, and they manufactured chairs for two years and a half, when Samuel went to Newburg, now a part of Cleveland, Ohio. Returning to Gardner in 1864, he worked for Heywood Bros. & Co. for a few years. In 1867, he formed a partnership with his youngest brother, R. L. Bent, for the manufacture of dining chairs. In October, 1868, they bought out their brother Allen's business, and the other brother, Charles, was added to the firm. The firm of S. Bent & Bros., of which Samuel was at the head until his death, still continues at the South village, where it has been successful in a town noted for this industry, some $2,000,000 worth of chairs being made in the place annually at present. He was one of the selectmen of Gardner for several years, and a man of sterling integrity, devoted to his family, and faithful in whatever post of service he was called to fill. He married, Sept. 28, 1847, Mary Louisa Emery, born Sept. 15, 1824, died Sept. 18, 1895, daughter of Samuel and Mary (Bailey) Emery of East Jaffrey, N. ELIZA<sup>7</sup> BENT (Hyman,<sup>8</sup> Samuel,<sup>9</sup> Thomas,<sup>4</sup> Hopestill,<sup>3</sup> Peter,<sup>2</sup> John<sup>1</sup>) was born in Fitzwilliam, N. H., Oct. 25, 1819; died in Gardner, Mass., March 21, 1893, æ. 73. She married, Nov. 3, 1840, John Sawin of Gardner, who has made chairs and told funny stories for over sixty years. He was born in Westminster, Mass., Oct. 9, 1815, the son of Sullivan and Mary (Heywood) Sawin,* and is living in Gardner, his home since about 1830. About 1836, he and his brother Sullivan Sawin, Jr., began making chairs and school furniture on the site now occupied by S. Bent & Bros.' factory, where previously John Merriam, who built the original shop and dam in 1822, had carried on a fulling establishment. John soon bought out his brother's interest and continued alone until he disposed of the chair business to his brother-in-law, A. A. Bent, in 1856. After this, he still continued to make school furniture, but in recent years has been in the employ of others.

Mr. and Mrs. Sawin celebrated their golden wedding in 1890, surrounded by a large and happy family circle. Mrs. Sawin was the first of the Bent family to locate in Gardner, where all of her brothers and most of her sisters have lived at one time or another. She and her sisters were instrumental in the formation of the Unitarian church in 1884.

A. ALLEN<sup>7</sup> BENT (Hyman,<sup>6</sup> Samuel,<sup>5</sup> Thomas,<sup>4</sup> Hopestill,<sup>3</sup> Peter,<sup>2</sup> John<sup>1</sup>) was born in Fitzwilliam, N. H., Jan. 29, 1823; living in Boston, Mass. Although brought up on "a stern and rock-bound farm," to use his own expression, he worked more or less through his youth in a wooden-ware shop. At the time of leaving his native town, in August, 1845, he was a lieutenant in the 12th regiment, New Hampshire militia. Except a year and a half spent in Weston, Mass., in 1855 and 1856, his home for the next twenty-four years was in the South village of Gardner, Mass., fourteen miles from his birthplace. At first he worked for his brother-in-law, John Sawin, chair manufacturer, but after his return from Weston bought out a part of the business, which he continued until 1868, when he sold it to his three brothers.

Becoming early interested in the anti-slavery cause, much of his time, money and energy were spent in that work. For several years he was secretary of the Worcester County North Anti-Slavery Society, and for a few years was one of the Vice Presidents of the Massachusetts Anti-Slavery Society. In 1866, he represented his district in the Legislature. The first of April, 1869, he transferred his home to Boston, the part formerly the city of Roxbury, where he continues to reside. Since its organization, in 1879, he has been one of the Trustees of the Boylston Street Land Company, and since April, 1882, the company's Treasurer.

He was married, Nov. 1, 1848, by Rev. William B. Stone (brother of Lucy Stone) to Sarah Breck, born in Gardner, Mass., July 24, 1826, daughter of Elijah and Sarah (Comce) Breck, and a descendant in the 7th generation from John Breck, who died in Medfield, Mass., Jan. 3, 1660. Mr. and Mrs. Bent celebrated their golden wedding (the fourth in the family) at Gardner, Nov. 1, 1898, surrounded by nearly three score of their relatives and friends, including six who were present fifty years before.

The following tribute is from the pen of his brother:

R. L. Bent possessed some remarkable traits of character, some rare business qualifications. He was one of the few who could conduct business with success and at the same time with fairness towards those associated with him and with all he had dealings with. The successful business man is worthy of more credit than he usually gets. Statistics show that only five or six out of every hundred can manage business successfully; consequently, the other ninety-four or ninety-five are in some way dependent on the five or six. Successful business men are the great promoters of advanced civilization. Indeed, civilization is largely dependent on them. The varied and valuable charitable institutions and the many noble enterprises that go to make our civilization valuable are results of business enterprise of men who accumulate more than enough to support their own families. I honor the successful business man, and such was R. L. Bent. And his good traits did not end with his fine business capabilities. He was a faithful husband, a devoted father, a kind and thoughtful relative, generous to those less fortunate than himself, a true public spirited citizen, loyal alike to his family, to his friends, to his associates, to his country, and to the higher law of truth and right, an honest, conscientious, fair-minded, representative man. The needs of the hour are for more such men. He fought a good fight, but finished his course all too early. We cannot explain the mystery of his removal when he was so useful and when he seemed so much needed. Perhaps his tireless activity hastened his departure. He dropped the earthly garments, which energetic use had worn out, too soon. Still we have reason to be thankful that we have seen him and known him and been helped by him. We are all better for having known him. A great loss means that we have had a great treasure.

We shall hold him in grateful remembrance for his rare ability, for his loyalty, integrity, strong hand and generous heart.

He married, July 10, 1866, Mary L. Adams, born Jan. 22, 1849, daughter of Silas and Roxa (Hunting) Adams of Gardner, and a descendant of Henry Adams of Braintree, 1632, the ancestor of the Presidents Adams, the Revolutionary patriot Samuel Adams and William T. Adams (Oliver Optic).

- i. ROLLAND ADAMS,<sup>s</sup> b. March 22, 1876.
- ii. ARNOLD AINSLIE, b. Nov. 28, 1887.

192

CHARLES<sup>7</sup> BENT (Silas,<sup>6</sup> Silas,<sup>5</sup> Elijah,<sup>4</sup> Hopestill,<sup>3</sup> Peter,<sup>2</sup> John<sup>1</sup>) was born in Charleston, (West) Virginia, Nov. 11, 1799; killed by the Indians at Taos, N. M., Jan. 19, 1847. About the year 1826 four of the Bent brothers, Charles, William, George and Robert, together with Ceran St. Vrain, went from the Upper Missouri or Sioux County (whither they had gone, some of them as early as 1823, in the service of the American Fur Co.) to what is now Colorado, where they immediately built a wooden fort. Two years afterward they began the construction of an adobe fort, which was finished in 1832. This was the famous Bent's Fort, or as they called it, Fort William. For ten years they, and those in their employ, were the only white men in what is now Bent County. St. Vrain and the oldest of the Bent brothers, Charles, did not remain long, but pushed on to New Mexico. It was probably in 1829 that they applied to President Jackson for a military escort to cross the Arkansas river, then the dividing line between the United States and Mexico. The band that started consisted of about sixty men and thirty-six wagons. Charles Bent was chosen captain, and two hundred soldiers, under the command of Major Bennett Riley, were granted them. At one time on their journey they were attacked by a band of Indians variously estimated at from five hundred to two thousand, but succeeded in holding their own. They finally reached what is now New Mexico and located permanently for trading purposes. In 1829 Spain invaded Mexico, and the latter country, which had become independent in 1821, banished all people of Spanish birth from the Republic. Several Spanish families crossed the plains from Santa Fé to St. Louis that fall, under the guidance of Charles Bent and his caravan.

Everyone speaks highly of Captain Charles. William Waldo of Texas, who was with him in those early days, says, "he was a man of splendid nerve and power, and a military genius of no mean order, and furthermore his caution was equal to his valor." Captain James Hobbs of California, who also knew him, says, "I always found him perfectly upright in his dealings, both with his party and with the Indians. He commanded the confidence and respect of all the tribes he dealt with, and his honorable treatment of them prevented violence on their part." J. P. Dunn, Jr., in his "Massacres of the Mountains," says, "besides being a man of practical knowledge, Bent was a man of talent, energy and patriotism."

At the declaration of war with Mexico, in 1846, Colonel Stephen W. Kearney left Fort Leavenworth in June, and on August 1st encamped with his command at Bent's Fort. The following day they left for Santa Fé, marching over the route now occupied by the Atchison, Topeka & Santa Fé Railroad. Charles Bent commanded a company of spies on the expedition.

On the 22d of September (1846), Kearney, being duly authorized by the President of the United States, appointed Charles Bent Governor of New Mexico, of which they had just taken possession. Previous to this, he had married a Spanish lady (whose sister married Kit Carson) and established his residence at Don Fernandez de Taos (now plain Taos, about sixty-five miles N. N. E. of Santa Fé). "The community over which he was called to rule," says J. P. Dunn, Jr., "was complex. The Americans were trifling in number outside the military. The people generally may be classed as Mexicans, Pueblos and wild Indians, though there existed in abundance every imaginable gradation of blood and habits between these classes. The Pueblos were the most interesting and, indeed, the most reliable of the three classes. They are not a nation or tribe, but include a number of tribes, speaking six distinct languages. They are, as the name signifies, Indians who live in permanent towns. Most of them were Christianized after a fashion at an early date. At the time of this conquest, they inhabited the twenty-six villages which they still occupy."

"On the 26th of Dec., 1846, Governor Bent wrote that he had received information of a revolt on the 17th of December, but that he had secured seven of the conspirators. Believing the revolt to be at an end, he went, on the 14th of Jan., 1847, to his home at Taos. On the 19th the Indians appeared and asked for the release of two prisoners. This being refused, they killed the sheriff, and then attacked the Governor's house, killing and scalping Bent and two others, one of the latter being his brother-in-law, Pablo Jaramillo. The army, after capturing the insurrectionists, fourteen of whom were afterward tried, convicted and hung, returned to Santa Fé, and there on the 13th of February the bodies of Governor Bent and prosecuting-attorney Leal were buried with civic, masonic and military honors. After a third interment the remains of Governor Bent now lie in the Masonic Cemetery at the New Mexican capital, beneath a handsome monument and honorable epitaph."

He is described as a heavily built man, with a pleasant but firm disposition, and was evidently a good exemplification of the motto of the English Bents, "Nec temere nec timide."

Don Carlos, as he was known in his home, had by his wife, Ignacia Jaramilla, three children, all born in Taos, N. M.:

Cannonsburg College, Washington Co., Penn., admitted to the bar in Missouri about 1825, and soon after was appointed clerk of the Circuit Court and recorder of Jefferson County, at Herculaneum, Mo. About a year afterward he returned to St. Louis, and in 1828 was a representative to the State Legislature, where his oratorical powers, as well as urbanity of manner, soon attracted attention. Upon his return, he was appointed circuit attorney for the St. Louis Circuit, the duties of which he faithfully discharged for six or eight years. His death was occasioned by an injury received from the overturning of a coach in which he was travelling.

He married in 1829 Olivia McClelland of Boone County, Mo. About 1853 she moved to Kentucky to live among her people. She died at her daughter's home in Springfield, Mo., in 1889.

Children, all born in St. Louis:

- i. VIRGINIA,<sup>8</sup> b. Oct. 1831; living unm. in Bowling Green, Ky.
- ii. MARTHA, b. Oct. 1834; d. unm. in Springfield, Mo., April, 1889.

WILLIAM<sup>7</sup> BENT (Silas,<sup>6</sup> Silas,<sup>5</sup> Elijah,<sup>4</sup> Hopetill,<sup>3</sup> Peter,<sup>2</sup> John<sup>1</sup>) was born in St. Louis, Mo., May 23, 1809, and died in Bent County, Col., May 19, 1869. About 1826 he accompanied his brother Charles and others (see page 121) to the Arkansas valley in what is now the State of Colorado, then simply an unexplored part of the vast Louisiana purchase. Here they built a temporary wooden fort, which lasted until the completion in 1832 of what was known at first as Fort William, but later as Bent's Fort. From this as a centre he made trapping and trading expeditions among the Indians. When the fort was built the surrounding country was occupied by Comanches and Kiowas, but in 1836 he went to the valley of the Platte for a wife, a Cheyenne maid, daughter of a chief of great influence. The result was that about three-quarters of that tribe removed to the Arkansas valley, and his business increased correspondingly. In the palmy days he employed a hundred trappers.

During the Mexican War, in 1846 and 1847, the fort was headquarters for the commissary department, and many supplies were stored there. William Bent acted as guide as far as Taos, N. M. (his brother's home), for the 2d Missouri Cavalry, commanded by Col. Sterling Price (later a Confederate major-general), and after that was known as Col. Bent. In 1852 the Government offered him $12,000 for his fort, but his price was $16,000. As no agreement could be reached, he loaded what goods he could into his wagons, set fire to the powder magazine, and blew up the fort.

In the spring of 1853 Col. Bent began a new fort, forty miles east of the old one, completing it the following year. In 1859 he was appointed U. S. Indian agent for the Cheyennes and Arapahoes, but resigned in the next year. In the fall of 1859 he leased his fort to the Government, and it was occupied with troops and called Fort Wise, after Gov. Wise of Virginia; but this name was changed in 1861 to Fort Lyon, after the gallant Gen. Lyon, one of the first to die in the Civil War. The fort was abandoned in 1867 and a new fort was built by the United States twenty-five miles up the Arkansas River and named Fort Lyon, but this was given up in 1890.

In 1859 Col. Bent began improvements near the mouth of the Purgatoire River, Colorado, building a stockade one hundred feet square. In 1860 R. M. Moore, from Jackson County, Mo., joined him, and soon after married the Colonel's oldest daughter, Mary. This daughter had been educated in the family of Col. Albert G. Boone, a relative of the famous Daniel Boone of Kentucky. "The wedding," says the Kansas City Journal of Commerce, "was such a one as could be given only on the Western frontier and at the mansion of Col. Bent." The latter assembled his old hunting companions, formed an Indian council and passed around the pipe of peace. R. M. Moore, who was born in Ohio in 1833, was the first probate judge and first superintendent of schools for Bent County, 1870, and is now one of the largest ranch owners and cattle raisers in the county, and a man greatly respected. He has 2200 head of cattle, besides a large lot of sheep.

Col. Bent's wife died soon after the birth of her youngest child, and he married her sister. He himself died at his home, near Las Animas, Colo., May 19, 1869, æ. 60. Says Hall's History of Colorado: "A remarkable man in his day was William Bent, not perhaps according to the æsthetic standard, but in the estimation of his fellows and of the red men, where his iron firmness yet kindly manners, his integrity, truthfulness and courage not only compelled admiration but endeared him to them. As a consequence, no such harvests as he gathered were open to his competitors, and when his heavily loaded trains reached St. Louis, bearing the fruits of his enterprise, they came like ships bearing coveted cargoes from foreign lands."

William Bent's children were:

- i. MARY,<sup>s</sup> b. Jan. 22, 1838; d. May 6, 1878; m. April 3, 1860, R. M. Moore. Six children, four girls and two boys.
- ii. ROBERT, d. in Indian Territory in April, 1889.
- iii. GEORGE, living, 1894, at Darlington, I. T.

- iv. JULIA, m. Edward Garrie; living, 1894, at Darlington, I. T.
- v. CHARLES, was educated at St. Louis, but joined the Indians and died with them in 1868. The cause of his death was malarial fever superinduced by a wound received in a fight with the Kaws near the mouth of the Walnut Creek in Kansas. His picture appears in Harper's Magazine for Feb. 1868 (vol. 36, p. 305).

BENT'S FORT.

Bent's Fort, Colorado, as has already been stated,* was begun in 1828 and completed in 1832. It was on the north bank of the Arkansas River, twelve or fifteen miles from Las Animas, the former capital of Bent County, some seventy miles east of Pueblo, Col., 650 miles west of Fort Leavenworth, Kan., and 8958 feet above the sea. It was one hundred feet square, with adobe walls 15 feet high and four feet thick. At the northeast and southwest corners were bastions armed with cannon. Inside the apartments were built against the walls in the Mexican fashion and in the centre was the storehouse for furs. In 1846 it justified Col. Cooke's assertion that it was in reality the only fort at the West. Francis Parkman stopped in August of that year, just after Kearney's soldiers had been there, and makes a brief allusion in "The Oregon Trail" to its "high clay walls in the midst of the scorching plains." At present, however, not a vestige of it remains, but in its day it afforded shelter to hundreds of weary travellers and was the most noted trading post west of the Missouri River.

In 1831, after Charles Bent had pushed on further west, Kit Carson,† then barely twenty-one, was hired as a hunter and remained until Gen. Fremont found him in 1845 and employed him as a guide. This was Fremont's third western expedition, but the first time he had ever stopped at Bent's Fort. He came again on his fourth expedition in 1848.

"The contiguous region to Fort William," says Col. Henry Inman in "The Old Santa Fé Trail," "was in the early days a famous hunting ground. It abounded in nearly every variety of animal indigenous to the mountains and plains, among which were the panther, the lynx, white wolf, prairie wolf, silver-gray fox, prairie fox, antelope, buffalo, gray, grizzly and cinnamon bears, together with the common brown and black species, the red deer and the black tail. Of birds there were wild turkeys, quail and grouse, besides an endless variety of the smaller-sized families, not regarded as belonging to the domain of game in a hunter's sense. It was a veritable paradise too for the trappers. Its numerous streams and creeks were famous for beaver, otter and mink."

* See pages 121 and 125.

† Christopher or Kit Carson was born in Kentucky, Dec. 24, 1809, and died May 23, 1868, æ. 58.

"Scarcely an acre," he significantly adds, "of the surrounding area within the radius of hundreds of miles but has been the scene of many deadly encounters with the wily red man."

BENT COUNTY, COLORADO.

Bent County, Colorado, was authorized by legislative act of February, 1870, it having been part of Las Animas and Pueblo Counties previously. The original county seat was Las Animas, but this was soon changed to Boggsville. The county is 110 miles long and 84 miles wide, having an area of nearly 9500 square miles, about the size of Massachusetts and Rhode Island. The Arkansas River runs through the entire length of the county, a little south of the centre, and the Atchison Topeka & Santa Fé Railroad follows the bank of the river. The county is in the southeastern part of the state, the eastern boundary being Kansas. The surface in general is a grassy plain, which up to 1872 was occupied by great herds of buffalo and antelope. Its modern growth as a farming country did not begin until 1886-87. The population in 1890 was about 20,000, but it has increased largely since then.

ceived at the U. S. Naval Academy, Annapolis, Md. He became a midshipman July 1, 1836, master in 1849, and lieutenant Aug. 1, 1849. In the latter position he conducted a series of surveys on the coast of Japan during Commodore Matthew C. Perry's expedition, which resulted in the opening to the world of the ports of that hitherto exclusive country. Bayard Taylor, who took part in the expedition, says in his "A Visit to India, China and Japan in the Year 1853," published two years later: "Too much credit, however, cannot be awarded to the different officers, and especially to Lieut. Bent, for the coolness and courage with which they prosecuted their work. When we consider that this, one of the greatest bays in the world, had hitherto never been surveyed, the interest and value of their labors will be better understood." Before this Lieut. Bent had been on the U. S. Brig Preble, 14 guns, with Commander Glynn, who succeeded in getting eighteen American sailors released from Japanese prisons and paved the way for Commodore Perry.* At the outbreak of the civil war his sympathies were with his native state and he resigned his commission and returned to his early home in St. Louis, where he assumed the management of the Tyler estate. He was a member of the Board of Freeholders who formed the present city charter of St. Louis and held many positions of trust. For several years he was senior warden of Christ Church. Most of his leisure was devoted to scientific research, and he took especial interest in polar explorations. As early as 1868 he addressed the St. Louis Historical Society on "The Thermometric Gateways to the Poles." This address was published and attracted the attention of scientists all over the world.

He married Nov. 5, 1857, Ann Eliza Tyler, daughter of Robert and Mary Lawrence (Chambers) Tyler of Louisville, Ky.

EDWARD<sup>7</sup> BENT (Nahum<sup>8</sup>, Silas<sup>8</sup>, Elijah<sup>8</sup>, Hopestill<sup>8</sup>, Peter<sup>8</sup>, John<sup>1</sup>) was born in Marietta, O., May 1, 1817; died Martinez, Cal., June 19, 1879, aged 62; soon after his marriage he and his father moved to Northwestern Missouri, where he remained until 1852, when he moved his family back to his father-in-law's home, near Riggston, Illinois, and went to California prospecting. Notwithstanding the fact that this was "the year of the cholera" and he had many rough experiences, he decided to return to Illinois and take his family thither. June 1, 1854, they all started for California overland in a prairie schooner, a journey that took four months. Soon after their arrival death claimed three of the children. For two years they lived in Napa County, but in 1856 the family located in Alhambra Valley, near Martinez, in central California.

Edward Bent married July 25, 1838, Harriet Amanda, born in Connecticut, died in Martinez, Cal., Feb. 19, 1899, daughter of George W. Camp of Scott County, Ill. Mrs. Bent was a genuine pioneer. When she was very young her father took his family with a pioneer's outfit to Vermont, then but sparsely settled; a few years later he pushed on to the Ohio River, where he built a flat boat and floated down the Ohio and Mississippi until near St. Louis. After a short time here he packed his effects on to an ox-cart and moved to central Illinois. Here the future Mrs. Bent grew to womanhood and married. Soon after marriage, as has already been stated, she went to western Missouri and in 1854 to California, so it will be seen that she had crossed the continent in ox-wagons.

They were in favor of social progress, were total abstainers from the use of alcoholic liquors, and early gave up the sale of tobacco and cigars. They were interested in mechanical and scientific improvements, and were great lovers of nature. Nathaniel always carried a sketch-book and spent much of his leisure time in painting, while Elijah made microscopy a studious pastime. Their interest in the Unitarian church in Canton was abiding and efficient. Among its people and the town's people generally they made many life-long friends. They preserved to a remarkable degree a cheerful boyish spirit, and were in sympathy with and greatly loved by the young people around them.

Nathaniel married, Dec. 29, 1852, Amelia Maria Guild, who was born in Canton, April 29, 1831, daughter of Horace and Amelia (Fisher) Guild, and is living in Allston.

Elijah never married, but took a deep interest in his brother's family and lived with them as long as he lived. He was treasurer of the Canton Historical Society, and a member of the American Unitarian Association.

Children of Nathaniel and Amelia, all born in Canton :

- i. ANNIE AMELIA,<sup>8</sup> b. Dec. 20, 1853 ; living in Concord, Mass. ; m. June 16, 1881, Harvey Wheeler. Three children : 1. Roger,<sup>9</sup> b. 1882 ; d. 1892. 2. Gladys, b. June 10, 1885. 3. Berkeley, b. April 26, 1888.

* A descendant in the eighth generation from Nathaniel Felton, one of the early settlers of Salem, Mass.

1829, and is living in Overbrook, a suburb of Philadelphia, Pa. He has a summer home at Annisquam, Mass. Like Major-General Nelson A. Miles he was educated in a Boston crockery store. After three years spent on a farm he went to Boston at the age of fifteen and entered the employ of the New England Glass Company, whose manufacturing establishment at East Cambridge was then one of the most extensive in the United States. There he remained five years, acquiring an excellent mercantile education, as well as a thorough knowledge of the glassware and crockery business. Upon coming of age he embarked in this business with the firm of Atkins, Stedman & Co., which about 1855 became D. B. Stedman & Co., and was thus engaged when the Civil War broke out. As speedily as possible he arranged his business affairs and, May 22, 1861, enlisted as a private in Co. H, 4th Mass. Infantry. The regiment proceeded at once to Fortress Monroe, thence to Newport News and finally to Big Bethel, where a fierce battle was waged. Upon the expiration of his term of service, three months, he re-enlisted, Aug. 24, 1861, as 1st Sergt. of Co. K, 18th Mass. Infantry, and participated in all of the battles in which that regiment, attached to the Army of the Potomac, was engaged, including Gaines Mills, second Bull Run (in which he was wounded in the hand), Shepardston and Fredericksburg in 1862, Chancellorsville, Gettysburg, Rappahannock Station and Mine Creek in 1863. He became 2d lieutenant July 30, 1862, 1st lieutenant Dec. 25, 1862, captain Dec. 24, 1863, and major July 29, 1864. In the operations along the Weldon Railroad during the latter part of August (1864) he led his battalion, capturing, on the 21st of the month, fifty prisoners and a battle flag belonging to the 27th South Carolina Regiment. In the advance of the Fifth Corps upon the enemy's works at Peeble's Farm, Sept. 30, 1864, which resulted in the capture of a line of the enemy's works, his command did good service, reflecting great credit upon its members, both rank and file. Shortly afterwards, on the recommendation of General Griffin, he was commissioned by President Lincoln as major in the U. S. Army, and at the same time by the State of Massachusetts a lieutenant-colonel; but the term of service of the officers having expired and the battalion being greatly reduced in numbers, it was consolidated with the 32d Mass. Regiment, and Major Bent, at his own request, was mustered out as a supernumerary officer.

"Peace hath her victories no less renowned than War." Since the rebellion the gallant major has distinguished himself in the management of another kind of steel. Although he went West immediately and filled various positions in the employ of the Union Pacific R. R. during the construction of that road, and was for a time engaged in cattle raising on the plains in Nebraska, where he was one of the pioneers, in 1874 he became superintendent of the Pennsylvania

MAJOR LUTHER S. BENT, OF PENNSYLVANIA.

Steel Company at Steelton (Baldwin's Station it was then), Pa., and after the death in 1889 of his father-in-law S. M. Felton, president, from which position he retired in 1896 in favor of Edgar C. Felton. The plant of this company, which is located on the Susquehanna, three miles below Harrisburg, is one of the largest in the country. The company, organized in 1865 (the buildings were erected in 1866 and 1867), made for the Pennsylvania R. R. the first steel rails ever produced in America on an order in the regular course of business. To this company Major Bent gave the full force and strength of his life. Starting in with an operation employing eight hundred men, he left it with an army of nearly eight thousand. At the outset steel rails were its only product; at the close of his active career the company was turning out at its various plants everything known to the art of steel manufacture, including ships, engines and bridges. Even now, as chairman of its executive committee, he still takes an active interest in the company's affairs.

In 1875 Major Bent was keenly interested in the incorporation of the borough of Steelton, and one of the most perplexing questions which arose was how to provide school facilities for the rapidly increasing population. As president of the school board he succeeded in securing from the Pennsylvania Steel Company a large appropriation, which was ample enough to build and equip one of the largest and finest school houses in the State. During his residence in Steelton his interest in the borough was unflagging. To the young and old, to their health, welfare and education, he paid strict attention, and every reasonable means were employed to make the borough a model settlement. He always took an active interest in its business enterprises and was foremost in the establishment of its bank and flour mills, as well as its electric railway systems. When he was elected president of the Pennsylvania Steel Company the duties of his new office called him to Philadelphia, and in 1890 it was with much reluctance he left the town he had so long and so well served.

In 1890 he was elected chairman of the Jurugua Iron Co., Ltd., controlling extensive iron ore mines in eastern Cuba. Since his connection with the Jurugua Company he has been active in many business operations in Cuba, having been more recently chosen vice-president of the Cuban Steel Ore Co. During his life-time he has also turned his attention to railway enterprises, and is at the present time president of the Baltimore & Sparrow's Point R. R. and a director of several of the allied roads of the Pennsylvania system.

At this time he is on the following boards: Steelton National Bank, Harrisburg National Bank, Harrisburg Trust Co., Penna. Steel Co., Maryland Steel Co., Jurugua Iron Co. Ltd., Cuban Steel Ore Co., Edison Portland Cement Co., Solid Steel Casting Co., Earn line Steam Ship Co. and several other boards of lesser importance.

Major Bent married in Thurlow, Pa., Jan. 12, 1871, Mary Stearns Felton, who was born Jan. 11, 1842, half-sister of Edgar Conway Felton and daughter of Samuel Morse Felton, who was president of the Philadelphia, Wilmington & Baltimore R. R. before and during the Civil War, and, from its organization until his death, president of Pennsylvania Steel Co.

AVERY BENT (1787-1830). Sept. 15, 1806, William Cutter, ropemaker, of Boston, is appointed guardian of Avery Bent, minor, son of Elwin Bent, late of Boston, ship carpenter. July 2, 1813, he married Eliza Hanson of Charlestown, a native of Salem. He first appears in the Boston Directory in 1816 (none printed in 1814 and 1815) as a ropemaker on Pleasant Street. He died in Charlestown, Mass., Sept. 13, 1830, æ. 43, leaving a son—

AVERY P. BENT (1812-1870), who was born in Charlestown, but lived some years in Truro, Mass., where he had a son, Henry H. Bradley Bent, born May 4, 1841, who probably died young. Avery P. died in Boston, Aug. 25, 1870, æ. 57-10-15 (i. e. born Oct. 10, 1812) and was buried in Cedar Grove Cemetery, Dorchester. Occupation given as fish dealer. Only heirs seem to be widow Sarah C. and daughter(?) Elizabeth H., wife of Ezra B. Leonard.

BUCKLEY BENT kept a dry goods store on Lindall Street (now Exchange Place), Boston, in 1822 and 1823. He appears in the directories of New York City from 1827 to 1833, and perhaps others.

CHRISTOPHER BENT, grocer, New York City, 1827.

DAVID BENT, JR., merchant, Philadelphia, 1830.

EVERETT W. BENT, who is living in Winchester, N. H., JONAH F. BENT who died there about 1887, and LEMUEL BENT JR., who died in Northfield, Mass., Jan. 22, 1869, are all descendants, presumably, of Nathan<sup>s</sup> Bent, who settled in Winchester, N. H., in 1797.

GEORGE WHITFIELD BENT, son of Lewis and Sarah (Spinney) Bent, and brother of Frances Emma Bent, wife of Nathan Webster of Melrose, Mass., was born in Nova Scotia in 1845, and is living in Hyde Park, Mass., which has been his home since 1872. When six or seven years old he accompanied his mother to Marblehead, Mass. At the age of seventeen, Sept. 15, 1862, he enlisted in the 8th Mass. Infantry and for the succeeding nine months was in service in North Carolina and Virginia. July 9, 1864, he re-enlisted in Co. D, 5th Mass. Infantry, and served until Nov. 16, 1864. After the war he learned the upholstery trade in Salem and Boston and for some years was in the employ of Haley, Morse & Co., Boston. In the fall of 1881 he began the manufacture of church cushions and mattresses in a small way, and gradually added spring beds, folding beds, iron beds, etc., until now he is the largest bed and bedding manufacturer in New England, with mills at Ossipee and Moultonboro', N. H., a foundry at Everett, Mass., and commodious warerooms on Causeway Street, Boston, opposite the North Union Station. He married first, Jan. 20, 1870, Catherine D. Tilley of Charlestown, who died Dec. 27, 1894. He married second, Jan. 30, 1896, Elizabeth Wilson of Reading, Mass., formerly of Nova Scotia.

Children by the first marriage, i. born in Charlestown, the others in Hyde Park, Mass.:

- i. MARY STELLA, b. Oct. 23, 1870.
- ii. HARRY LINCOLN, b. Nov. 29, 1872; living in Hyde Park, Mass.; in business with his father; m. Oct. 20, 1897, Ida Lucella, dau. of I. Wallace White of Dedham.
- iii. GEORGE LINCOLN, b. July 8, 1874; d. July 4, 1883.
- iv. ARTHUR FLETCHER, b. Feb. 28, 1882.
- v. FLORENCE ELIZA, b. Oct. 19, 1885.

GILBERT BENT, machinist, son of Alpheus and Fanny (Smith) Bent, was born in Port George, Annapolis Co., N. S., Sept. 17, 1851; lived in Hopedale, Mass. and Woonsocket, R. I. He married, Oct. 16, 1878, Jennie Louise Darling, who was born in Milford, Mass., Aug. 8, 1853, daughter of Rodney L. and Pamela (Darling) Darling.

Child of Gilbert and Jennie:

- i. GEORGE WILLIAM, b. Nov. 23, 1879.

JOHN BENT, carriage-wright, a native of Charlestown, Mass., died in Wayland, Mass., March 27, 1852, æ. 65.

JOHN BENT, a lawyer, came from the West early in the nineteenth century and settled at Gloucester, Mass. He married there, but both he and his wife died soon after leaving an only son—

JOHN BENT, mariner, who was born Dec. 24, 1809, in Gloucester, where he died Aug. 5, 1875, æ. 65. He married Emeline E.

Children of John and Emeline, all born in Gloucester:

- i. EDWARD F., m. and has a daughter, Gertrude C.
- ii. EMELINE ELIZABETH, b. Dec. 7, 1830.
- iii. MARY ELIZA, b. 1832; d. 1836.
- iv. RACHEL, b. 1834; d. 1836.
- v. MARY ELIZA, b. 1836; d. 1839.
- vi. JOHN IRAM, b. Nov. 27, 1838; mariner of Rockport; d. in Worcester, of sunstroke, June 28, 1866.
- vii. LOISA, b. Jan. 9, 1841.

SAMUEL LAWRENCE BENT was bound out to work when a young man, and afterwards ran away to sea. On the ship he met a Swedish girl, Mary Sodderbergen, and later he went to her home on the Baltic and was married to her. He was lost at sea and soon after his wife died. They had two children, Samuel and Charles Franklin, the latter of whom died in infancy.

SAMUEL BENT, born in Sweden, Aug. 25, 1814, son of the preceding, was sent when eight years old (after the death of his parents) to America in search of his American relatives, but they were not found and he was brought up by the sea captain that took him from Sweden. Jan. 7, 1843, he was married in Lowell, Mass., to Elizabeth Ann Piper, a native of Newfield, Me., daughter of Nathaniel and Hetty Ann (Varney) Piper, by whom he had two sons, Samuel A. and Charles F., the latter of whom died in infancy. Samuel died in Lowell, May 6, 1849, æ. 34. In 1861 his widow went South with General Butler to care for the sick at Fortress Monroe. After the war she married William A. Cooper, who lived only a few months, and settled in Yorktown (Va.), where she has kept a hotel.

SAMUEL A. BENT (son of the preceding) was born in Lowell, Mass., Jan. 25, 1844, and died in Yorktown, Va., Dec. 8, 1880. He married Mary Etta Cluverius, and had three children:

- i. SAMUEL A. BENT, b. Aug. 16, 1875; is foreman on the Old Dominion S. S. Wharf, at Newport News, Va.; m. Sept. 27, 1893, at Newport News, Mary Johnson. One child, Ellenor, b. May, 1895.
- ii. PEARLEY CRANSTONE BENT, b. Feb. 5, 1878.
- iii. JESSIE ETTA, b. Oct. 3, 1880.

SIDNEY BENT, son of James, was born May 9, 1836, in Granville, N. S., where he still lives. He married Mary Jane, born Feb. 4, 1842, daughter of Thomas and Mary Hudson. Children:

- i. MARY ANN, b. Dec. 27, 1863; d. April 10, 1887; m. Fred Amos Taylor, and lived in Lynn, Mass.
- ii. HOWARD JAMES, b. March 20, 1865; living in Keene, N. H., where he is in ice business; m. Susan McCouch; three chil.
- iii. ELIZA JANE, b. Nov. 8, 1867; living in Beaconsfield, N. S.; m. July 3, 1884, Smith Lovemore, a farmer.

WILLIAM BENT, a trunk maker in Boston, in 1844, '45, '46, died Nov. 22, 1878, æ. 70, in Rhode Island. He was born in Boston, son of William and Jane Bent. He married, April 16, 1843, Hannah Scammon, a native of Saco, Me., who went to Boston young, and died soon after marriage, leaving two children, Ellen B., who married W. P. Osborne and lives in Portland, Me., and Eva H. Bent, manager of the New England Telephone and Telegraph Co., Biddeford, Me.

BENTS IN AMERICA, NOT DESCENDED FROM JOHN BENT OF SUDBURY, 1638.

JOHN BENT and Sarah Smith were married at South Kingston, R. I., Nov. 13, 1737, and died in Hopkinton, R. I., in the summer of 1784. It has not been ascertained, where this John Bent came from. He was still in South Kingston in 1767, but was in Hopkinton by 1778, when one of his slaves, Prince Bent, valued at £120, enlisted for the rest of the war in the First Battalion, Rhode Island forces. There are probably no descendants of his by the name of Bent now living, for in his will the legatees are the widow Mary (evidently a second wife), and five daughters, Mary Bent Jun<sup>r</sup>, Sarah Helme, Elizabeth Douglas, Catherine wife of Thomas Potter Gardner, Jane Bent (who died unmarried in Hopkinton in 1820) and a grand-daughter Hannah Bent. The latter, Hannah, born July 10, 1771 (married Jan. 24, 1799, William Chapman Jr.) was a daughter of John Bent Jr., who married Oct. 10, 1770, Hannah Saunders of Westerly, R. I.

PRINCE BENT, the slave of John Bent, died in Hopkinton, R. I., April 24, 1833, leaving a widow Betsey, who died July 28, 1833. They had two children: Martha Bent, who died in Westerly, R. I., and Prince Bent, who died in Charlestown, R. I., April 21, 1864, æ. about 80. The latter married Nancy Stanton, an Indian doctor of the once powerful Narragansett tribe. She died May 25, 1853, leaving seven children: 1. Joseph, living in Charlestown, R. I. 2. Jacob P., living in Charlestown, R. I. 3. William Henry, living in Bristol, R. I. 4. Edward, died young. 5. Betsey, living in Bristol, R. I. 6. Abby J., died May 23, 1874. 7. Annie S., married Isaac Jones and lives in Westerly, R. I. Joseph has five children: Jane, Melissa, Nancy, John and Edward.

BENJAMIN C. BENT, musician, from England, located in New York City about 1872, followed two years later by his brother FREDERICK W. BENT, and in 1879 by another brother ARTHUR BENT, who died in 1884, at which time he was cornet soloist in Gilmore's Band, a position afterwards held by Benjamin C. Bent.

JOHN BENT, who died in Boston, May 14, 1849, æ. 40, came from the "old country" a few years before. By his wife Bridget, who died in Boston, Dec. 30, 1872, æ. 62, he had three children:

i. PETER, b. 1834; d. in Boston, March 31, 1871, æ. 36 yrs. and 9 mos.

ii. JAMES, b. 1837; d. in Boston, Feb. 13, 1889, aged 52; well known in North End sporting circles for many years. By wife Mary he had three children: 1. Mary Ellen, m. John Smith of Chelsea. 2. Julia, m. Frank J. McCarty of Boston. 3. John J., living in Boston.

iii. JOHN, b. 1840; d. in Boston, July 15, 1876, æ. 36; m. Frances Johnson, who d. in City Hospital, Boston, Feb. 20, 1878, æ. 29.

JOSEPH BENT, who was born in 1812, and died in 1888, came from Bristol, England, about 1844, and settled in Boston, Mass., where his wife Jane, a native of Wales, daughter of Robert Roberts, died Dec. 16, 1863, æ. 44, leaving a son—

CHARLES R. BENT, who saw service in the 44th Mass. Infantry in 1862, and has since been a printer in Cambridge, Mass. He married, Nov. 12, 1869, Antoinette Spare of Cambridge, who died Aug. 4, 1874, æ. 26, leaving a son—

CHARLES LYMAN BENT, who graduated from the United States Military Academy at West Point in 1894, and became second lieutenant in the U. S. Army. In 1898 he was appointed first lieutenant in the 7th U. S. Infantry, and saw active service in the Cuban campaign. Now stationed at Fort Barry, Michigan. He married in California.

RICHARD BENT, from near Liverpool, England, settled in New York City about 1820. He married a Scotch lady, and died in New York City in 1852, leaving two daughters and a son—

RICHARD M. BENT, who has been a piano manufacturer in New York City since about 1870.

ROBERT BENT of Boston, Mass., son of George and Sarah (Griffith) Bent, is a native of Manchester, England, which he left for Montreal, Canada, about 1889. Six years later he removed to Boston. He married Christina Mace of Berwick-on-Tweed, Scotland. Three children: 1. Robert, born in England. 2. Clara Mace. 3. Frank Noel.

WILLIAM G. BENT of Boston, who was killed Nov. 23, 1891, by an accidental explosion in his business (calcium light), was a native of England. He has relatives in Chicago.

JAMES ALLEN BENT (son of George), attorney-at-law, Elkins, West Virginia, has published a "Digest of the Supreme Court of Appeals of West Virginia from 1863 to 1887." His grandfather, a soldier of the War of 1812, changed his name from Broadbelt to Bent.

STEPHEN C. BENT of Boston, who died in Newton, Mass., June 16, 1882, æ. 73, and was buried in Weston, was born a Chase and had his name legally changed. He married Julia C. Johnson, who died in Watertown, Mass., Feb. 17, 1884, æ. 75.

Note.—The initials at the end of the above are for Thomas Danforth, Recorder. Henry Rice was the eldest brother of Edward Rice who married John Bent's daughter. Both came with their father Edmund Rice, who was among the first settlers of Sudbury. John Stone was one of the first settlers of Sudbury, a son of Deacon Gregory Stone of Cambridge. Lanham, or laniham as it is written in the will, was, and still is, a school district in the south part of the town. The word senior is interlined in the original. Perhaps it should be added that as March was at this time called the first month the eighth month was October. The original will is in the Middlesex Registry of Probate at East Cambridge, Mass.

COLONIAL WARS.

John<sup>1</sup> Bent of Sudbury was one of Major Simon Willard's troopers in the expedition against Ninigret in November, 1654.

John<sup>2</sup> Bent of Framingham is called Corporal Bent in 1682.

Hopestill<sup>3</sup> Bent of Sudbury took part in the Canadian campaign of 1690, and on his tombstone is called Ensign.

John<sup>3</sup> Bent of Framingham was in service three weeks in August and Sept., 1725, in Capt. Isaac Clark's troop of horse in one of the lesser Indian wars—Father Ralle's war.

John<sup>4</sup> Bent of Southboro' was in Capt. Timothy Brigham's militia company in 1735, and sergeant in 1757.

Elijah<sup>4</sup> Bent of Sudbury was in Capt. Josiah Brown's company of horse in 1739 and in Capt. Moses Maynard's alarm company in 1757.

Capt. Lemuel<sup>5</sup> Bent of Milton was 2d Lieut. of Capt. Nathaniel Perry's Co. in 1754, 1st Lieut. under Col. John Winslow in Nova Scotia in 1755, Capt. in 1759 at Crown Point, and in 1760 and 1761 in Nova Scotia under Colonel Ruggles.

Capt. Joseph<sup>4</sup> Bent of Milton enlisted as 1st Lieut. in Col. Josiah Brown's Reg. in the expedition against Crown Point in 1755, was promoted to rank of Captain, and died at Albany, N. Y., Dec. 7, 1755.

Jonathan<sup>5</sup> Bent of Sudbury died in the Crown Point expedition of 1755.

Peter<sup>4</sup> Bent of Marlboro' was in Capt. Abraham Williams's militia company in 1757.

Peter<sup>4</sup> Bent Sr. and Peter<sup>5</sup> Bent Jr. of Sudbury were in Capt. Moses Maynard's alarm company in 1757.

Hopestill<sup>4</sup> Bent of Sudbury was in preceding company.

David<sup>5</sup> Bent of Sudbury was in Col. Joseph Buckminster's regiment that marched as far as Springfield in August, 1757, on an alarm for the relief of Fort William Henry.

David<sup>4</sup> Bent of Rutland was Sergt. in Capt. John Phelps's Co., Col. Ruggles's regiment, that marched as far as Kinderhook, N. Y., at the time of the alarm from Fort William Henry. In 1771 he was 1st Lieut. in Capt. Zacheus Gates's Co. in 3d Worcester County Reg. of militia, Col. John Murray. Afterwards Capt. in the Revolution.

Jesse<sup>s</sup> Bent of Milton appears as corporal in a list of men in Col. Samuel Miller's regiment (date not given).

Thomas<sup>s</sup> Bent of Sudbury was in Capt. Moses Maynard's alarm company in 1757. From June to Dec., 1760, he was corporal in Capt. Nathan Brigham's Co.

Joseph<sup>s</sup> Bent Jr. of Middleboro' served three months in 1758 in Capt. Benj. Pratt's Co., Col. Thomas Doty's Reg., recruited for the reduction of Canada.

Nedabiah<sup>s</sup> Bent of Milton enlisted in Capt. Aaron Willard's Co., Col. Oliver Partridge's Reg., for the reduction of Canada, in 1758. The records say that he had served in a former expedition to Lake George. In April, 1759, he enlisted in Col. Samuel Miller's Reg. for service under Gen. Amherst, but was transferred to Col. Timothy Ruggles's Reg. From Jan. 1 to May 13, 1760, he was in the Nova Scotia campaign in Capt. Moses Curtis's Co., Col. Frye's Reg.

William<sup>s</sup> Bent of Milton (afterwards of Canton) was in Col. Samuel Miller's Reg. for the reduction of Canada in 1758, Sergt. in Capt. Moses Curtis's Co., Col. Frye's Reg., from April, 1759, to July, 1760, Ensign in Capt. John Dunlap's Co., April 18, 1761, to Jan. 2 following, and Lieut. in 1762. In the early part of the Revolutionary war he was a Capt. in the Continental army.

Samuel<sup>s</sup> Bent, according to family tradition (his name has not been found in the Massachusetts archives), was in the Quebec campaign of 1759, in Capt. John Wade's Co.

Silas<sup>s</sup> Bent of Sudbury, afterwards of Rutland, was in service from April 16, 1760, to Dec. 3, 1760, in Capt. Ephraim Jackson's Co., raised for the reduction of Canada. In the Revolutionary war he was a Lieut. in the Continental Infantry and subsequently Lieut.-Colonel of a militia regiment.

John<sup>s</sup> Bent of Frammingham was cornet in Capt. Benj. Pepper's troop of horse in Col. John Noyes's Reg., the 3d Middlesex, in 1771.

SOLDIERS OF THE REVOLUTION.*

Capt. David<sup>s</sup> Bent, of Rutland, started for Cambridge at the head of his company, with Col. Nathaniel Sparhawk's Reg., as soon as the news of the battle of Lexington was received. The early part of the following year (Feb. 5, 1776) he was commissioned 1st Lieut. in Capt. John Bowker's Co., attached to Colonel Whitney's Reg. April 6, 1776, he became Capt. of the fifth company in the 7th

* This list is made from the printed record of "Massachusetts Soldiers and Sailors of the Revolutionary War," prepared and published by the Secretary of the Commonwealth. The names Benj. Bent, Jacob Bent and Gideon Bent appearing there should be Kent, and David Bent, who saw service in 1781, Walter Bent and William Bent of Falmouth should probably be some other name, perhaps Kent or Burt, both of which look like Bent when written and have been confused with it.

Worcester County Reg., Col. Sparhawk's. He marched to Bennington, Vt., in August, 1777, when he was out eleven days, and from August 31, 1777, was with his regiment, then commanded by Col. Job Cushing, in the northern department. His resignation bears the date of March 13, 1780, at which time Col. Jonathan Grout was the regimental commander.

Ebenezer<sup>s</sup> Bent, of Milton, was in Capt. Josiah Vose's Co. that guarded the seashore in April, 1776, after Boston had been evacuated by the British.

Francis<sup>s</sup> Bent, of Middleboro', was fifer in Capt. Joshua Benson's Co., in Col. Theophilus Cotton's Reg., in service around Boston from May to December, 1775, including the battle of Bunker Hill. He was out five days on an alarm to Rhode Island in Lieut. Jonah Washburn's Co., Col. Ebenezer Sprout's Reg., in December, 1776, and out thirty-one days in a secret expedition to the same State in Sept. and Oct., 1777, as a private in Capt. Nehemiah Allen's Co., Col. Cotton's Reg. In May and Sept. he was fifer of Capt. Nathaniel Wood's Co., Col. Ebenezer Sprout's Reg., in two alarms to South Dartmouth, and from Aug. 1 to 9, 1780, was fifer of Capt. Jonah Washburn's Co. on still another alarm to Rhode Island.

Jabez<sup>s</sup> Bent, of Marlboro', was out six days in Capt. William Brigham's Co. that marched April 19, 1775.

Jason<sup>s</sup> Bent, of Sudbury,* marched to Concord, April 19, 1775, in Capt. Isaac Loker's Co., and was out three days.

Joel<sup>s</sup> Bent, of Hutchinson, now Barre, marched in Capt. John Black's Co. upon receipt of the news of the battle of Lexington, and was out eleven days, marching one hundred and eighty miles. He became captain of a militia company in 1781.

Lieut. John<sup>s</sup> Bent, of Framingham, was a private in Capt. Simon Edgell's Co., afterwards Capt. Jesse Eames's Co., on duty in Roxbury in 1776, Sergt. in Capt. Daniel Eames's Co. that was out thirty-three days from Sept. 29, 1777, and 1st Lieut. in Capt. Nathan Drury's Co. in 5th Middlesex Reg., July 22, 1779. He was also in service fourteen days on an alarm to Rhode Island in July and August, 1780.

John<sup>s</sup> Bent, of Milton, was in Capt. Oliver Vose's Co. that rendezvoused at Roxbury fifteen days after the Concord fight, and in Capt. John Bradley's Co., Col. Benjamin Gill's Reg., that marched, March 4, 1776, to Dorchester Heights (now South Boston) when the forts were being erected that drove the British from Boston; also in Capt. Josiah Vose's Co. that guarded the seacoast in the month following.

* All three of Jason Bent's brothers were in the Concord fight, as well as their father, though the latter was not attached to any company. Sudbury joins Concord, and the news that the British had started reached Sudbury at four o'clock in the morning, so well had Paul Revere and the Sons of Liberty performed their task to arouse "the country folk to be up and to arm."

John<sup>6</sup> Bent, of Middleboro', was in Capt. Washburn's Co., in Col. Ebenezer White's Reg., in Rhode Island service, Aug. 1 to 9, 1780.

Jonathan<sup>5</sup> Bent, of Sudbury, was in Capt. Joseph Smith's Co., April 19, 1775, and in service in 1776 in Capt. Asahel Wheeler's Co., in Col. John Robinson's Reg., at Roxbury.

Sergt. Josiah<sup>5</sup> Bent, of Framingham,* was a private in Capt. Simon Edgell's Co., April 19, 1775, in Capt. Thomas Drury's Co. during the siege of Boston the rest of that year, corporal in Capt. Aaron Gardner's Co. in 1776, and in 1780 Sergt. in Capt. Nathan Drury's Co. in service fourteen days on an alarm to Rhode Island.

Sergt. Matthias<sup>5</sup> Bent, of Framingham, was in Capt. Simon Edgell's Co. that hurried to Concord April 19, 1775, and was afterwards during the siege of Boston quartered in Roxbury. In July and August, 1780, he was in Capt. Nathan Drury's Co., Col. Abner Perry's Reg., in service fourteen days on an alarm to Rhode Island.

Nathan<sup>5</sup> Bent, of Sudbury, was fifer of Capt. Thaddeus Russell's Co., in Col. Jonathan Brewer's Reg., in service around Boston from May to Dec., 1775; in Capt. Daniel Whitney's Co., in Col. Asa Whitecomb's Reg., in the Ticonderoga campaign the following year, and in Capt. Thomas Brintnall's Co., Col. Cyprian How's Reg., in Rhode Island from Aug. 1 to Oct. 14, 1780.

Peter<sup>5</sup> Bent, of Marlboro', marched to Concord, April 19, 1775, in Capt. Daniel Barnes's Co., and was in the same company during the siege of Boston.

Peter Bent, of Needham(?), was out four days in Capt. Aaron Smith's Co. that marched from West Needham to Dorchester Heights when the forts were erected in March, 1776.

Peter<sup>5</sup> Bent, of Rutland, enlisted Feb. 14, 1777, in the 6th Reg., Continental Army, Col. Thomas Nixon, for the remainder of the war, but died or was killed after serving two years, ten months and seventeen days.

Prince Bent, a negro slave of John Bent of Hopkinton, R. I., valued at £120, enlisted March 12, 1778, for the remainder of the war in Capt. Elijah Lewis's Co. in the First Battalion R. I. forces, commanded by Christopher Greene, Esq. In July, 1778, he was marked prisoner of war; Jan. 1, 1779, on furlough; Feb. and April on guard, and March sick in quarters.

Rufus<sup>5</sup> Bent, of Sudbury, was in Capt. Isaac Loker's Co. at Concord, April 19, 1775. He was perhaps the Rufus Bent employed later in the war—Feb. 18, 1778 to Sept. 23, 1780, as conductor or wagon master in the Deputy Quartermaster General's department.

Samuel<sup>5</sup> Bent, of Sudbury, was one of the many that hurried from * The Framingham companies reached Concord about noon and joined in the pursuit of the British.

"every Middlesex village and farm" to Concord on the nineteenth of April in '75. He was in Capt. Nathaniel Cudworth's Co. at that time, and in Capt. Asahel Wheeler's Co., Col. John Robinson's Reg., out twenty-six days from Feb. 4, 1776.

Lieut. Silas<sup>s</sup> Bent, of Rutland, afterwards Lieut.-Col. of the 7th Massachusetts Militia Reg., marched to Cambridge on receipt of the news of the battle of Lexington as a private in Capt. Thomas Eustis's Co., and was out twelve days. From May to Dec., 1775, he was Ensign of Capt. Adam Wheeler's Co. in Col. Ephraim Doolittle's Reg., in service around Boston. Jan. 1, 1776, he became 1st Lieutenant in Capt. Thomas Barnes's Co. in the 4th Reg. Continental Infantry, Col. Thomas Nixon.

Stephen<sup>s</sup> Bent, of Sudbury, saw service in the Ticonderoga campaign (1776) in Capt. Aaron Haynes's Co., Col. Asa Whitcomb's Reg., and served three months in New Jersey in 1777 in Capt. John Oliver's Co., Col. Nathaniel Sparhawk's Reg. At the Bennington alarm he was in Capt. Benj. Nye's Co., and July 1, 1778, he enlisted for six months in Capt. Jacob Haskins's Co., in Col. John Jacobs's Reg., for service in Rhode Island.

Thomas<sup>s</sup> Bent Jr., of Framingham, was out nine days from April 19, 1775, as corporal in Capt. Jesse Eames's Co., in which company he saw further service the following year.

Timothy<sup>s</sup> Bent, of Sudbury, gave up his life in the cause of liberty. He was at Concord April 19, 1775, in Capt. Joseph Smith's Co., and during the eight months' siege of Boston following, including the battle of Bunker Hill, was in Capt. Thaddeus Russell's Co. The following year he enlisted in Capt. Aaron Haynes's Co., in Col. Asa Whitcomb's Reg., for service at Ticonderoga, etc. He afterwards enlisted for three years in the 5th Continental Infantry, Col. Rufus Putnam's Reg., but at the end of eight months' service, Dec. 1, 1777, was reported dead.

Capt. William<sup>s</sup> Bent, of Stoughton, the part now Canton, marched to the front April 19, 1775, as a private in Capt. Asahel Smith's Co., remained at Cambridge a few days, returned to his home and recruited a company, at the head of which he marched April 27, being ordered to Roxbury and attached to Col. Wm. Heath's Reg., Continental army. This was stationed at Squantum at one time, but soon after ordered to Cambridge. At the end of the year he re-enlisted.

Lieut. William Bent, of Sudbury, marched as Sergt. in Capt. Joseph Smith's Co. April 19, 1775, and was out three days. In July, 1776, he was commissioned 1st Lieut. in Capt. Caleb Moulton's Co. (afterwards commanded by Capt. Robert Cutting), in the 4th Middlesex Reg., commanded by Col. Ezekiel How of the Red Horse Tavern. He seems to have continued in service as late as 1778 certainly.

MILITIA OFFICERS SINCE THE REVOLUTION.

Silas<sup>5</sup> Bent, of Rutland, commissioned Lieut.-Colonel of 7th Reg. Massachusetts Militia, July 1, 1781.

Joel<sup>5</sup> Bent, of Barre, brother of preceding, commissioned Capt. in same regiment at same time.

PETER BENT BRIGHAM.

PETER BENT BRIGHAM was born at Bakersfield, Vt., on the 4th of February, 1807. His father was Uriah Brigham (1757-1818) and his mother was Elizabeth, daughter of Josiah Fay.* His father died leaving several children wholly dependent upon their mother and their own exertions for their support. At that time the subject of this memoir was in his early youth. Like many of our foremost citizens the boy set forth from his home without money, friends, or influence to seek his fortune.

Experience teaches us that, with few exceptions, men retain their general characteristics throughout life. It is often said that the child is father to the man, and we watch the beginning as prophetic of the future career. But the converse is no less true, for the developed character of mature manhood throws a light upon the acts and efforts of childhood and youth. And so in this case. The fortitude, the indomitable self-reliance, the patience, vigor, and integrity of the prominent and successful citizen of Boston were the same which guided the young country lad as he set out from his home through a comparative wilderness for a distant city, that he might relieve his widowed mother from the care and expense of his support and gain for himself a name and a fortune.

The first part of his journey was on the back of an old broken-down horse, with saddle-bags containing his food and scant apparel. Long before he reached his destination the horse became useless and he made his way on foot, and by working on a Middlesex Canal boat, to Boston. By assiduous and persevering labor in various occupations, chiefly in the fish and oyster business, he accumulated a little money, and by judicious use of what he had gained he acquired enough to lease the prominent restaurant known as Concert Hall, in Court street, with which for many years he was identified. But his chief success was in the careful purchase of real estate, and in these transactions it is believed that never, in a single instance, did his judgment fail him. At the time of his death his fortune, after deducting all liabilities, was estimated at about $1,000,000.

* Elizabeth Fay was the daughter of Josiah Fay and Mary Bent, who were married in Southboro', March 22, 1758. (See p. 23).

Mr. Brigham never sought public office, but was deeply interested in his adopted home, and in a quiet and unostentatious way did much to promote the welfare of the city of Boston. He might easily have had an office in any branch of the municipal government, for which in many respects he was peculiarly fitted, but he preferred to help in his private capacity. As an experienced dealer in real estate his judgment was often sought by the city officers, and especially on important questions of street widening and similar improvements it was found to be of great value. He was one of the original directors of the Fitchburg Railroad Company, and continued in office up to the time of his death. To that corporation he gave very much of his valuable time and thought, always ready to labor for its interests without favor or reward.

His habits of life were most regular. Careful as to food, and a total abstainer from spirituous liquors and tobacco, he was enabled to preserve a robust health, so necessary in the arduous labors upon which he had entered. His great success in business was, in a measure, owing to his cordial manners proceeding from a genuine kindness of heart. It was not his method to scatter money here and there and thus to relieve his conscience, but he sought out those who were not only in need, but ready to help themselves, and with his advice and assistance, and perhaps a small expenditure where absolutely necessary, there were many who owed their relief from poverty to him. His sympathy for his fellowmen was especially illustrated in his anti-slavery sentiments and the gentle kindness which he ever showed to the negro race. He was constant in his endeavors to aid them in obtaining employment and to relieve the distress of those as to whom it was clear to him that relief was necessary. Among his papers after his death were found two cancelled wills, of dates prior to 1862, by which he gave the bulk of his estate for the emancipation of slaves.

He often lamented his want of a liberal education, which he could not have obtained on account of the necessities of his situation. Appreciating fully its importance he provided by his will a large endowment for the erection and maintenance of an academy in his native town of Bakersfield. This academy is now a most prosperous institution, and has been a great blessing to the town and its neighborhood. The number of its students at present is over one hundred, and bids fair to considerably increase. Liberal provision was also made by his will for the care and improvement of the cemetery in his native town.

Mr. Brigham has no issue, having never married, and the careful thought which he gave to the disposition of his estate was characteristic. It was his firm belief that it was far better for any man with health and strength to earn his own living, and that inherited money would be a hindrance rather than a benefit. He therefore was not willing to make provision in his will for the males among his kindred who were able to earn their own support. But for two of them who were disabled, and for his nieces, he made liberal provision, and also for his sister, Mrs. Sarah B. Jacobs, who still survives him, to whose industry and frugal care and affectionate solicitude for his welfare he was much indebted, who was his companion in his home, and to whom he was tenderly attached. The bulk of his large fortune, however, was devoted by his will to the establishment, after the expiration of twenty-five years from his death, of a hospital for the sick poor of his adopted city. Fourteen years have now elapsed and the estate in the hands of his executor has increased to a valuation of more than $2,000,000, and it is expected that in the remaining eleven years much more than another million will be added by accumulations, after payment of all annuities with which it is charged.

A most noble and well directed charity indeed, and it will remain as a perpetual monument to its generous founder in the relief of what seems to be the sum of human suffering—poverty and sickness combined. And when we consider this beneficent disposition of his property at the last, and the testamentary provision which at different times he had made for suffering slaves, may we not well think and believe that in those long years of patient toil in gathering his fortune this benevolent donor had, all the while, a fixed purpose known only to himself, of using his life and strength for the welfare of his fellowmen?

After a well-rounded life of remarkable energy and activity, guided by rules of strict integrity, on the 24th day of May, 1877, Peter Bent Brigham calmly and bravely laid himself down to die in his own home in Boston, at the allotted age of three score years and ten. The monument over his grave in Mt. Auburn well says "An honest man here lies at rest."

The above memoir (originally printed in 1891) was kindly furnished by Mr. Robert Codman, executor of the estate.

THE NAME IN STORY.

"Miss Bent or at His Footstool," an Episcopalian book "on the Litany and the Occasional Prayers and Thanksgivings," by Mrs. F. Burge Smith, was published in 1881, in New York (256 pages).

In the Thanksgiving number of the Youth's Companion, Nov. 24, 1892, was an illustrated Thanksgiving story by Majorie Richardson. The principal characters are Tommy Bent, his Aunt Eunice and Peter Bent, and the scene is in Middlesex county, all of which point to the author's knowing something of the Bents.

A short story, "A Valedictory," by "M. E. W.," in the Boston Sunday Herald of June 23, 1895, has, for its scene, Bent Hall in a college endowed by Peter Bent.

BENTS IN ENGLAND AND ELSEWHERE.

The Bents are widely scattered. In England there seem to be three distinct families, originating, says Rev. Frederick Chas. Bent of London, in Lancashire, Shropshire and Devonshire, and the Burkes give three coats-of-arms. The motto of one of these is worth remembering: "Nec temere nec timide" (neither rashly nor timidly).

Perhaps the best known of the modern English Bents is James Theodore Bent, F. S. A., of London, the distinguished archæologist, who died May 5, 1897, just after his return from Arabia. He was the author of several interesting and valuable books upon his travels in Genoa, San Marino, the Islands of the Mediterranean, Persia, the interior of Southern Africa and Abyssinia. Born in 1852, he graduated with honors from Wadham College, Oxford University in 1875, and soon after went to live in the little republic of San Marino. This resulted in his first book, published in 1879.

The Illustrated London News of May 15, 1897, said of him: "Though he was only forty-five years of age, he had made himself famous as an intrepid traveller and as an archæologist of great taste and resource. * * * * In 1877 he married Mabel, daughter of the late Mr. Robert Westley Hall-Dare, D. L. With her he began at once his long course of travels, on which he was assisted by his proficiency as a linguist. * * * Last November they visited the Island of Sokotra. On their return they visited portions of the surrounding country quite unknown to Europeans, and unfortunately caught malarial fever. Recovering, they stopped on the way home a few days at Marseilles, where he caught a cold which brought a return of the fever, complicated with pneumonia, from which he could not rally. A wanderer for twenty years, he came home at last only to die."

A list of his publications follows:

A Freak of Freedom on the Republic of San Marino. Illus. 271 pages, 1879.

Genoa: How the Republic Rose and Fell. Illus. 420 pages. 1881.

Life of Giuseppe Garibaldi. 313 pages. 1881.

The Cyclades or Life among the Insular Greeks. 501 pages. 1885.

A Scholastic Island, a six-page article in MacMillan's Magazine for October, 1889, treats of Chalki, one of Princes Islands in the Sea of Marmora.

The Ruined Cities of Mashonaland, a record of excavation and exploration in the interior of Southern Africa in 1891. Illus. 376 pages. 1892. Portraits of the author and his wife.

The Sacred City of the Ethiopians: a record of a visit to Aksum in Abyssinia in 1893. 309 pages.

Early Voyages and Travels in the Levant, being the Diaries of Master Thomas Dallam and Dr. John Covel. Edited by J. T. Bent, 1893. 305 pages.

Arabia; the Hadramut Valley: in the Nineteenth Century for September, 1894.

Muscat: in the Living Age, January 18, 1896.

Italians in Abyssinia: in Fortnightly Review for September, 1896.

The Dervish Frontier: in the Nineteenth Century for October, 1896.

Travels among the Armenians: Contemporary Review for November, 1896.

J. Theodore Bent's father, James Bent, was a magistrate in Yorkshire, while his uncle, Sir John Bent, who died in 1857, was mayor of Liverpool in 1850. They are descended from Hamlet Bent (1642-1728), son of Lawrence Bent (died 1670, aged 96), of Bentlanes, near Eccles, some four miles west of Manchester.

In Manchester Cathedral is the tomb of Edward Bent of Korsall, Gentleman, who died 1719. In Manchester in 1890 was a James Bent, Superintendent of County Constabulary, besides several others of the name.

John Bent of Wrexham, Buckinghamshire, born in 1782, son of Rev. Geo. Bent, by his wife Mary, daughter of John Milton of Bristol, entered the British army as an ensign and retired as major in 1831.

Among the gentry of Sussex in 1855 was Gibbs Francis Bent of Oat Hall, Lindfield. Near by was a Hotel Bent Arms, "delightfully situated on the summit of a hill."

Rev. Frederick Chas. Bent, in 1889, speaks of a Col. Bent of the Royal Engineers; of a Bent, Chief Constable of Exeter; a Bent, Inspector of Police, and Rev. J. A. Bent of Woolwich.

Lieut.-Gen. George Bent, C. B., R. E., died at his residence at Sydenham, Eng., Dec. 27, 1897, aged 77. He was a son of the late Colonel Bent, R. A., and entered the Royal Engineers in 1838, was with the Turkish army on the Danube from June to December, 1854, and from January, 1855, served at the siege and fall of Sevastopol, being for the last six months of the time director of the left attack.

The will of Anne Parris of Islington, Eng., wife of Thomas Parris of the Island of Barbadoes, bequeaths £50 in 1665 to her "loving cousin Thomas Bent, citizen and merchant taylor of London." This Thomas Parris appears to be the father of Rev. Samuel Parris of witchcraft fame. The latter's daughter married Peter Bent of Sudbury.

In Amsterdam, in the 17th century, lived a John van der Bent (1650-1690), who attained some celebrity as a landscape painter, and the name van der Bent is still found in Holland. There are even two in Amsterdam with the "van der" left off.

In Paris (1899) is an L. I. Bent, while in southern France, at Toulouse, Henry Bent, with his brothers and sisters, are engaged in the manufacture of church ornaments, vestments and jewelry, an industry carried on by their father and grandfather. The story is told by a brother, Rev. Charles Bent, honorary canon, curate of the parish of Notre-Dame-des-Victoires, Algiers, Africa, who writes (November, 1893): "Our father died eight years ago, aged 75. He was the last of a numerous family. Our grandfather died in 1833, aged about 75. The grandfather was saved while very young from a fire, and adopted into a family named Barateau, of Toulouse, manufacturers of church ornaments. He was brought up by this family and married the daughter of the house."

R. M. Bent, of New York, whose father came from near Liverpool, says three of his father's brothers entered the English army, two dying in the Indies and one becoming paymaster-general in the East India service.

The 1893 Melbourne (Australia) directory gives seven Bents, including an Hon. Thomas Bent.

Ellis Bent (son of Robert Bent of England) was Judge Advocate and sole judicial officer of New South Wales early in the 19th century, and gave the colony its first legal constitution. In 1814 his brother, Jeffery Hart Bent, was sent out as Chief Justice. Upon the former's death the latter returned to England in 1817. About 1820 he was appointed Chief Justice of Grenada, where he remained most of the time, until 1836, when he was transferred to British Guiana (South America), where he was still located at the time of his death in 1852. Chief Justice Bent was uncle to the Right Rev. Robert Bent Knox, D. D., bishop of Down, Connor and Dromore.

Samuel Bent, who was born in Sweden in 1814 and died in Lowell, Mass., in 1843, was without doubt a descendant of John Bent of Sudbury, Mass., 1638 (see page 252).

LAST SCENE OF ALL.

AROUSEMENT.

So many years the ripples of the bay
Had kissed the shore-set homes of old Pompeii,
So many morns the slow, sure-rising sun
Had brought the trivial tasks and seen them done,
So many level days and years so long
And still for patient toil or lilting song ;
What if Vesuvius' shadow they forgot,
His fierce, hoarse threatenings heard nor heeded not ?
Until his watchful, vengeful strength awoke
And o'er their helpless life his thunders broke.

As in Pompeian time our years slip past,
Each sunlit day so like unto the last,
Each placid hour with small engrossing care
For food or raiment, moments full and fair ;
Are we so short of sight as not to see
How broodeth o'er us a great mystery ?
Till Death's gray shadow fall athwart our light
Or Love's quick voice speak through the tranquil night,
Till in some sudden, breathless, judgment hour
'Tis Life o'erwhelms us with resistless power.
